For authorizing a Sum of Money to be raised in Shares for Erecting an English Church at Cape Town.

Preamble.

WHEREAS several persons have subscribed certain sums of money for the purpose of erecting a church at Cape Town for the celebration of divine service according to the rites of the United Church of England and Ireland as by law established, on the site consecrated for that purpose by the late Lord Bishop of Calcutta, upon the principle that such subscribers should have a right of property in the pews of the said church, and in or about the month of October, in the year of our Lord 1827, a committee of management was appointed for carrying their intention into effect, which committee hath received part of the said subscriptions together with several sums of money from various persons by way of donations for furthering the building of the said church: And whereas His Excellency the Governor hath agreed to grant from the treasury of this Colony towards the building and completing the said church, to the persons who shall undertake and become bound for completing the same, a sum not exceeding the sum of five thousand pounds sterling, in manner following,—that is to say, the sum of five hundred pounds when the foundations are up to the surface and completed; five hundred pounds when the walls are as high as the bottom of the windows; five hundred pounds when the walls are as high as the tops of the windows; one thousand pounds when the walls are roof high, the wall-plates on, and the roof in frame; one thousand pounds when the mason's and bricklayer's work is completed, including the tower; five hundred pounds when the plastering inside and outside is completed; five hundred pounds when the joiner's work is completed; and the remainder of the said sum of five thousand pounds to be paid when the whole building is taken over from the contractors in a complete state: And whereas the said committee have received and approved of a plan and specification for building the said church, together with tenders for the building thereof according to the said plan and specification, but the several sums before mentioned have been found to be insufficient for completing the said building; whereupon at a public meeting of the said subscribers and committee of management, holden pursuant to advertisement and notice thereof in the Commercial Advertiser newspaper on the twenty-seventh day of August now last, it was agreed and resolved by the said subscribers and committee of management (amongst other things) that the said scheme should be peremptorily relinquished, and that in order to raise a sum of money amounting together with the said sum to be granted by His Excellency the Governor as aforesaid and the said donations to the sum of twelve thousand and seventy pounds, being near or about the estimated cost of building and completing the said church, a certain number of shares should be disposed of,—that is to say, the number of two hundred and fifty shares at twenty-five pounds each: And whereas several of the said subscribers and other persons have agreed to take shares in the said loan as aforesaid,—that is to say, the Honourable Sir John Wylde, Knight (Chief Justice of this Colony), the Honourable Lieutenant-Colonel John Bell, C.B., and the Reverend George Hough, M.A., ten shares each; Lieutenant-Colonel William Hopper, eight shares; Rice Jones Jones and Hamilton Ross, six shares each; George Thompson and John Bardwell Ebdon, five shares each; William Hayward (Assistant Commissary-General), the Reverend Edward Judge, M.A., William Scott, Laurence Twentyman, Hudson, Donaldson, and Dixon, and William Hawkins, (agent to the Honourable the East India Company), four shares each; Ewan Christian and Samuel Olivier, three shares each; Thomas Kift Deane, William Hutchons, George Greig, John Deane, Francis Collison, James Horne, George Wilson

But the separate estate of a partner shall not be entered upon or attached by virtue merely of an order for the sequestration of the estate of the company to which such partner belongs, and when any separate estate or estates shall be included together with the estate of the company in the same order for sequestration, the creditors of the separate estate or estates, and of the estate of the company respectively, shall, together and indifferently, vote in the election of the trustee or trustees, and in all matters relating to the said estates so included, in the same order just as if the debt of every such creditor were due and owing by one single and undivided estate. (1) And be it enacted, that further execution of any judgment against any insolvent, or his estate, for the amount of any debt or sum of money, shall, after any order for sequestration of such estate is lodged with the Sheriff, or any such Deputy Sheriff, as aforesaid, for registration, be stayed during the pendency of such sequestration, and the insolvent, if in prison in virtue of any decree of civil imprisonment given in respect of any judgment, debt or costs, or any order for committal made in respect of disobedience to any order for the payment of money made in any civil suit or proceeding, may be released from his imprisonment, in so far as the same is occasioned by reason of any such decree, order, or arrest as aforesaid, by the order of the Supreme Court, or of any judge thereof, or of any Circuit Court, in case such Court or judge shall not see cause to refuse to make such order, shall be discharged therefrom. And it shall and may be lawful for the person having right to such judgment, to prove the debt, and costs secured thereby, against the sequestrated estate, and to take the benefit thereof upon distribution of the said estate; and where any property has been attached by legal process for satisfaction of any judgment, and has not been sold, or, having been sold, the Effect of order of sequestration upon actions against insolvent.

23. And be it enacted, that all actions pending against any person for any debt or demand provable against his estate, and all proceedings therein, shall, upon any order being made for the sequestration of such estate, in virtue thereof, be stayed: and the insolvent, if in prison under any arrest granted in security of any debt or demand in regard to which any such action shall have been instituted, may, by the authority and under the condition in the last preceding section mentioned, be discharged therefrom, and it shall and may be lawful for the plaintiff in such action to prove his debt, together with the taxed costs of suit then incurred against the sequestrated estate, and to take the benefit thereof upon distribution of the said estate: Provided, however, that all actions pending against any insolvent for damages alleged to have been sustained from any injury or wrong, or breach of any contract, committed by him, such damages being uncertain, or for recovery of any claim unliquidated as to its amount, and all proceedings therein, shall, upon any order being made for the sequestration of his estate, be stayed until a trustee shall be elected for the administration thereof, if the sequestration shall remain in force so long; and thereupon, the plaintiff in such action, after summoning the trustee to take up and defend the said action, may proceed to obtain the judgment of the Court thereon, and the said judgment, when recovered, together with the taxed costs of suit, shall be a debt provable against the said estate.

Effect of order of sequestration upon actions by insolvent.

24. And be it enacted, that all actions commenced by any person whose estate shall afterwards be placed under sequestration as insolvent, for any debt or demand due to the said estate, and all proceedings therein, shall, upon the order for such sequestration being made, be stayed, until the trustee thereafter chosen for the administration of the said estate shall make election to prosecute or discontinue the same, and the trustee shall be bound to make such election within six weeks after notice to that effect shall be served upon him by any defendant in any such action, or otherwise shall be deemed to have abandoned the same. 25. And be it enacted, that the Master of the Supreme Court shall, after any estate has been placed under sequestration, upon surrender thereof as insolvent, or has been adjudged to be sequestrated, forthwith cause notice thereof to be given in the Government Gazette of this Colony, and shall thereby appoint two public meetings of the creditors of such estate, at such times and places as he shall deem most convenient for all the parties concerned, the first for receiving proof of debts against the said estate, and the second for the same purpose, and for electing a trustee for the collection, administration, and distribution thereof. And such publication shall be deemed notice thereof to all persons who may reasonably be presumed to have seen the same. And the times and places so fixed for the holding of any of the meetings aforesaid, may, on cause shown to the said Master, or to the Supreme Court, by any party dissatisfied with the appointment made by the said Master, be altered; of which alteration notice shall be forthwith given in the Government Gazette: Provided always, that if it shall appear to the said Master, before causing notice to be given as aforesaid, that the goods and effects of the insolvent available for the payment of his debts are not the value of seventy-five pounds sterling, he shall specify the same in the said advertisement: and shall therein also give notice, that unless it shall be shown at the first meeting, called as aforesaid, that the goods and effects of the insolvent exceed the value of seventy-five pounds sterling, the Master, or Resident Magistrate holding such meeting, will summarily proceed to rank the debts which shall be proved at such meeting according to their respective preferences and to direct the proceeds of the insolvent estate to be forthwith distributed accordingly, by a trustee to be then elected by the greater part of the creditors in number and value attending at such meeting. And in such case, the said insolvent shall at such first meeting attend before the creditors to account for his insolvency, and shall, being thereunto required, do and perform thereat all such other matters and things as are hereinafter required to be done and performed by him at any meeting of creditors, under the provisions of this Ordinance. And if at the said first meeting, which meeting may be adjourned from time to time, if the said Master or Resident Magistrate shall deem it necessary to adjourn the same, it shall still appear to the said Master or Resident Magistrate, as the case may be, before whom the same is holden, that the available assets of the said estate do not exceed the amount of seventy-five pounds sterling, it shall and may be lawful for the said Master or Resident Magistrate to rank the creditors who shall prove their debts at such meeting, according to the legal order of their preference, and for the creditors to elect a trustee for the collection, administration, and distribution of the estate of the said insolvent according to the order of ranking; and to direct the said trustee forthwith to collect, administer, and distribute the same accordingly. And further at the said first meeting the said Master or Resident Magistrate shall and may respectively execute all the powers and authority which may be executed by them at any meeting of creditors under the provisions of this Ordinance, and shall also do and perform thereat all matters and things required to be done for the final settlement of the said estate. And the creditors present at the said first meeting shall then determine what part of the wearing apparel, bedding, household furniture, and tools of trade of the insolvent shall be excepted from the sale of his movable property, and shall be allowed to him; and shall also give to the said trustee such directions as to the management of the said estate as to them shall seem fit. And no other meeting shall be thereafter holden, unless, upon cause shown to the said Master by any trustee or creditor of the said estate, the said Master shall think fit to order the same.

Before whom meetings of creditors to be held.

26. And be it enacted that in all cases where any meeting of creditors for the proof of debts or for the election of trustees shall be appointed to be holden in Cape Town, the same shall take place before the Master of the Supreme Court; and if in any district of the Colony other than the Cape district, then before the Resident Magistrate of such district, under the direction of the said Master; and the said Master or Resident Magistrate shall respectively take the votes of the creditors, and declare the party so elected trustee of the said estate; and in all cases where such meeting shall be holden before the Resident Magistrate of any district, he shall forthwith certify to the said Master the proceedings thereat.

Proof of debts.

27. And be it enacted, that every creditor shall prove his debt against the said estate to the satisfaction of the Master or Resident Magistrate, as the case may be, who shall admit any debt, or reject the same as not proved. And every creditor shall prove his debt by affidavit, which shall be sworn before the Master or Resident Magistrate, or some commissioner appointed by the Supreme Court for taking affidavits, or some Justice of the Peace, and which shall state the nature of the alleged debt, and when such debt accrued originally to the deponent himself, that the same is a just, true and lawful debt, and, when such debt has accrued to the deponent by cession, or otherwise, from any other person, then that the said debt is a just, true, and lawful debt, to the best of the deponent's knowledge and belief, and such affidavit shall state what other persons, if any, are, besides the insolvent, liable for the said debt or any part thereof, or that there are no such persons so liable, and shall state all pledges or security which the deponent, or any person for his use, holds from the insolvent for the said debt or any part thereof, and shall depose to the genuineness of all vouchers or evidences of debt which the deponent shall produce with his said affidavit. Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the said Master or Resident Magistrate, in case he shall find that any clerk, agent, or other person is more fully cognizant of the nature of the debt sought to be proved than the creditor is, to allow such clerk, agent, or other person to swear the affidavit aforesaid with such alterations as will thereby become necessary. And provided that any creditor who is out of or absent from this Colony may, in case he have no known agent or mandatory in this Colony cognizant of and capable of proving the alleged debt, make the necessary affidavit before some person duly qualified to administer oaths in the place where he resides, such person being certified to be so qualified by some sufficient authority in that behalf, should such creditor reside or be in any part of Her Majesty's dominions, and if such creditor should reside or be elsewhere than in those dominions, then the said person shall be certified as aforesaid by a British Minister, or a British Consul, or by a notary public; and provided that it shall and may be lawful for the Supreme Court, or any Circuit Court, on the application of any party interested, finally to admit or reject any debt admitted or rejected by the said Master or Resident Magistrate, or to allow any action, which may have been instituted for the proof or recovery of any such debt against the insolvent, prior to the sequestration, and which has, in consequence thereof, been stayed, to be proceeded in after the election of a trustee shall have taken place, and after the trustee so elected shall have been duly summoned to take up and defend such action; and if the plaintiff shall thereafter obtain judgment thereon, he shall be ranked on the insolvent estate for the amount of such judgment. And provided, also, that any such Court as aforesaid, before adjudging finally as to the admission or rejection of any debt, may remit such case to the Master or Resident Magistrate for further proof, or may direct any question of fact to be tried by pleadings and proofs, or adopt such other course as to such Court shall seem fit.

28. And be it enacted, that all debts due by any insolvent at the time of adjudication or surrender, may be proved against his estate; and when there has been mutual credit given by the insolvent and any other person, upon which compensation can by law be pleaded on either side, the Master of the Court, or Resident Magistrate, taking the proof of debt, shall thereupon state the account between them, and shall set one debt or demand against the other; and what shall appear due on either side on the balance of such account, and no more, shall be allowed to be proved or claimed, or paid on either side respectively; Provided, that the person claiming the benefit of such set-off, had not, when such credit was given, or when the cause of his debt accrued, notice of the order for sequestration having been made, or of any act of insolvency in virtue of which such order shall have been made; and provided always, that it shall and may be lawful for the Supreme Court, on the application of any person interested, who shall consider himself aggrieved by any such decision of the said Master or Resident Magistrate, to review the same, and to pronounce such judgment or to direct or allow such further proceedings, as to the Court shall appear just and proper.

Proof of debts not yet due.

29. And be it enacted, that in all questions upon this Ordinance, every person, to whom the insolvent was, at the time of the surrender or adjudication or sequestration of his estate, under any legal obligation to pay money, at a certain future time, shall be accounted creditor de presenti, and shall be entitled to prove his debt for the amount of the money specified in the obligation. But in case the said debt shall not have become payable at the date of the order for sequestration, and shall not bear interest until the term of payment, or shall bear interest at a less rate than six per cent. per annum, the said debt shall be valued in voting, and such creditor shall receive payment thereof, or dividend thereon only, after deduction thereout of a rebate of interest of six per cent. per annum, or of so much per cent. per annum as shall correspond with the difference between the rate of interest payable on such debt and the rate of six per cent. per annum, as the case may be, to be computed from the date of the order for sequestration, to the time when such debt would have become payable according to the terms on which it was contracted.

Creditors holding lien, their rights as to proof of debt, &c.

30. And be it enacted, that any creditor who shall hold a preferable security or lien upon any part of the insolvent estate, shall, when he is the petitioning creditor, be obliged upon oath in the affidavit accompanying the petition, and when he is not the petitioning creditor, in the affidavit produced by him at the time of proving his debt, to put a value upon such security, so far as his debt may thereby be covered, and to deduct such value from the debt proved by him, but shall have the right to vote for trustees and commissioners, and in all matters regarding the property over which he shall have such security or lien, both in number and value for the full and entire amount of his debt, and in all other matters respecting the insolvent estate he shall vote as creditor only for the balance; which balance shall be specified in his affidavit, without prejudice to such valuation being afterwards corrected, and without prejudice to the amount of the said debt, in other respects: And, in case any creditor shall hold any preferable security or lien for payment of his debt, obtained prior to the order for sequestration of the insolvent estate, and not liable to be set aside in virtue of this Ordinance, upon any part of the said estate, the amount or value of such security or lien shall be deducted from his debt, and he shall only be ranked for, or receive payment of, or a dividend for, the balance after such deduction; and if any dispute shall arise about the value of such security, the creditor or claimant shall, upon oath, put a value upon it, and the trustees shall then have an option, either of taking an assignment of the security for the benefit of the creditors at large, on payment of the value so estimated out of the first assets of the insolvent estate, or of reserving the full effect of it to the creditor himself; and, in either case, the creditor shall be ranked on the divisible fund for the balance of his debt so ascertained, together with the other creditors, such creditor being, in no event, entitled to draw more than full payment of the debt, but being, at the same time, entitled to vote both in number and value, according to the provisions and within the limits hereinbefore set forth.

Ord. 6—1843.

31. And be it enacted, that no person whose debt depends upon a contingency or an uncertain condition, shall be entitled to petition, or join in the petition, for sequestration of any estate, or to vote in the choice of trustee, or any of the other proceedings herein specified, so long as the contingency shall not happen, or the condition shall not be performed. Provided always, that the creditor in any such debt, contracted before the order for sequestration shall have been made, may if he think fit, while the contingency or condition upon which such debt depends shall not have happened, or shall not have been performed, apply to the trustee to set a value upon such debt, and the trustee is hereby required to ascertain the value thereof and to admit such creditor to prove the amount so ascertained; and such creditor shall thereafter be entitled to vote, and to receive dividends or payment, as in respect of a debt of the value of the amount so ascertained; but whether such value shall or shall not be so ascertained, before the contingency shall have happened, or the condition shall have been performed, such creditor may, whenever such contingency shall have happened, or such condition shall have been performed, prove in respect of his whole debt and receive dividends or payments, thereon with the other creditors. Provided always, that when the creditor in any such debt or claim, the contingency of which shall not have happened, or the condition of which shall not have been performed, and the value of which shall not have been ascertained, as aforesaid, shall enter a claim on the estate in respect of such debt, the trustee shall rank the claimant as if the contingency had happened, or the condition had been performed; and shall forthwith apply to the Supreme Court to make an order, and the said Court shall make such order, for securing the dividend or sum which the claimant would be entitled to draw until the contingency or condition upon which the debt depends, shall happen or be performed, or until it shall have become certain, that such contingency or condition shall never happen or be performed when the sum so secured shall be paid to the claimant, or to the other creditors, as the case may be; and any interest which may in the meantime arise and be received thereupon shall belong to and be paid to the other creditors. And provided, also, that the holder of any such contingent debt or claim, of which the value shall not have been ascertained, and who has been ranked as a claimant as if the contingency had happened or the condition been performed, shall, for the purpose of agreeing to or dissenting from any offer of composition, or the certificate of the insolvent as hereinafter mentioned, be deemed and taken to be creditor for whatever sum the Master of the Supreme Court shall, under the circumstances of the said debt, fix and allow, subject to appeal from his decision to the Supreme Court.

Allowance of claim where debt not yet proved.

32. And be it enacted, that, when by reason of the absence of any person from this Colony or for any other cause appearing to the Supreme Court, the said Court shall be of opinion, that a claimant who has not proved a debt to the satisfaction of the Court, may eventually be able to establish the same, it shall and may be lawful for the said Court to allow such claim to be entered on the proceedings in the insolvent estate, and to give reasonable time for proving the same; and in the mean time to make such order for securing the amount thereof, in case the said claim shall be afterwards established, as the said Court shall see fit.

How interest upon claims to be ranked and paid.

33. And be it enacted, that the mode of settling claims and the interest upon them shall be as follows, viz: The principal sum of each debt on which interest is chargeable, together with the arrears of interest, if there be any due upon it, at the time the order for sequestration was made, shall be accumulated as at the date of the said order, for the purpose of the claimant being ranked for, and receiving payment of, such accumulated sum, together with the principal sums of such debts as do not bear interest, or from which there may be a rebate of interest, as not being payable till an after period; and the assets of the insolvent estate shall be applied.—1st. In payment according to the legal order of preference, of all the preferent debts and the interest which shall have been due thereon prior to the date of the said order to the extent to which such interest is, by law entitled to a preference; and every creditor shall have the same preference for the interest which shall have accrued on his debt between the date of the said order and the time of payment, to which he may be entitled for any part of the interest which may have become due prior to the said order. And 2dly, in payment of all the other accumulated sums so ranked, without allowing any interest upon them from and after the date of the said order, if the said assets shall not be sufficient to discharge all the claims due to the insolvent estate; but if after discharging the whole of such claims there shall be any residue left of the sequestrated estate, the creditors as well as those from whom interest has been deducted on account of the provisions of the twenty-ninth section of this Ordinance, as all others, shall be entitled to claim, out of such residue, any arrear of interest which may be due on them, as arising since the date of the order for sequestration, upon the respective sums ranked as hereinbefore mentioned.

34. And be it enacted; that in every case in which it shall happen that the estate of any company, and the estate or estates of any one or more of the partners of such company, shall be concurrently under administration as insolvent,—the creditors of the said company shall prove their debts against, and rank upon the estate of the company, and the creditors of each partner, in respect of debts due by such partner separately from the other partners, shall prove their debts against and rank upon the estate belonging to their debtor separately from the other partners, and the estate of the company, shall be first applied in satisfaction of the creditors of the company and each separate estate shall be first applied in satisfaction of the separate creditors of that estate. And if the estate of the company shall prove insufficient to satisfy the creditors of the company, or if there be no such estate, then each creditor of the company shall rank upon the surplus of each separate estate, which may remain after satisfying the separate creditors of that estate, either for the residue or entire of his debt, as the case may be, but so, however, as not to receive, in all, more than the whole of their debts respectively. And if the separate estate of any partner shall prove insufficient to satisfy the separate creditors who have claimed upon it, then the separate creditors upon that separate estate shall rank upon the surplus, if any, of the company's estate which shall remain after satisfying the creditors of that estate in proportion to the share in such surplus belonging to, or claimable in right of, the particular partner whose separate estate has so as aforesaid proved deficient. And whenever the company's estate shall prove insufficient to satisfy the company's creditors, and the latter shall thereupon receive satisfaction, wholly or in part, out of the surplus of the separate estate of any of the partners of such company, the trustee of the separate estate so satisfying, wholly or in part, any of the creditors of the company shall be entitled to rank upon the separate estate of any other partner of such company for amount of whatever the contribution in respect of the debts of the company wholly or in part discharged, such trustee may, by law, be authorized to claim. Provided however, that no partner, if insolvent, and no trustee of the insolvent estate of any partner shall, under any circumstances, rank for the amount of any such claim for contribution, upon the insolvent estate of any other partner in competition or concurrence with any of the creditors of the company claiming upon any such last-mentioned estate, which creditors are hereby declared to be entitled to be paid in preference and priority to any such partner or trustee. And provided, also, that nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to abridge or affect the rights which the creditors of any insolvent company may, by law, possess to seek satisfaction for their debts from any partner of such company whose estate shall not have been sequestrated, or to abridge or affect the rights which any such solvent partner may, by law, possess in regard either to the insolvent estate

35. And be it enacted, that in every case in which the separate estate of any partner of a company shall be sequestrated as insolvent, and whether the estate of such company shall also be or have been sequestrated or not, any creditor to whom the insolvent is indebted, jointly with the other partner or partners of the company, shall be entitled to prove his debt under the sequestration of such separate estate, for the purpose of voting in the election of trustees, and of agreeing to or dissenting from any offer of composition, and the certificate and discharge of the insolvent as hereafter mentioned, but no further. And such creditor shall not receive any dividend out of the separate estate of the insolvent until all the separate creditors shall have received the full amount of their respective debts; unless such creditor have been a petitioning creditor, in regard to the sequestration of such separate estate, in which case such creditor may vote and receive dividends in respect of his debt in the same manner as the separate creditor of such estate.

for as to competition

36. And be it enacted, that, in every case not hereinbefore expressly provided for, and relating to the ranking and priority of the joint creditors of any company, in competition with the separate creditors of any of the partners of such company, or relating to the reciprocal claims of any such insolvent estates in reference to or in relief of each other, the rule for the time being in respect of the like case, according to the law and administration of bankruptcy in England shall first be resorted to, and failing any such rule, the common law of the Colony shall be applied.

Persons disqualified from being trustee.

41. And be it enacted, that in no case shall it be competent for the creditors to elect as trustee, the insolvent himself, or any person related to the insolvent by consanguinity or affinity within the fourth degree; nor any minor, nor any attorney, <sup>(1)</sup> nor any person, who having had his estate, at any time, placed under sequestration shall not have obtained the sequestration to be superseded, or who shall not have been rehabilitated under the provisions of the law heretofore in force within this Colony, or shall not have obtained his certificate and allowance thereof, as hereinafter provided, nor any person not resident within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, nor any person having an interest opposed to the general interest of the creditors in the insolvent estate, nor any person declared to be incapable of being elected by virtue of the provisions in the next succeeding section contained.

Acts by trustee inferring his disqualification.

42. And be it enacted, that if any person elected a trustee shall be proved, to the satisfaction of the Supreme Court, or of any Circuit Court, holden for the district in which the election of trustee was had, to have procured or been privy to the omission from the schedule of the insolvent of the name of any creditor of the insolvent, with intent thereby to obtain some peculiar advantage in regard to the election of trustee, or to have, either directly or indirectly, given or promised to give to any creditor of the insolvent, any species of valuable consideration whatsoever, in order to obtain the vote of such creditor at the election of trustee, or to have agreed to secure and make good to any creditor some certain sum or dividend in discharge or diminution of his debt, upon condition or in order that such creditor should give his vote to such trustee; or to have offered or agreed, in case any creditor of the insolvent should consent to vote for such trustee, to abstain from opening up or investigating some previous transactions between such creditor and the insolvent, which were, or were supposed to be, of questionable validity, or to have contrived, or been privy to, any plan or arrangement by which debts or securities really belonging to some one or more persons have been divided amongst a greater number of persons, for the purpose merely of increasing the number of votes at the election for trustee, and thereby influencing the same, or to have undertaken to share with any creditor or creditors of the insolvent, in return for his or their votes, the commission or remuneration to be awarded to him as such trustee;—then such Supreme or Circuit Court as aforesaid, shall, whether before or after the decree confirming the appointment of such trustee, declare such trustee to have forfeited the office of such trustee in regard to the insolvent estate for which he shall have been elected, and to be incapable of being again elected thereto, and it shall and may be lawful for such Court, if it should so think fit, to further declare, that the person so offending shall be incapable

Ord. 6-1843

43. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the Supreme Court, or for any judge thereof on circuit, and whether sitting in any Circuit Court or not, on cause shown by the Master of the said Court, or any person interested in the due administration of the insolvent estate, by order of Court to appoint one or more fit person or persons to be trustee or trustees of any insolvent estate provisionally, and until the creditors of the said estate shall make choice of a trustee; which trustee or trustees may be removed at the meeting of creditors for the choice of a trustee, if the said creditors shall think fit, but shall and may, until so removed, act in the collection, administration, and distribution of the said estate, in all respects the same as trustees elected by the creditors are by this Ordinance authorized or required to do. Provided however, that no such trustee or trustees shall proceed to make sale of any part of the said estate without the authority for that purpose of the Supreme Court, or of some judge thereof, or of some Circuit Court, or of the Master of the Supreme Court, first had and obtained.

And whenever any provisional trustee or trustees shall die or be removed before the making of the decree aforesaid for confirming the appointment of any trustee or trustees elected by the creditors, then the whole present and future estate of the insolvent for the time being, shall vest again in the said Master, precisely as if the same had never been divested.

77. And be it enacted, that it shall be lawful for the Master of the Supreme Court, and he is hereby required, so soon as the trustee or trustees, chosen at the second meeting of the creditors of any insolvent estate in manner aforesaid, have been confirmed, forthwith to appoint the third meeting of the creditors of the insolvent to be holden before himself, or any Resident Magistrate, at such time, and at such place, as he shall deem most expedient for all parties concerned, for the purpose of receiving proof of debts and for receiving the report of the trustee or trustees as to the condition of the insolvent estate, and for giving directions to the trustee or trustees as to the management thereof; and the said trustee or trustees shall give notice of the time and place at which, and of the purposes for which, such meeting is to be held, in the same advertisement in the Government Gazette, in which notice is hereinbefore required to be given by them to the creditors, of their confirmation as trustee or trustees.

79. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the said commissioner, when such shall be elected as aforesaid, to superintend the proceedings of the trustee, give his advice and assistance in the management of the estate, inquire from time to time, into the situation thereof, and of every part thereof, examine all the accounts of the trustee regarding the said estate, require from the trustee all such reasonable explanation or information as he or they may, from time to time, demand, touching any matter or thing belonging to the administration of the said estate, and assist the Master of the Supreme Court in assessing the compensation to be paid to the trustee.

Power of commissioner to call meetings and report.

80. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the commissioner, to call at any time, a general meeting of the creditors, and to make to such meeting such reports or representations in regard to any matter or question respecting the administration of the insolvent estate as he shall deem necessary or expedient; and the trustee shall pursue the directions of the greater part of the creditors attending such meeting: Provided always, that twenty-eight days' notice at the least, shall be given of every such meeting, and of the purpose thereof, in the Government Gazette.

Getting in of debts by the trustee.

82. And be it enacted, that the trustee or trustees shall, after being confirmed, forthwith call in and collect all debts due to the estate, and, for that purpose, they shall, by advertisement in the Government Gazette, summon all debtors to pay, or cause the same to be paid to them at such time and place, as shall be therein appointed for that purpose; and any person neglecting or refusing to make such payment, and being afterwards sued for any such debt, shall, if the said trustee or trustees obtain a judgment against him, and if he shall not show cause, to the satisfaction of the Court awarding such judgment, for such neglect or refusal, pay to the said trustee or trustees double costs of suit, for the benefit of the said estate: and the said publication shall be deemed notice thereof to all persons who may reasonably be presumed to have seen the same. And the said trustee or trustees shall also proceed to set aside, and if necessary, by legal process, all such payments, alienations and pledges, made by any person whose estate shall be sequestrated as insolvent, as are hereinafter particularly described, and declared to be null and void, precisely as if the money, or other property delivered or pledged, had belonged to the said trustee or trustees at the time of the making of such payments, alienations, or pledges respectively.

83. And be it enacted, that every alienation, transfer, gift, cession, delivery, mortgage, or pledge of any goods or effects, movable or immovable, personal or real, made by any insolvent, at a time when it shall be made to appear by proof, that his liabilities fairly calculated exceeded his assets fairly valued, shall, unless the same shall have been made bonâ fide, and upon just and valuable consideration, be null and void. And whenever the immediate and necessary effect of any such alienation, transfer, gift, cession, delivery, mortgage, or pledge, as aforesaid, shall be to cause such an excess of liabilities over assets, then the same, to the extent to which such excess shall have been thus produced, shall be null and void.

Gratuitous alienations by insolvent, i.e. at a time when his assets exceeded his liabilities

84. And be it enacted, that every alienation, transfer, cession, delivery, mortgage, or pledge of any goods or effects, movable or immovable, personal or real, and every payment made by any insolvent to any creditor, such insolvent at the time contemplating <sup>(1)</sup> the sequestration, either voluntary or otherwise, of his estate, and intending thereby to prefer directly or indirectly such creditor before his other creditors, shall be deemed to be an undue preference, and is hereby declared to be null and void. And every such alienation, transfer, cession, delivery, mortgage, or pledge as aforesaid, made by any insolvent to any person whatever, such insolvent at the time contemplating, as aforesaid, the sequestration of his estate, and intending thereby to prefer directly or indirectly any creditor before his other creditors, shall be deemed to be an undue preference of such creditor in so far as he shall have been benefited thereby, and the trustee or trustees shall be entitled to recover the amount or value of such undue preference from the creditor so preferred.

Undue preference
vent.

85. And be it enacted, that every alienation, transfer, cession, delivery, mortgage, or pledge of any goods or effects, movable or immovable, personal or real, and every payment made by any insolvent, with the intention of thereby benefiting any person, who, not being a creditor of such insolvent, would yet have become liable for the amount paid, satisfied, or secured by the insolvent, in case it had not been so paid, satisfied, or secured, either in the character of a surety for such insolvent, or in some character by law analogous thereto, such insolvent at the time contemplating <sup>(1)</sup> the sequestration, either voluntary or otherwise, of his estate, shall be deemed to be an undue preference, and the trustee or trustees shall be entitled to claim and recover from the person so intended to be benefited whatever amount the insolvent shall have paid, satisfied or secured, in discharge or relief of such persons' liability.

Transactions in ordinary course of trade.

86. And be it enacted, that every alienation, transfer, cession, delivery, mortgage or pledge as aforesaid and every payment made by any insolvent to any creditor in the usual and ordinary course of trade or business, shall, primâ facie, be held and taken to have been made or given bonâ fide, and without an intention to give to such creditor any preference, although such insolvent may, at the time, contemplate the sequestration of his estate as insolvent, and in every such case it shall be necessary for the trustee or trustees seeking to set the same aside, to show the existence of some collusive arrangement, mutual understanding, or common consent, between the insolvent and the creditor, the one to give and the other to get a preference over the other creditors of the insolvent, under colour of a transaction in the usual and ordinary course of trade or business.

Collusive payments to creditors under execution before sequestration.

87. And be it enacted, that every payment obtained by any creditor before the making of the order for sequestration, by means or under colour of legal process against the insolvent, shall be deemed an undue preference, and be null and void, when and as often as such payment shall have been obtained or facilitated by connivance of the insolvent, or by collusion between such insolvent and such creditor, such insolvent, when so conniving or colluding contemplating <sup>(1)</sup> the sequestration of his estate, and intending to give such creditor, or allow such creditor to get, a preference above the other creditors of such insolvent.

Forfeiture by creditors where undue preference collusive.

88. And be it enacted, that, in every case in which any person, whether actually a creditor or not, shall be obliged, by virtue of the eighty-fourth or eighty-fifth or eighty-seventh sections of this Ordinance, to restore or repay, as the case may be, for the benefit of the insolvent estate, any alienation, transfer, cession, delivery, mortgage or pledge, or any payment as having been an undue preference, such person shall not be allowed to claim or prove as a

Ord. 6. -1843.

89. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the trustee or trustees of any insolvent estate, in any suit or action which he may cause to be instituted against any person for the restoration or repayment of any matter, money or thing alleged to have been given or paid by the insolvent by way of undue preference, to claim amongst other things, that the defendant in such suit or action may be declared by the judgment of the Court in which such suit or action shall be pending, to have forfeited, in regard to the insolvent estate, the amount in which he shall be found to have been unduly preferred by reason of the collusive arrangement, mutual understanding, or common consent, in the last preceding section mentioned, and the question of such forfeiture shall be tried and determined together with the other questions in the case. And in case it shall not be necessary to institute any suit or action against persons who shall be alleged by the trustee or trustees to have been unduly preferred, the right of any such last-mentioned persons to prove a debt in respect of the amount or value of the matter, money, or thing by them restored or repaid shall, if disputed, be determined in manner and form as is hereinbefore provided for the regulation of the proof of debts.

How question as to forfeiture in 88th section may be raised.

90. And be it enacted, that in case any creditor of any insolvent shall have received from such insolvent an undue preference, but under circumstances which do not, by force and virtue of the eighty-eighth section of this Ordinance, occasion a forfeiture of the value or amount of such preference, then in case such creditor shall have received such undue preference in respect of any bill of exchange or promissory note, with recourse on other parties, which was payable by the insolvent, and held by such creditors, or in any respect of any debt of the insolvent for which such creditor had any security, which, by reason of the act of the insolvent constituting the undue preference, such creditor has bonâ fide given up, discharged, or in law, precluded himself from enforcing, such creditor shall not be liable to restore or repay to the trustee or trustees the value or amount of such undue preference, unless the trustee will indemnify and save him harmless in respect of whatever loss such creditor would sustain in case he were unconditionally condemned and adjudged to restore the value or amount aforesaid, and which loss such creditor would not have sustained in case he had never received from the insolvent the payment or other satisfaction constituting such preference.

If no forfeiture under 88th section, creditor before restoring preference to be indemnified as to his recourse on third parties.

91. And be it enacted, that if any person shall lawfully, bonâ fide, and without notice, purchase or acquire any bills of exchange, promissory notes, or other securities for money, or any goods or effects, movable or immovable, personal or real, which have been alienated, transferred, given, ceded, or delivered by any insolvent, under circumstances or in a manner declared by any of the preceding or succeeding sections of this Ordinance to be null and void, from any person to whom such bills, notes, goods, or effects, were so alienated, transferred, given, ceded, or delivered, by any true bargain or agreement upon just and valuable consideration, nothing contained in this Ordinance shall extend or be construed to extend to annul or affect any right which any such person has lawfully, bonâ fide, and without notice, purchased or acquired in such bills or notes, goods, or effects. But in all such cases the persons to whom the same were alienated, transferred, given, ceded, or delivered by the insolvent, shall be bound and obliged to pay the true value of all such goods and effects, by them disposed of to the third party, to the trustee or trustees of the insolvent estate for the benefit of the creditors thereof.

Collusive and fraudulent discharges of debt given by insolvent.

92. (1) And be it enacted, that all acquittances, surrenders, or discharges of any just debt, or of any security for any just debt, or other matter or thing, payment or delivery of which has not been actually and bonâ fide received, made by any insolvent while contemplating the sequestration of his estate, having the effect to deprive his creditors of the benefit of any debt or other matter or thing, shall be, and are hereby declared to be, as against the trustee or trustees of such insolvent, null and void. And in every case in which the person accepting from the insolvent any such acquittance, surrender or discharge as aforesaid had, at the time of accepting the same, actual knowledge or reasonable notice that the effect of the same, if undetected, would be to deprive the creditors in the insolvent estate of the debt or other matter or thing in question, such person, shall besides making good such debt, matter or thing to the trustee or trustees of the insolvent estate, be also bound and obliged to pay to such trustee or trustees a further sum equal to the value of the debt or other matter or thing, originally due and owing, and wrongfully acquitted, surrendered or discharged, or attempted so to be.

Bona fide payments by debtors to insolvent after the order of sequestration.

95. (1) And be it enacted, that every provision hereinbefore contained relative to what shall be deemed to be undue preferences made by persons contemplating the sequestration of their own estates, and to the avoiding of the same, and to the forfeiture, under certain circumstances, of the amount of every such preference, shall be deemed and taken to apply, mutatis mutandis, to preferences given out of the assets of the estates which they administer by persons legally invested with the administration of the estates of deceased persons, and of persons legally or actually incapable of the administration of their estates, when such persons, so invested, contemplating the sequestration of the estates which they administer and intend to prefer some one or more creditors of any such estate before the other creditors thereof.

96. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the trustee or trustees of the insolvent estate of any deceased person, or of the insolvent estate of any person legally or actually incapable of the administration of his estate, to demand and recover either from the person legally administering such estate before the sequestration thereof, and by whom any such undue preference shall have been given, out of the assets of such estate, or from the person to whom, or for whose benefit, such undue preference shall have been given, the value or amount of such undue preference, or such trustee or trustees may sue such persons successively. Provided always, that it shall not be competent for any such trustee or trustees to require the restoration or repayment of such undue preference, or of the amount thereof, from both such persons as aforesaid concurrently, or to recover from them both, when sued successively, more than the single value or amount of such undue preference, together with the costs and charges of such trustee or trustees.

105. And be it enacted, that no person from whom any insolvent shall have purchased any property, movable or immovable, personal or real, and who shall have delivered or caused or permitted such property to be delivered to such insolvent, shall be entitled either to claim such property being in the sequestered estate, or to claim to be preferred, in any way, for the price or value thereof, by reason alone that such property was sold by such person to such insolvent without any period having been stipulated, until the expiration of which period the price should not be payable, or upon any actual agreement or tacit understanding that such price should be paid or payable forthwith. Provided that nothing herein contained shall be deemed or taken to alter or affect any previous law in force in this Colony, in regard to the right of a vendor to rescind any sale and reclaim his property on account of fraud and circumvention practised upon him by the purchaser, except only in so far as the matters aforesaid hereby declared to be of themselves not sufficient to entitle any such vendor to claim again property sold and delivered, shall have been deemed to amount to, or to be conclusive evidence of, such fraud

Offer of composition by or for insolvent.

106. And be it enacted, that, if at the third public meeting of the creditors, appointed by the Master of the Supreme Court, as aforesaid, or at any subsequent meeting of the creditors assembled together by advertisement in the Government Gazette, stating the purpose of such meeting, the insolvent, or any person on his behalf, shall make an offer of composition, or security for composition, which nine tenths of the creditors in number and value assembled at such meeting shall agree to accept, the trustee or trustees shall forthwith call another meeting for the purpose of deciding upon such offer, whereof at least forty-two days' notice shall be given by advertisement in the Government Gazette, specifying the time, place, and purpose of such meeting; and if, at such second meeting, nine tenths in number and value of the creditors then present shall also agree to accept such offer, then upon such acceptance being certified to the Supreme Court, by the Master of the said Court, and upon oath of the insolvent, that he has made a full and fair surrender of his estate, and has not granted or promised any preference or security, or made or promised any payment, or entered into any secret or collusive agreement or transaction, to obtain the concurrence of any creditor to the said offer of composition, it shall be lawful for the said Court, upon motion, to pronounce, if it should so think fit, a decree discharging the insolvent from all debts due by him at the time his estate was surrendered or adjudged to be sequestrated, and from all claims and demands proved or hereby made provable or claimable against his estate, and declaring the sequestration at an end, and the insolvent re-invested with his estate, but reserving, however, always the claims of the creditors for such composition, or security for composition, as may have been agreed for and be still unexecuted. Provided that at least twenty-one days' notice of the day on which such motion as aforesaid is to be made shall have been given by advertisement in the Government Gazette, and that the said Court shall hear any objection which may be made by any creditor against the pronouncing of such decree, and shall determine thereupon as the justice of the case shall require. Provided also, that if the creditors present at any such second meeting as aforesaid, and agreeing to the offer of composition, do not amount in number and value to four fifths in number and value of the whole of the creditors who have proved debts against the insolvent estate, then the acceptance of such offer of composition by at least four fifths in number and value of such lastmentioned creditors must be certified to the said Court by the said Master at the time of the making of the said motion. And provided, that nothing in this section contained shall be construed so as to affect the right of any creditor entitled by law to be paid in preference, in so far as such creditor shall be so entitled, unless such creditor shall expressly consent to give up his preference, and be bound by the said composition, and no creditor by accepting any such offer of composition shall be deprived of his right to claim from any person bound to him as surety for the insolvent, the balance of the debt secured. And provided that the Court aforesaid shall not, in any case, pronounce the decree aforesaid until it shall be satisfied that no injury or injustice will thereby be done to any person who has been allowed by the said Court to enter a claim upon the insolvent estate, and who shall not, at the time of the making of such motion as aforesaid, have yet proved his debt, and until the said Court shall have made or caused to be made inquiry, by taking the oath of the insolvent, or otherwise, whether there are not other creditors having just and lawful debts and claims against the estate of such insolvent, and who, by reason of absence from the Colony or other causes, may not have proved or claimed against the said estate. And provided that if, upon such inquiry, it shall appear to the said Court that there are such just and lawful debts and claims, it shall not be competent for the said Court to pronounce such decree as aforesaid, until it shall have been certified to such Court by the said Master that there has been paid to or deposited with him, or to or with some other person or persons with his approbation, for and on account of such other just and lawful creditors as aforesaid, whatever amount, according to the terms of the composition, they would have been entitled to receive in case they had proved their debts. And provided that no sum of money or other matter or thing which shall be impounded or secured for any person who has entered a claim upon the insolvent estate, or any such creditor as last aforesaid, shall, after any discharge of the insolvent as in this section provided, revert to such insolvent, but the same, in case the person or persons on whose behalf it was so impounded or secured, shall not, within such reasonable time as the Supreme Court shall fix, prove title to and claim the same, shall be ordered by the said Court, upon the motion of any person interested, to be divided ratably amongst the remaining creditors and claimants, the costs of the motion last mentioned being first deducted and paid to the party making the same.

107. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the Supreme Court, upon the application of any insolvent, to release, if it should so think fit, the estate of such insolvent from sequestration, whenever it shall be certified to the said Court by the Master of the said Court, that all creditors who have proved debts or entered claims against such estate, have testified in writing, their consent to such release, or whenever it shall be certified by the said Master that all the creditors who have proved debts or entered claims as aforesaid, have been paid, or have had tendered to, or deposited for them, as the case may be, the full amount, as well principal as interest, of their several demands. Provided that no such application to release any such estate from sequestration under the provisions of this section shall be capable of being granted until after the third meeting of creditors as hereinbefore mentioned shall have been held. And provided that it shall be lawful for the said Court, before granting any such application as aforesaid, to make or cause to be made such inquiry relative to the existence of other just and lawful creditors who have neither proved nor claimed as is in the last preceding section mentioned, and thereupon to grant or refuse such application, and that either absolutely or conditionally, as to the said Court shall seem just. And provided that no such release as aforesaid shall be construed to be a discharge of the insolvent, or to alter or affect, in any way, the rights of any creditors of any such insolvent who have neither proved debts nor entered claims upon the insolvent estate, which rights shall be judged of after any such release exactly as if such estate had never been surrendered.

Account of estate to be rendered by trustee to the master.

108. (1) And be it enacted, that the trustee or trustees of any insolvent estate shall, as soon as may be, and not later than six months after their appointment, unless upon application to the Supreme Court, upon sufficient cause to the satisfaction of the said Court, further time be given for that purpose, frame and lay before the Master of the said Court, an exact account and balance of the said estate, containing the proceeds of all sales and debts then collected, and an account of all debts still outstanding, and an inventory of all property and effects still unsold, and also all debts due by the said estate; and shall also form a general plan for distribution of the assets of the said estate, specifying, first, such creditors as are preferent by law in the order of their legal preference, and, secondly, the concurrent creditors, and as nearly as may be, the probable balance which will remain for division amongst them. And when and as often as the usual place of residence of any insolvent shall be in any district of this Colony, other than Cape Town and the district thereof, or the Cape Division, the trustee or trustees of that insolvent shall, before laying the account and plan aforesaid before the said Master, lay the same before the Resident Magistrate of such district, in whose office it shall remain for the inspection of creditors, for at least seven days, and every such Resident Magistrate shall cause to be affixed in some public place in or about his said office, a list of all insolvent estates in which such account and plan as aforesaid remains, for the time being, for inspection, together with the date of its intended transmission.

Plan of distribution.

Account and plan to be exhibited in magistrate's office.

109. And be it enacted, that, as soon as the Master shall receive from the trustees any such account of the estate and plan for distribution, the same shall lie open in his office, for the inspection of the creditors, a reasonable time, to be appointed by the said Master, not being less than fourteen days from the advertisement thereof, according to the distance from Cape Town of the residence of any creditor who has proved a debt against the said estate; and the said trustee or trustees shall cause notice thereof to be given in the Government Gazette, and that the Supreme Court will thereupon be moved to confirm and allow the said account and distribution of the estate.

Ord. 6--1843.

Plan and account also to lie in master's office.

110. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the insolvent or any party interested in the estate under sequestration, and for any creditor who may conceive himself aggrieved by the said plan of distribution, within the time aforesaid, to enter his objection in writing with the said Master, stating the grounds thereof; and, also, it shall and may be lawful for the Supreme Court to permit such objection to be entered at any time before the final confirmation of the said plan upon sufficient cause to be shown to the satisfaction of the said Court, and upon such terms as the said Court shall impose.

Objections to plan of distribution.

111. And be it enacted, that any person objecting to the said account or plan of distribution shall apply to the Supreme Court, on motion, calling upon the trustees, and also upon the party whose interest might be affected thereby, to show cause why the said plan should not be altered or amended, as the case may be, and thereupon it shall and may be lawful for the said Court, upon hearing the said parties, to make such order thereon, as to the said Court shall seem fit: Provided that, when any alteration or amendment shall be ordered in the said plan, whereby the interest of any party who has not made appearance in the said Court shall be affected, the same shall again lie open for inspection of the creditors, and notice thereof shall be given as aforesaid.

Disposal of objections.

Exhibition of plan after alterations upon it.

112. And be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for the trustee or trustees, after the expiration of the time appointed for the inspection of the said account and plan of distribution, and no objection being entered thereto, or if any objection has been stated, after the Court has made order thereon, as aforesaid, to apply to the Supreme Court, on motion, praying that the said plan may be allowed and confirmed by the Court, and thereupon it shall and may be lawful for the said Court to allow and confirm the same; and such allowance and confirmation shall have the effect of a final sentence of the said Court except against such creditors as shall afterwards be admitted by the said Court, in manner hereinbefore provided, to prove their debts, and rank upon the said estate at any time before the final distribution thereof.

Confirmation of account and plan.

Scheme of division.

114. And be it enacted that if it shall, from the nature and circumstances of the insolvent estate, be found impracticable to frame the plan of distribution aforesaid, so as to arrange the distribution according thereto, of the whole of the insolvent estate, then the trustee or trustees shall, as soon as may be, after the allowance and confirmation of the said plan, and not later than six months after such allowance and confirmation, unless upon application to the Supreme Court, upon sufficient cause to the satisfaction of the said Court, further time be given for that purpose, frame and lay before the Master a scheme of division which shall contain an account of such of the matters hereinbefore required in regard to the account and plan of distribution in the one hundred and eighth section of this Ordinance mentioned, as the then state and condition of the assets of the insolvent estate shall permit, and shall duly apportion the funds in hand amongst the creditors, and the like proceedings in all respects shall be had and taken relative to the said scheme of division as are hereinbefore prescribed in regard to the said account and plan of distribution, and after the allowance and confirmation of such scheme of division, the dividends declared thereby shall be distributed, and there shall be the like remedy as aforesaid for obtaining the same. And if it shall happen that the whole of any insolvent estate shall not be included in one such scheme of division as aforesaid, then as soon as may be after the framing of the same, but not later (except as hereinbefore excepted) than six months after the date on which the six months above fixed for the framing of the first scheme of division shall have expired, a second such scheme of division shall, in like manner and form be framed and proceeded on, and so on from six months to six months until the whole estate shall have been wound up, and finally distributed.

Successive schemes of division.

Advertisement of dividends.

115. And be it enacted, that the trustee or trustees shall, whenever any dividend is payable, give a public notice in the Government Gazette, stating that such dividend is in course of payment, and calling upon all creditors entitled thereto, to apply for, and receive the same; and in case any dividend or dividends shall remain unclaimed for the space of six months from the date of such notice, then it shall be the duty of the trustee or trustees, should he or they still continue in office, or of the Master of the Supreme Court, should the said trustee or trustees have been discharged, to pay such unclaimed dividend or dividends into the guardian fund to the credit of the parties entitled, there to be subject to the same provisions, in all respects, which are provided by the Ordinance No. 105, bearing date the 5th of July, 1833, in regard to moneys placed in the said fund belonging to persons absent from the Colony. And if any trustee or trustees shall neglect to pay, in manner aforesaid, into the said fund, by the hands of the said Master, any dividend remaining unclaimed for the space and term aforesaid, such trustee or trustees shall forfeit and pay, for the benefit of the Colonial Treasury, any sum not exceeding the amount of the dividend or dividends unduly retained, which shall be awarded by the Supreme Court, and it shall be lawful for the said Master to summon any such trustee or trustees to show cause before the said Court, why he or they should not be adjudged to pay to him the amount of any such dividend or dividends, as also the fine or forfeiture aforesaid, and the said Court shall summarily make such decision thereon as to it shall seem meet. And the said Master shall be, at all times, after the confirmation and allowance of the plan of distribution, authorized and entitled to call upon such trustee or trustees to show, by vouchers or other sufficient proof, what number of the dividends payable are actually paid; and for the purpose of the penalty hereby imposed, any neglect or refusal to produce such vouchers, or other sufficient evidence to prove the payment of any given dividend, shall amount to prima facie proof that the same is still unclaimed. And it shall be lawful for the Supreme Court, in case of disobedience, by any such trustee or trustees, to any order or decision of such Court, made by virtue of this, or of the one hundred and thirteenth section, to direct the sum in question to be levied by attachment and sale of the goods of the offender, or otherwise to commit such offender to prison until he shall obey such order, or until the said Court shall order his liberation, or otherwise, to apply both remedies, and that either concurrently or successively, as the Court shall see fit.

116. And be it enacted, that when any trustee desires to resign his office, or so soon as the plan of distribution of the insolvent estate has been confirmed, it shall be lawful for such trustee to apply to the Supreme Court, by motion, for leave to resign his office, and to be discharged and acquitted of the said trust; and, if no valid objection be stated, and if the Court be satisfied that the trustee has complied with the regulations of this Ordinance, so far as regards him, his application may be granted by the said Court; but if any objection be stated thereto, the Court shall proceed to determine the same in a summary manner, and shall make such order thereon as they shall think fit. And if the application of the trustee for leave to resign be granted, the said Court shall thereupon make such order as they shall see fit, for the preservation and administration of the estate, until a new trustee be chosen and confirmed, and for the discharge and acquittance of the said trustee, and for the security and payment of any unclaimed dividends to the parties entitled to the same. Provided, that at least six weeks' notice of the day on which such motion is to be made shall have been given by advertisement in the Government Gazette; and if no objection be made thereto by any of the creditors of the insolvent, the said Court shall make an order, allowing such certificate; but, if any objection shall be made by any creditor, the said Court shall judge and determine thereon, and shall refuse or suspend the said certificate, or allow the same absolutely or conditionally, as the justice of the case shall require. Provided always that where in consequence of the goods and effects of the insolvent being under the value of seventy-five pounds sterling, the proceedings in such case directed by the thirty-second clause of this Ordinance shall have taken place, it shall be lawful for such insolvent at any time, not being less than three months after the said first meeting, to apply to his creditors for a certificate as aforesaid.

124. And be it enacted, that at any time after the plan for distribution of any insolvent estate has been confirmed in manner hereinbefore mentioned, or after the distribution of the said estate has been directed to be made under the provisions of the twenty-fifth clause of this Ordinance and before the insolvent shall have obtained his certificate and allowance thereof, it shall and may be lawful for the trustees, or any creditor of the said estate, to apply to the Supreme Court or any Circuit Court, by motion, for the process of the said Court for the civil imprisonment<sup>(2)</sup> of the said insolvent; provided the said insolvent shall first have been duly summoned to appear before such Court on the day whenever the said motion shall be made, to show cause why process of civil imprisonment should not be issued against him, and thereupon, and upon proof, to the satisfaction of the said Court, that the said estate

Provided that, when the application for civil imprisonment has been made by one or more creditors, and the said Court shall suspend the same upon the condition of the insolvent paying any sum of money, such payment shall be made to the trustees or to the Master of the Court, as the case may be, for the benefit of the creditor or creditors making the application, and of such other creditors as shall, before distribution, claim to be admitted to a share thereof.

Ord. 6--1843.

125. And be it enacted that at any time after the plan for the distribution of any insolvent estate has been confirmed in manner hereinbefore mentioned, or after the distribution of the said estate has been directed to be made under the provisions of the twenty-fifth clause of this Ordinance, and before the insolvent shall have obtained his certificate and the allowance thereof, it shall and may be lawful for any insolvent to apply to the Supreme or any Circuit Court, by motion, for a decree of such Court, declaring such insolvent not liable to process of civil imprisonment for or in respect of any debt, claim or demand, proved or provable, or in any manner claimable against the insolvent estate. Provided that at least six weeks' notice of the day on which such motion is to be made shall have been given by advertisement in the Government Gazette; and upon the making of such motion, any creditor of the insolvent estate who has not been fully paid and satisfied, may be heard against making the said decree, and such Court having regard to the conformity of the insolvent to the provisions of this Ordinance, and to his conduct, as well before as since the sequestration of his estate, and to his ability to pay from time to time or otherwise any sum or sums of money for the benefit of such creditors as aforesaid, and, generally to the justice of the case, shall judge of any objection against the making of such decree, and either find the insolvent entitled thereto, and make the same, or refuse or suspend the making thereof, or annex such conditions thereto as circumstances shall render just. And every such decree declaring any insolvent not liable to the process of civil imprisonment in respect of any of the matters aforesaid, shall have the same effect in protecting his person from such process as his certificate and the allowance thereof would have had. But no such decree shall have any effect whatever, either upon the assets of the insolvent estate, or upon the right and power of any such creditor to proceed, in manner and form as hereinafter mentioned, against the future acquired property of such insolvent (so long as he shall remain without his certificate and the allowance thereof), in order to obtain payment of his debt. Execution against insolvent for deficiency of estate.

127. <sup>(1)</sup> And be it enacted, that in every case in which any insolvent shall not have obtained the allowance of his certificate as hereinbefore mentioned, it shall and may be lawful for the trustee or trustees of the insolvent estate, should any such be, or for the Master of the Supreme Court, or for any creditor of the insolvent estate, to whom it shall appear by such account and plan as aforesaid or any such scheme of division as aforesaid, that any portion of his debt is still due and owing, to apply to the Supreme Court or any Circuit Court, by motion, of which notice shall be given to said insolvent, for leave to issue execution against such insolvent, for any sum not exceeding the whole amount of the deficiency which shall at the time of making such application exist in the insolvent estate; and the said Court, upon being satisfied by affidavit or otherwise, that a certain deficiency does so exist, and that there are reasonable grounds for believing that there are assets belonging to the insolvent capable of satisfying the same, wholly or in part, shall allow a writ of execution to be issued, and such writ of execution shall be executed in the like manner as writs of execution issued upon judgments of the said Court, and every attachment or levy made thereunder, and every incident belonging thereto, as well in regard to the right of other writs of execution lodged in the hands of the Sheriff, or other proper officer of the law, to share in the proceeds levied and made, as otherwise, shall be judged of upon the same principles which do or shall by law belong to ordinary writs of execution; and the proceeds of every execution levied under the provisions of this section shall be paid by the Sheriff or other proper officer of the law to the trustee or trustees of the insolvent estate, if such there be, or, if there be none such, to the Master of the Supreme Court, and every such payment by the said Sheriff or other proper officer of the law shall be deemed in law to be the distribution of the proceeds of the writ

And every such inventory shall be subscribed by the person making or causing the same to be made and by the witnesses aforesaid.

17. And be it further enacted, that if any person required and directed under and by virtue of the provisions of the fourteenth and sixteenth sections of this Ordinance, to make or cause to be made, an inventory of any estate, goods, or effects, shall, for any fraudulent purpose, make a false inventory thereof, every such offender being convicted thereof, shall be liable, at the discretion of the Court before which he shall be so convicted, to punishment by imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any period not exceeding two years, or by fine, or by both, as the said Court shall award.

And every such Resident Magistrate shall cause a copy or copies of every such inventory so delivered or transmitted to him to be made, and shall authenticate such copy or copies with his signature, and shall transmit the original of every such inventory to the office of the said Master: Provided always, that when such inventory as aforesaid shall have been made by the survivor of two spouses, to whom the predeceasing spouse shall by will have lawfully bequeathed all the share of the said joint estate belonging to such predeceasing spouse, or whom the predeceasing spouse shall by will or other lawful instrument have appointed the executor of his or her will, and the tutor of his or her minor children, and the administrator (boedelhouder) of the said joint estate during the minority of such children, then and in every such case it shall and may be lawful for such spouse, if he or she shall think fit so to do, to transmit every such inventory as aforesaid, sealed up, to the office of the Master of the Supreme Court, or to the Resident Magistrate of the district respectively, in manner hereinbefore provided. And the said Master shall, at the meeting so to be holden at his office, or upon receiving the report of such Resident Magistrate, appoint such person or persons as to him shall seem fit and proper to be executor or executors dative of the estate of the deceased, and shall grant letters of administration accordingly, unless it shall appear to him necessary or expedient to postpone such appointment, and to call another or other such meeting or meetings as aforesaid. And provided also, that when it shall appear to the satisfaction of the said Master that the estate of any such deceased person as is hereinbefore mentioned is manifestly insolvent, then and in every such case it shall not be necessary for the said Master to take any such proceedings as aforesaid for the appointment of an executor or executors dative, and no such proceedings shall by him be taken for that purpose; and it shall and may be lawful for him, and he is hereby declared and required to take the necessary proceedings for having such estate placed under sequestration as insolvent, under and by virtue of the provisions of the third section of the Ordinance No. 64.

And be it further enacted, that nothing herein contained shall extend or be construed to extend to prevent any testamentary executor or executors of any testator from assuming any other person or persons as executor or executors of such testator, under and by virtue of any power for that purpose to him or them committed by such testator, by his will, or by any other deed duly executed by him: Provided always, that no person shall be entitled or qualified to act as assumed executor until letters of administration shall have been granted to him as such by the Master of the Supreme Court, who is hereby directed and required to grant the same, on production to him of the will or other deed by which the assumption of such executor is authorized, and of the deed by which such testamentary executor or executors has or have assumed such person as executor. having died or become incapacitated to act as such, or having been removed from his office by the decree of any competent Court, there shall not remain, for the administration of such estate, any executor whatever, or so many executors, either testamentary or assumed, as by the provisions of the deed by which such executors were appointed or permitted to be assumed, shall be required to form a quorum of executors for the administration of such estate, and when it shall happen that any executor dative shall, after letters of administration have been granted to him, die or become incapacitated, or be removed in manner aforesaid, then and in every such case proceedings, in order to the appointment of an executor dative, in place of such executor so dying or becoming incapacitated or removed, shall be had and taken by the Master of the Supreme Court, in like manner in all respects as is hereinbefore provided by the provisions of the twenty-first, twenty-second, and twenty-third sections of this Ordinance.

Ord. 104—1833.

26. And be it further enacted, that letters of administration granted to any person as testamentary executor, shall at all times be subject to be revoked and annulled by the decree of the Supreme or of any Circuit Court on the proof to the satisfaction of such Court that the deed in respect of which such letters have been granted to such persons is null, or has been revoked, either wholly or in so far as relates to the nomination and appointment of such executor: and that letters of administration granted to any person as executor dative shall be at all times subject to be revoked and annulled by the order of the Master of the Supreme Court, on production to him of any valid deed, by which any other, who shall then be legally capable and qualified, and who shall consent to act as executor, has been legally nominated and appointed testamentary executor to the estate which such executor dative has been appointed to administer: Provided always, that, if the non-production of such deed, prior to letters of administration having been granted to the executor dative has been owing to the fault or negligence of the person therein appointed testamentary executor, such person shall be personally liable for all expenses which have been incurred in respect of and with reference to the appointment of the executor dative.

And every such executor, either testamentary or dative, shall forthwith cause every such inventory and additional inventory to be transmitted to the office of the said Master. And when any such additional inventory shall be so transmitted by any executor dative, he shall find such further security as aforesaid as shall be required of him: Provided always, that when the person by whom any testamentary executor has been appointed shall, by any deed duly executed by him, have directed that such testamentary executor shall not transmit to the office of the said Master any such inventory or additional inventory as aforesaid, then and in every such case no such executor shall be required,—and that the survivor of any two spouses, married in community of property, to whom the predeceasing spouse shall by will have lawfully bequeathed all the share of the said joint estate belonging to such predeceasing spouse, or whom the predeceasing spouse shall by will or other lawful instrument have appointed the executor of his or her will, and the tutor of his or her minor children, and the administrator (boedelhouder) of the said joint estate during the minority of such children, shall not in any case be required,—to transmit to the office of the said Master, or to produce any such inventory as aforesaid, except when an order for the production of the same shall have been made by the Supreme Court, or any judge thereof, on sufficient cause for the production of the same being shown by the Master, or by some person having an interest in the said joint estate; anything to the contrary herein contained notwithstanding.

29. And be it further enacted, that if previously to letters of administration being granted by the Master of the Supreme Court to any executor or executors, testamentary or dative, for the administration of any estate, any person shall take upon himself to administer, distribute, or in any wise dispose of such estate or any part thereof, except in so far as may be absolutely necessary for the safe custody or preservation thereof, or for providing a suitable funeral for the deceased, or for the subsistence of the family or household or livestock left by the deceased, or if any person to whom letters of administration have been granted either as executor testamentary or dative shall administer, distribute, or in any wise dispose of any property or effects belonging to the estate of which he is the executor, and which shall not have been contained in the inventory or inventories of such estate lodged in the office of the said Master, previously to the granting of the said letters of administration, or shall not be contained in any additional inventory or inventories made by him and transmitted by him to the said office, in terms of the provisions of the twenty-eighth section of this Ordinance; every such person shall thereupon and in respect and by reason of such undue administration, distribution, or disposal of any such estate or any part thereof become and be personally liable to pay to the creditors and legatees of the deceased all debts due by the deceased at the time of his death, or which have thereafter become due by his estate, and all legacies left by the deceased, in so far as the proceeds and assets of such estate shall be insufficient for the full payment of such debts or legacies: Provided always, that when any person who shall be sued for the payment of any debt or legacy which he shall have rendered himself personally liable to pay in manner aforesaid, shall prove to the satisfaction of the Court before which he shall be sued, that the true amount and value of the property which has actually been unduly administered, distributed, or disposed of by him, did not exceed a certain sum, and that his administration, distribution, or disposal of the same was not fraudulent, then and in every such case such person shall only be personally liable for the amount of such sum, or for such part thereof as he shall fail to prove has been distributed or disposed of in such manner and for such purposes as by law the same ought to have been distributed or disposed of, and for the amount of the costs by him incurred in and concerning such suit, as well as for the amount of the taxed costs incurred in and concerning such suit by the plaintiff therein, notwithstanding that by reason of such person's personal liability have been restricted in manner aforesaid such plaintiff shall not have recovered from such person any part of the debt or legacy sued for.

30. And be it further enacted, that every executor, whether testamentary or dative, shall so soon as he shall have entered on the administration of any estate, forthwith cause a notice to be published in the Gazette of this Colony, and in such other manner as may be deemed expedient, calling upon the creditors of and all others having claims against the deceased or his estate, to lodge the same with such executor within such period from the date of the publication thereof, as shall be therein specified, not being less than six weeks, or more than four calendar months, as in the particular circumstances of each case shall by such executor be deemed proper.

31. And be it further enacted, that it shall not be lawful for any person who shall have obtained the judgment of any Court against any deceased person in his lifetime, or against his executor or executors, in any suit or action commenced against such executor or executors, or which having been pending against the deceased at the time of his death, shall thereafter have been continued against the executor or executors of such person, to

32. And be it further enacted, that on the expiration of the period notified in the Gazette in manner hereinbefore provided, every such executor or executors as aforesaid shall forthwith proceed to rank, according to their legal order of preference, all such debts and claims against the deceased, or his estate, as have been lodged with them, or of the existence of which they shall have knowledge, and shall pay off and discharge the same so soon as the funds necessary for that purpose shall have been realized out of the estate. And if the proceeds of such estate shall be found to be insufficient for the payment of all the just and valid claims to which it is liable, the executor or executors thereof shall be liable to pay to any person having any such just and valid claim, the amount to which such person would have been entitled to receive in respect of such claim if ranked according to the legal order of preference, in so far as such executor or executors shall have within the said period last-mentioned, or afterwards, at any time when he or they knew of the existence of such claim, paid such amount to any person or persons, the payment of whose claims against the deceased, or his estate, according to the legal order of preference, ought to have been postponed until such just and valid claim as aforesaid had been satisfied; reserving always to such executor or executors recourse against the person or persons to whom payment of their claims may have been improperly made, Provided always, that, when such notice to creditors as aforesaid shall have been duly published as aforesaid no creditor or claimant on the estate of any deceased person, who shall not have lodged the same with the executor or executors within such period as aforesaid, or thereafter before the distribution of the funds of the estate, shall, in respect thereof, be entitled to recover from any person having a just and valid claim against such estate, restitution of any part of such funds which may have been paid to such person in satisfaction thereof, after the expiry of such period, and before the claim of the person seeking such restitution was lodged with the executor or executors, although, if lodged in due time, such last-mentioned claim would, according to the legal order of preference, have been preferent to that of the person to whom such payment had previously been made, nor shall such person have any claim against any executor or executors in respect of any such distribution as aforesaid of the funds of any such estate made by him or them after the expiry of such period as aforesaid, and before the claim of such person shall have been made known to such executor or executors.

33. And be it further enacted, that every executor, whether testamentary or dative, shall so soon as the estate under his administration shall have been fully administered and distributed, lodge with the Master of the Supreme Court, and the Resident Magistrate of the district within which such estate was situated, who shall respectively cause the same to be preserved and registered in their offices for the inspection of all concerned, a full and true account of the whole administration and distribution of such estate.

(<sup>1</sup>) And every person having an interest in such estate, shall and may, at any time after the expiration of six months, from the day on which the letters of administration were granted to such executor or executors, summon him or them to show cause before the Supreme Court, or any Circuit Court, why such account as aforesaid has not been lodged with the said Master and the said Resident Magistrate. And every executor who shall fail to lodge such account as aforesaid, in manner herein provided, and who shall have no lawful and sufficient excuse for such failure, shall by reason thereof forfeit all claim to any fees which he might otherwise be entitled to receive in respect of his administration of such estate.

34. And be it further enacted, that, when any person shall die intestate, whose estate, in so far as situated within this Colony, shall appear to the Master of the Supreme Court to be under the value of forty pounds, then and in every such case the said Master shall and may cause such estate to be administered and distributed according to law by an executor dative, to be by him summarily appointed by letters of administration granted by him for that purpose.

35. And be it further enacted, that none of the provisions of this Ordinance shall extend or apply to the estate, property, or effects actually on board any vessel lying or being in any harbour, port, or place of, or within the limits of this Colony, or the dependencies thereof, and belonging to any person who, being one of the officers or crew of, or passengers by, such vessel, shall die on land within this Colony, or on board of any such vessel while lying or being in any such harbour, port, or place, as aforesaid, unless such person so dying shall at the time of his death have left property situated on land within this Colony, not being wearing apparel, bedding, or other articles of the like nature, or unless it shall be shown to the Supreme Court, or one of the Judges, or the Master thereof, that for the preservation or due administration and distribution of such property, it is necessary or expedient that such property and effects

36. And be it further enacted, that if any person who shall die after the first day of March next, shall by any will of a testamentary nature, unrevoked at the time of his death, have appointed the Orphan Chamber or the Master of the Supreme Court, to be the executor of his estate, then and in every such case such person shall be deemed and taken in law to have died without having appointed any executor, and the like proceedings shall be had and taken for and in respect of the appointment of executors to administer and distribute his estate, as would have been had or taken under and by virtue of the provisions of this Ordinance, if no such deed had ever been executed by such deceased person.

37. And be it further enacted, that the law respecting the duties, powers, rights, relief, and responsibility of executors, and touching and concerning the administration by the survivor of two spouses of the joint estate of such spouses during the minority of the children of the predeceased spouse (boedelhouderschap) in force within this Colony, prior to the passing of this Ordinance, shall, except in so far as the same has been expressly repealed or altered by the provisions of this Ordinance, remain in full force and effect in like manner as if this Ordinance had not been made, any thing to the contrary herein contained notwithstanding: Provided always, that every executor, either testamentary or dative, shall in respect of his administration, distribution, and final settlement of any estate, be entitled to claim, receive, or retain out of the assets of such estate, or from any person who, as heir, legatee, or creditor, shall be entitled to the whole or any part of such estate, such fees only as are specified in the tariff contained in the schedule hereunto annexed, marked C, and shall not be entitled to claim, receive, or retain any other reward or remuneration whatever for his trouble or personal expenses touching or concerning the same.

38. Ord. 104-1883.

39. And be it further enacted, that the Master of the Supreme Court shall cause to be kept in his office a register, containing the names of every executor, either testamentary or dative, to whom any letters of administration shall have been granted, and of every surety for any executor dative. And whenever any order for sequestration shall, under and by virtue of the provisions of the nineteenth section of the Ordinance No. 64, be delivered to the said Master, he shall cause such register to be examined, and if upon such examination it shall appear that the person, whose estate has been placed under sequestration by such order, is either an executor or the surety of an executor, of any estate not previously administered, distributed, and finally settled, the Master shall in the first notice of such sequestration, which shall be published in the Gazette of this Colony, insert a statement of every such estate as aforesaid, of which such insolvent is an executor, or for the executor of which such insolvent is a surety; and specifying whether he is the executor or the surety for the executor of such estate.

AN ACT

For Obliging Executors, Tutors, and Curators to lodge their Accounts.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is necessary and expedient that better provision be made for obliging executors, tutors, and curators to lodge their accounts with the Master of the Supreme Court: Be it enacted by the Governor of this Colony, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly thereof, as follows :—

Executor failing to lodge account of administration with Master within twelve months may be summoned before Supreme Court.

1. As often as any executor, whether testamentary or dative, shall fail or shall have failed to lodge with the Master of the Supreme Court the certain account mentioned in the thirty-third section of the Ordinance No. 104, within the space of twelve months from the day on which letters of administration were granted to such executor, it shall be lawful for the said Master to summon said executor, so in default, to show cause before the Supreme or any Circuit Court why said account has not been so lodged as aforesaid: Provided that the said Master shall, not sooner than three months nor later than one month, before suing out any such summons as aforesaid, apply by letter, to the executor in default requiring him to lodge his account on pain of being summoned to do so under this Act, Provided further that any executor receiving any such application from the said Master, may lay before the said Master such grounds and reasons as he may be able to advance why he has not lodged his account, and the said Master, should such grounds and reasons seem to him sufficient, may grant to such executor such an extension of time for the lodging of such account, as such Master shall under the circumstances deem reasonable, And provided also that if any such executor so in default shall fail to satisfy the said

Master to apply for account previous to suing.

Master may extend time on sufficient cause being shown.

On failure to satisfy Master, summons may be issued, unless a judge's order shall have been obtained.

Master that he ought to receive an extension of time, said Master shall be at liberty to summon such executor to lodge his account, unless such executor shall obtain from the Supreme Court, or some judge thereof, and deliver to such Master an order made upon motion of which the said Master shall get notice, granting to such executor an extension of time within which to lodge his account.

2. Although the Court or Judge aforesaid shall be of opinion that the ground and reasons laid before the said Master, by any executor, who shall be summoned to lodge his account as aforesaid, were such as would have warranted the said Master in granting an extension of time; the said Master shall nevertheless be entitled to his costs in case he shall, before summoning the executor whose grounds and reasons the said Master shall have overruled, and declared insufficient, have allowed such executor sufficient time for enabling him to apply to the Supreme Court or some judge thereof, for such an order as aforesaid, granting to such executor an extension of time.

Master entitled to costs in certain cases where the Supreme Court overrules his decision.

3. Provided always that when the person by whom any testamentary executor has been appointed shall, by any deed duly executed by him, or by any clause in a will or codicil to a will, have directed that such testamentary executor shall not transmit to the office of the said Master an account of the whole administration and distribution of the estate of which he is such executor, then, and in every such case, no such executor shall be required to lodge the same with the said Master of the Supreme Court; except when an order for the production of the same shall have been made by the Supreme Court or any judge thereof, on sufficient cause for the production of the same being shown by the Master, or by some person having an interest in the said joint estate: And that the survivor of two spouses married in community of property, to whom the predeceasing spouse, shall by will have lawfully bequeathed all the share of the said joint estate belonging to such predeceasing spouse, shall by will or other lawful instrument have appointed the executor of his or her will and the tutor of his or her minor children, and the administrator (boedelhouder) of the said joint estate during the minority of such children, shall not in any case be required to transmit or lodge at the office of the said Master any such account as before mentioned, except when an order for the production of the same shall have been made by the Supreme Court, or any judge thereof in manner aforesaid.

Exemptions from obligation to lodge account.

4. The costs adjudged to the said Master upon any summons sued out by him or on his behalf, shall be payable by the executor in default in his individual capacity, and he shall not be at liberty to charge the same to the estate under his administration, unless authorized so to do by the said Supreme Court.

Costs unless otherwise ordered by Supreme Court, to be paid by executor in default.

Preamble.

Persons convicted or accused of such offences in Transvaal or Free State, and found in this Colony may be extradited.

4. A requisition for the surrender of a fugitive criminal for whose apprehension a warrant has been issued in either of the said states, and who is in or is suspected of being in the Colony, shall be made on behalf of the Government of the state seeking extradition of such criminal to the responsible Minister who shall for the time being be the Prime Minister of this Colony. Upon receipt of such requisition the said Minister may by order under his hand signify to any Resident Magistrate or Justice of the Peace that such requisition has been made, and require him to issue his warrant for the apprehension of the fugitive criminal. 5. A warrant for the apprehension of a fugitive criminal, whether accused or convicted of crime, may be issued Proceedings thereupon.

- (1) By a Resident Magistrate or Justice of the Peace on receipt, or upon the publication in the Government Gazette of the said order of the said Minister, and on such evidence as would in his opinion justify the issue of the warrant if the crime had been committed, or the criminal convicted, in this Colony; and
- (2) By a Resident Magistrate or any Justice of the Peace on such information or complaint and such evidence or after such proceeding as would in the opinion of the person

8. In the case of a fugitive criminal accused of the commission of any crime or offence to which this Act applies, if the warrant of the state making the requisition is duly authenticated, and such evidence is produced as (subject to the provisions of this Act) would according to the law of the Colony justify the committal for trial of the prisoner if the crime of which he is accused had been committed in the Colony, the Resident Magistrate shall commit him to prison, but otherwise shall order him to be discharged.

When Magistrates may order committal or discharge.

In the case of a fugitive criminal alleged to have been convicted of the commission of any such crime or offence, if such evidence is produced as (subject to the provisions of this Act) would according to the law of the Colony prove that the prisoner was convicted of such crime, the Resident Magistrate shall commit him to prison, but, otherwise, shall order him to be discharged.

To what gaol committed person to be sent.

9. If the fugitive criminal is committed to prison he shall be committed to the principal gaol of the district, there to await the warrant of the Governor for his surrender. The Resident Magistrate shall forthwith send a certificate of the committal to the said Governor with such report thereon as he may think fit.

Upon committal, Governor may order offenders surrender to state demanding it

10. Upon production of the certificate of committal it shall be lawful for the Governor, by warrant under his hand and the public seal of the Colony, to order the fugitive criminal to be surrendered to such person as may in his opinion be duly authorized by the state from which the requisition for the surrender proceeded, to receive the fugitive criminal, and such fugitive criminal shall be surrendered accordingly.

It shall be lawful for the person to whom such warrant is directed to receive, hold in custody, and convey the criminal mentioned in the warrant within the jurisdiction of the state to which he has been surrendered.

No. 22—1882.

Expenses of detention.

If the criminal escapes out of any custody to which he may be delivered on or in pursuance of such warrant, it shall be lawful to retake him in the same manner as any person accused of any crime against the laws of the Colony may be retaken.

Escape of prisoner from custody.

11. Where any person who shall have been committed under this Act to remain until delivered up pursuant to requisition, shall not be delivered up pursuant thereto within two months after such committal, it shall in every case be lawful for the Supreme Court of this Colony, or for the Court of the Eastern Districts or the High Court of Griqualand respectively, if such person be imprisoned within the limits of either of such last mentioned Courts, upon application by or on behalf of any person so committed, and after notice of the intention to make such application has been given to the Attorney-General, or in case such application be made either to the Court of the Eastern Districts or to the High Court of Griqualand after such notice has been given to the Solicitor-General or to the Crown Prosecutor as the case may be, to order the person so committed to be discharged out of custody unless sufficient cause is shewn to the contrary.

Proceedings in regard to persons committed but not given up within 2 months.

12. Preamble.

WHEREAS an Ordinance was duly made and passed in this Colony on the 17th day of November, 1851, and numbered 5, 1851, entitled "Ordinance to regulate for one year the Dealing in Gunpowder and Firearms:" And whereas by the twenty-seventh section of the said Ordinance it was enacted that the said Ordinance should commence from and after promulgation thereof, in manner and form as in the said section set forth, and should remain and continue in force for one year from the commencement thereof but with the provision nevertheless that it should be lawful for the Governor by proclamation in the Government Gazette to continue the said Ordinance in force for such further space or term not exceeding one year from and after the year aforesaid as the said Governor should deem necessary and determine. And whereas the said Ordinance was promulgated as aforesaid upon the 29th day of November, 1851, and thereupon took effect as law: And, whereas upon the 16th day of April, 1852, a certain other Ordinance, numbered 7, 1852, was duly made and passed in this Colony, entitled: "Ordinance to amend the Ordinance No. 5, 1851, entitled 'Ordinance to regulate for one year the Dealing in Gunpowder and Firearms,' " by which lastmentioned Ordinance all dealings in lead were placed under the like restrictions and alienations as those which by the Ordinance aforesaid, No. 5, 1851, had been and were provided in regard to firearms; And whereas

ACT

For Enabling the Harbour Board of Mossel Bay to levy certain Wharfage Dues.

Preamble.

WHEREAS the Board of Commissioners for the Harbour of Mossel Bay, appointed under and by virtue of the Ordinance No. 21, 1847, entitled "Ordinance for Improving the Ports, Harbours, and Roadsteads of this Colony," have caused an estimate to be made of the cost of constructing certain works calculated to promote the safe and convenient anchorage of ships and landing and shipping of goods in the said harbour: And whereas it is estimated by the said board, and by the engineers and others who have by desire of the said board considered the subject of the said works, that a sum not exceeding seven thousand pounds will be sufficient to defray the cost of constructing or completing the said works and also any expense which the said board may incur in taking over (should it see fit so to do) a certain jetty already existing in the said harbour, which sum, together with all interest to become due thereon when borrowed, will, as it is estimated, be paid off within fifteen years out of the wharfage dues to be levied under this Act: Be it enacted by the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly thereof, as follows:—

Harbour board may raise money on debentures.

1. It shall be lawful for the said board to borrow and take up from time to time, upon interest, such sum or sums of money, not exceeding seven thousand pounds in the whole, as may be necessary for constructing such works in or at Mossel Bay as the said board shall judge fit to be constructed; and the provisions of the sixth and seventh sections of the Ordinance No. 21, 1847, shall, except as hereinafter excepted, apply to all such sums of money as aforesaid, precisely as if this Act were the vote or resolution of the former Legislative Council of this Colony in the said sections mentioned: Provided that the Governor aforesaid shall, in regard to the matters in the said seventh section of the said Ordinance mentioned, act with the advice of the Executive Council of the Colony, instead of with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council in the said section mentioned: And provided, also, that the word "deed" in the said section mentioned shall include the sort of security or engagement commonly called a debenture.

2. It shall be lawful for the said board, and it is hereby authorized, to levy or cause to be levied upon goods, articles, matters, or things landed or shipped in Mossel Bay, the several dues or rates set forth in the tariff contained in the schedule to this Act; and the fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, and nineteenth sections of the Ordinance aforesaid, No. 21, 1847, shall apply to such dues or rates precisely as if the said dues or rates had been tolls or rates approved of and proclaimed by the Governor of the Colony, with the advice and consent of the former Legislative Council, whilst it existed, and had been by the said Governor, with the said last mentioned advice and consent, declared to be payable in regard to every article, matter, or thing landed or shipped in any part of Mossel Bay.

Harbour board may levy wharfage dues on goods landed or shipped.

3. The person by whom any goods, articles, matters, or things chargeable by the tariff aforesaid, upon the value thereof, shall be or be about to be landed or shipped in Mossel Bay, or his known agent, shall be bound to state to the principal officer of Customs at Mossel Bay, who shall be entitled to demand and receive the dues or rates payable thereon, the value thereof; and if it shall appear to the said officer that the same are not valued according to the actual value thereof, then the said officer may require the person who shall have landed or shipped, or be about to land or to ship any goods, articles, matters, or things to make and subscribe a declaration, which declaration shall be in substance in the form in the second schedule to this Act set forth; and the value stated in such declaration shall be the value upon which dues shall be paid: Provided that it shall be lawful for such officer, as often as it shall be made to appear to him that the value of any goods, articles, matters, or things landed in Mossel Bay cannot be declared at or immediately after the time of such landing, to permit the same to be taken away without the payment of wharfage; but in every such case such officer shall take a bond or obligation for the payment of such wharfage at or before such time as shall in that behalf be specified in such bond or obligation.

Value of articles landed or shipped to be stated to principal officer of customs, who shall receive dues.

How, if value cannot be declared.

4. Any person who shall wilfully and corruptly make and subscribe any such declaration as aforesaid, knowing the same to be untrue in any material particular, shall be deemed to be guilty of the crime of contravening this section of this Act, and shall upon conviction thereof be liable to such punishment as shall be by law provided for the crime of perjury.

AN ACT

For Enabling the Harbour Board of Port Elizabeth to levy certain Wharfage Dues.

Preamble.

WHEREAS the board of commissioners for the harbour of Port Elizabeth, appointed under and by virtue of the Ordinance No. 21, 1847, entitled " Ordinance for improving the ports, harbours, and roadsteads of this Colony," have caused an estimate to be made of the cost of constructing certain works, calculated to promote the safe and convenient anchorage of ships and landing and shipping of goods in the said harbor : And whereas it is estimated by the said board, and by the engineers and others who have, by desire of the said board, considered the subject of the said works, that a sum not exceeding thirty thousand pounds will be sufficient to defray the cost of constructing the said works, of which sum it will not be necessary that the said board should raise, by way of loan, more than twenty-one thousand and five hundred pounds : And whereas it is computed that an annual revenue of three thousand pounds, or thereabouts, will be sufficient for paying the annual interest upon such loan or loans as may be raised for the purpose aforesaid, and for paying off, within a term not exceeding ten years, the capital of such loan or loans : And whereas the said board, having deliberated, in conjunction with the merchants of Port Elizabeth, and with other parties interested in the improvement of its harbour, upon the most expedient mode of raising the annual revenue required, have come to the conclusion that the said revenue may most expediently be raised by dues upon goods landed and shipped in Algoa Bay : And whereas, owing to the extinction of the former Legislative Council of this Colony, the provisions of the Ordinance aforesaid, No. 21, 1847, relative to the borrowing of money by the said harbour board, and to the imposition of tolls or rates, can no longer operate, and it is therefore necessary that provision for the purposes aforesaid should be made by Parliament: Be it enacted by the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly thereof as follows :—

1. [The loan authorized to be raised under this section is paid off.]

2. [Superseded by § 3, Act 25, 1875.]

to the actual value thereof, then the said officer may require the person who shall have landed or shipped, or be about to land or to ship, any goods, articles, matters, or things, to make and subscribe a declaration, which declaration shall be in substance in the form in the second schedule to this Act set forth; and the value stated in such declaration shall be the value upon which dues shall be paid: Provided that it shall be lawful for such officer, as often as it shall be made to appear to him that the value of any goods, articles, matters, or things landed in Algoa Bay cannot be declared at or immediately after the time of such landing, to permit the same to be taken away without the payment of wharfrage; but in every such case such officer shall take a bond or obligation for the payment of such wharfrage at or before such time as shall in that behalf be specified in such bond or obligation.

No. 10—1858.

Bond to be taken if wharfrage not paid forthwith.

Ordinance for regulating the Rates of Wharfage Dues in Cape Town <sup>(1)</sup> and Simon's Town.

Preamble.

WHEREAS by the Ordinance No. 8, 1834, made and passed in this Colony on the 10th day of December, 1834, entitled "Ordinance to abolish the present Rates of Dues payable at the public Wharfs at Cape Town and Simon's Town and to substitute others in lieu thereof," certain Rates or Dues of wharfage and cranage were imposed upon goods, packages, and articles landed or shipped in Table Bay or Simon's Bay: And whereas by a certain other Ordinance made and passed in this Colony on the 14th day of December, 1846, and numbered 34, 1846, entitled "Ordinance for levying Wharfage and other Dues in Cape Town, and for devoting them to the construction of a Harbour of Refuge in Table Bay, and for other purposes," certain rates or dues of wharfage and cranage upon all goods, articles, matters, and things landed or shipped in Table Bay were substituted in room and stead of the rates or dues imposed by the Ordinance aforesaid, No. 8, 1834: And whereas the Ordinance aforesaid, No. 34, 1846, having never received the confirmation of Her Majesty the Queen ceased at and after the expiration of three years next after the date thereof to be of any force or effect in law: And whereas upon the expiration of the said Ordinance No. 34, 1846, which repealed in regard to all goods, articles, matters, and things landed or shipped in Table Bay the Ordinance aforesaid No. 8, 1834, the said lastmentioned Ordinance revived: And whereas after the enactment but before the expiration of the said Ordinance No. 34, 1846, it became known to the then Governor of the Colony, the Right Honourable Sir Henry Pottinger, Baronet, G.C.B., &c., &c., that the construction of a harbour of refuge in Table Bay as previously contemplated, and for the construction of which harbour of refuge other and for the most part higher dues of wharfage and cranage had been imposed by the said lastmentioned Ordinance than but for such harbour of refuge would have been imposed, must be postponed; whereupon the said Governor, by and with the advice of the Executive Council, did by letter bearing date the 24th day of April, 1847, authorize the Collector of Customs at Cape Town to levy and receive in lieu and stead of the dues and rates claimable and payable under the said last-mentioned Ordinance certain other rates and dues less by one third than such former rates and dues respectively, which lowered scale or tariff of rates and dues the said Collector of Customs has since continued to levy and receive: And whereas it is necessary to sanction and render valid all wharfage and cranage dues received by said Collector of Customs during the existence of the said Ordinance No. 34, 1846, but not in accordance with its provisions, and all such dues received by him since the expiration of the said last-mentioned Ordinance but not in accordance with the provisions of the said Ordinance No. 8, 1834; as also to make provision for levying wharfage and cranage dues at the port of Cape Town in time to come; and moreover to establish in regard to the port of Simon's Town the same rate of wharfage and cranage dues established in regard to the port of Cape Town: Be it therefore enacted by the Governor of Cape of Good Hope, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council thereof, that upon and after the sixth day of January, 1852, the Ordinance aforesaid, No. 8, 1834, except so far as the same repeals any former law or ordinance, shall be repealed, and the same is hereby repealed accordingly.

Ord. 6—1851.

No. 8, 1834.

2. And be it enacted that all sums of money not exceeding in amount the dues of wharfage and cranage specified in the schedule to the Ordinance aforesaid, No. 34, 1846, which have at any time since the passing of the said Ordinance been paid to the Collector of Customs at Cape Town as and for dues of wharfage and cranage payable upon goods, articles, matters, and things landed or shipped in Table Bay shall from and after the taking effect of this Ordinance be held and taken to have been legally levied and received, and every such payment shall be deemed to be as legal, rightful, and effectual as if the same had been made under and by virtue of some valid and subsisting law especially authorizing and requiring such payment to be made.

Legalization of dues taken not exceeding dues under

Schedule to this Act.

An Agreement made this fifth day of May, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, between James Murison, Charles John Manuel, Henry Mathew Arderne, Patrick Dugald Martin, Petrus Jacobus Hugo, Heinrich Peter Hablutzel, George Willett, and William George Anderson, junior, all residing in the Colony of the Cape of Good Hope, and being all the directors of the Simon's Bay Dock or Patent Slip Company, acting by William James Anderson, of London, in England, their attorney and agent, duly constituted in that behalf by a power of attorney dated the ninth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four (hereinafter called the vendors), of the one part, and the commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland (hereinafter called the purchasers) of the other part, whereby it is agreed as follows:—

1. The vendors will sell and the purchasers will purchase at the price of sixteen thousand pounds, first: the freehold in a certain piece of ground, with the buildings and erections thereon, being the lot marked No. 165, situated in Simon's Bay, in the Cape

Division of the said Colouy, and known by the name of "Sober Island," measuring three hundred square roods, extending, as a certain title deed with a diagram thereon granted to Henry Diedrich Jenken, on the ninth January, one thousand eight hundred and forty-five, and four subsequent deeds of transfer, the last of which made in favour of the said company on the twenty-first of February, one thousand eight hundred and sixty, will more fully point out, but subject to such conditions as in the said title deed of the ninth January, one thousand eight hundred and forty-five, and certain memoranda written at foot thereof, and respectively dated the fourteenth of October, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine and the twenty-first day of August, one thousand eight hundred and sixty mentioned. Second, the freehold in a piece of land with the buildings and erections thereon, being the piece of land situate in the Cape division in Simon's Bay aforesaid, adjoining the so-called "Sober Island" granted in freehold to the then directors of the said company and to the directors of the said company for the time being on the second day of October, one thousand eight hundred and sixty, containing one morgen three hundred and twenty-one square roods and twelve and a half square feet, extending as will more fully appear from the title deed thereof, with a diagram annexed, made in favour of the vendors on the said second day of October, one thousand eight hundred and sixty, subject, however, to the conditions contained in the said title deed. Third, all the buildings, sheds, erections, piers, wharves and slip for refitting and repairing vessels now standing or being in or upon the said lands or any part of them or any adjoining land but used or occupied by the said company, together with the said slip, or as part of their property there. Fourth, all the plant, gear, articles and things specified in the schedule hereunder written, and fifth all other the plant, gear, articles and things belonging to the directors or the said company now used or being upon or about the said lands and buildings, and all the rights and privileges of the vendors or of the said company in the said land, buildings, slip, property and premises.

2. The said purchase money of sixteen thousand pounds shall be paid in sterling money of Great Britain or Bank of England notes or by bills on the Accountant-General of the Navy, as may be arranged by the purchasers to the vendors at Cape Town or Simon's Town so soon as the transfer and delivery to the purchasers of the property purchased shall have been completed to the satisfaction of the Commander-in-Chief of Her Majesty's Naval Forces at the Cape of Good Hope, and a certificate to that effect signed by him, shall have been produced by the vendors to the purchasers in England, or to any agent or official at Cape Town or Simon's Town, who may have been empowered by the purchasers to act on such certificate and complete the purchase on behalf of the purchasers.

No. 26—1885.

3. The vendors shall show and deduce a good title according to the law of Cape Colony to the whole of the real and personal property hereby agreed to be sold, and in particular, shall show to the satisfaction of the purchasers that the vendors as representing the said company, or the said company, now have power to sell the said property, and that the vendors have power to appoint the said William James Anderson their attorney, to act for them in selling the said property and to delegate to him the sale thereof, and that the whole of the said property, both real and personal, is free from incumbrances; and if the purchasers shall be advised by competent legal authority at Cape Town that it is not certain that the vendors as representing the said company, or the said company, can sell the property, the vendors on behalf of the company will, or the company will obtain, at the expense of the company, an Act of the Colonial Legislature, or such other authority as shall be sufficient to enable the vendors or the company to make a good title to the property, and to sell and convey the same to the purchasers.

4. If any of the plant, gear, goods, chattels and effects hereby agreed to be sold shall for any reason not be handed over to the purchasers, the vendors shall make compensation for such of the said premises as shall not be handed over in the amount assessed by some independent person to be nominated by the Commander-in-Chief for that purpose.

5. If by reason of any neglect or default of the vendors the purchase shall not be completed on or before the thirty-first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five (and in this respect time shall be of the essence of the contract), it shall be lawful for the purchasers by notice to the vendors signed by their secretary to determine the contract.

6. The vendors shall bear, pay, and discharge all their own law and other costs for or in connection with the sale and attending the completion thereof, and shall produce all deeds and other documents to the purchasers without expense to the purchasers. In witness whereof the said parties of this agreement have hereunto set their hands the day and year first before written.

ACT

To Impose certain Duties on Houses.

WHEREAS it is expedient that the public revenue of this Colony be increased by the imposition of certain duties on houses as hereinafter is provided: Be it therefore enacted by the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly thereof, as follows:—

Preamble.

1. For the purposes of this Act the word “house” shall be construed to mean every distinct and separate habitation occupied by human beings, and also every house, warehouse, counting-house, shop, mill, factory, workshop, engine-house, store, or office, used as a place of business, although not occupied as a habitation. This definition of the word “house” shall be subject to and modified by the rules in the next succeeding section set forth.

Word “house” defined.

2. In reference to what shall be deemed to be houses liable to duty under this Act, and in reference to the valuation of such houses, the following rules shall be observed, that is to say—

Definition restricted by following rules:

A. No store upon any wine farm, used only for storing the wine or spirits made upon such farm, and no store upon any farm used only for storing the produce of such

As to store on wine farm.

No. 20—1878.

farm shall, although such wines, spirits, or produce may be sold at such store, be deemed to be a place of business, so as to be liable to duty as such; but every such store shall be valued as if part and parcel of the dwelling-house of the occupier of such farm.

Stable, coach-house,
&c.

B. Every stable, coach-house, and outbuilding, no part of which shall be occupied by human beings as a dwelling, or be occupied as a place of business, shall be valued as if part and parcel of the dwelling-house to which it belongs.

How as to building occupied by servant.

C. As often as a servant of the occupier of any dwelling-house, or any other person, shall reside in part of any stable, coach-house, or outbuilding belonging to such dwelling-house, and such part shall be divided off from the remainder of the building by a wall or other partition, then, whether there shall or shall not be a door, doorway, or other opening in such wall or partition, communicating internally with the remainder of the building, the part so divided off as a residence shall be deemed to be a house liable to duty, and the same shall be valued according to its value considered as separate from the remainder of the building, and the remainder of the building, if not liable to duty under this Act as a place of business, shall be valued as if part and parcel of the dwelling-house to which it belongs; should the remainder of such building be liable to duty under this Act as a place of business, then, if there be no such internal communication as aforesaid, both the residence and the place of business shall be liable to duty, and each shall be separately valued for such duty; but should such an internal communication exist, the whole building, including the part used as a residence, shall be valued for duty as if one single and undivided place of business; and such duty shall be payable by the occupier of the remainder of the building occupied as a place of business, and not by the occupier of the residence.

As to buildings close to principal building and occupied by one family.

D. If two or more buildings, within a radius of fifty yards from the centre of the principal building, be together occupied by one family as a dwelling, then, whether such buildings do or do not communicate with each other by one or more enclosed and covered passages leading from one into the other, those buildings shall, for the purpose of this Act, be valued together, and their united value shall be regarded as the value of one house, and shall be liable to duty as the value of one house. The term "family" shall, for the purpose of this rule, embrace the persons following, and the servants of any of them, viz. :

Who are included in term "family."

1. Husband and wife, and the ascendants and descendants of both or either of them, living with them, and paying no rent for any of the said buildings.
  2. Widower or widow, and the ascendants and descendants of such widower or widow, or of any deceased spouse of such widower or widow, living with such widower or widow, and paying no rent for any of the said buildings.
  3. No descendant, being or having been married, and who shall reside as the head, or as the wife of the head, of a distinct family in any building separate from the principal dwelling-house (although within the radius aforesaid), shall be deemed to live with or belong to the family occupying the principal dwelling-house, and such separate building shall be liable to duty as a separate house, although such descendant may pay no rent for such building.
- E. If two or more buildings within a radius of fifty yards from the centre of the principal building shall all be occupied as places of business by the same person, whether such person shall carry on in each such building the same description of business or not, then all such buildings, whether they do or do not communicate with each other internally, or by enclosed and covered passages leading from one into the other or others, shall pay duty as one house upon the united values of such buildings. Places of business close to principal building and occupied by same person.
- F. What shall be deemed to be the "principal building" for the purpose of this Act shall be determined by general repute; and failing any such general repute, then the building of the greatest value shall be deemed to be the principal building. What shall be deemed "principal building."
- G. When one building shall be partitioned and divided into parts, so that there shall not be, by means of any door or opening, any internal communication between such parts, and each or any of such parts shall be occupied as a dwelling by a person or family other than the person or family, or persons or families, occupying the other part or parts, then each part of such building shall be regarded as a separate house, and be liable to duty as such. In case one or more of the parts of any such divided building as aforesaid shall be occupied as a dwelling, and any other part as a place of business (whether such business be that of the occupier of the part or parts used as a dwelling or not), then the part or parts occupied as a dwelling shall be valued for duty as a separate house, or as separate houses (as the case may be), and the part or parts occupied as a place of business shall also be valued for duty If separate parts of same building be occupied by persons of different families.
Or be used as dwelling-house and place of business respectively.

No. 20—1878.

From whom duty to be recovered in this case, and how as to contribution.

How as to room rented separately and not communicating with rest of house.

How house to be valued if land annexed.

Temporary huts of 40s. value not liable to duty.

Duty payable yearly on every house occupied for 90 days during previous twelve months.

as a separate house or as separate houses (as the case may be).

- H. Should there be between the parts of any building such as is described in letter G, an internal communication by means of a door or opening, or enclosed and covered passage leading from one part into the other or others, then the whole building shall be valued as one house, no matter whether the parts be occupied by one person or by different persons. But the duty upon such house shall be recoverable from that occupier of any of the parts, who, if distinct in interest from the other occupier or occupiers, shall, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, be entitled to claim contribution from the other occupier or occupiers, such contribution to bear the same proportion to the duty paid as the value of the part or parts called on to contribute bears or bear to the whole value of the building.
- I. When any room of any house, whether such room be on the ground floor or on an upper storey, shall not communicate by any internal opening with the rest of the house, and can only be entered from without, such room shall, if occupied by a person paying rent for the same as a separate apartment, be deemed to be a separate house, and be liable to duty as such, but if not so occupied, it shall be valued as part and parcel of the house of which it is a room, and not separately from such house.
- J. In valuing for the purpose of this Act, any house occupied together with a farm, or garden, or other land, the valuator will, as a general rule, first take into account the fair marketable value of the house and land together, should such value be known to him, and then estimate, according to the best of his skill and knowledge, what proportion of such value justly belongs to or arises from the house, regarded as distinct from the land.
- K. No hut, not exceeding in value the sum of forty shillings, situated on any part of any farm, and occupied temporarily as a place of shelter by any servant in charge of stock when grazing at a distance from the homestead, or in charge of growing crops, shall, in case such servant shall have a permanent residence at some other part of such farm, be deemed to be a habitation liable to duty.
3. Upon every house within this Colony wherever situated which shall have been occupied as a dwelling-house or place of business for not less than ninety days, whether consecutive or otherwise, within the space of twelve months next before the day of the service upon the occupier or owner of such house (as the case may be) of such notice as is in the ninth section of this Act mentioned, there shall be payable to the colonial revenue upon the day which shall in that behalf be specified in such notice, and afterwards on the first day of July of every year during the subsistence of this Act, except as in the next succeeding section, a duty according to the value of such house, upon the following scale, that is to say:—

5. If during any year any house which shall have been valued for assessment to the house duty under this Act shall not have been occupied during ninety days in all, counting from the 1st day of July in one year to the 1st day of July in the succeeding year, it shall be lawful for the owner of the said house, and if the said house no longer exists, then for the late owner thereof, or the owner of the site thereof, to object before the Civil Commissioner at any time within sixty days after the first day of July, upon which day the duty, if due, would become payable, that such house has not been occupied during the space of ninety days in all during the year ending on the 1st day of July theretofore, and if the said house no longer exists, then that it does no longer exist; and on proof to the satisfaction of the Civil Commissioner of the first of such facts, such owner shall be exempted from duty in respect of such house for the year ending the said 1st day of July theretofore; and if proof be made that the said house no longer exists, then the said house may be struck off from the valuation roll for the future. And it shall be lawful for the Civil Commissioner to direct such inquiries as he shall think fit to verify either of such facts, and he need not be satisfied with the evidence which shall be brought before him by the objecting owner, and he may adjourn

As often as there shall not be on any such day any person other than the owner of such house then entitled to the possession of such house, the owner of such house shall be the person liable for the payment of the duty upon such house. But nothing in this Act contained shall make any person liable for duty upon any house which shall not have been occupied for the space of ninety days, as in the third section of this Act specified.

But the Governor, acting as aforesaid, shall not be bound to appoint the persons who shall tender to perform such duty at the lowest rate of payment, and shall be at liberty to appoint the same valuator for more divisions than one, or to appoint different valuers for different parts of the same division, if the Governor, acting as aforesaid, shall deem it advisable so to do. But no person prosecuted for a contravention of this section shall be afterwards prosecuted for any other crime alleged to have been committed by means of the same act constituting such contravention: and, conversely, no person prosecuted for such other crime shall be afterwards prosecuted for any contravention of this section and alleged to have been committed by means of the same act constituting such other crime. Should the valuator, or any person authorized by him, in writing, to value any house, request permission to enter such house for the purpose of better ascertaining its value, and the occupier of such house, or the inmates thereof, refuse such permission, it shall not be lawful for such occupier to object to the valuation of such house: Provided such valuation have been made bonâ fide, and that it be not grossly excessive: Provided, also, that every person authorized as aforesaid shall be bound, upon demand made by the owner or occupier of any lands upon which such person shall have entered or shall be about to enter, to show his written authority for so doing; and failing the production of such authority, it shall be lawful for such owner or occupier to prevent such person from entering upon such lands, or continuing thereon, as the case may be: Provided, also, that where any house shall be situated within the boundaries of any Municipality, the valuation of such house for municipal purposes may be taken to be the valuation for the purposes of this Act.

AN ACT

For Extending Trial by Jury to Civil Cases.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient that trial by jury in civil cases should be introduced into this Colony: And whereas it is fitting that trial by jury in civil cases should, in the first instance, be limited to civil cases depending in the Supreme Court: Be it enacted by the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly thereof, as follows:—So much, if any, of the Letters Patent of his late Majesty King William the Fourth, bearing date at Westminster, the fourth day of May, in the second year of his reign, and commonly called the “Charter of Justice,” and so much, if any, of any other law or ordinance heretofore existing in this Colony, as shall be repugnant to or inconsistent with any of the provisions of this Act, shall be repealed, and the same is hereby repealed accordingly.

No 7—1854.
Repugnant laws repealed.

2. [Repealed by Act 30 of 1874.]

3. No question which shall be a pure and unmixed question of law shall be, at any time, or in any case, referred or submitted to a jury, but every such question shall be reserved for the determination of the Court.

Questions of law to be reserved for the court.

4. [Repealed by Act 30 of 1874.]

5. The issue or issues in any such case as aforesaid, to be tried by jury, shall, as much as may be, be settled and framed, so as to present separately and successively, and in plain and precise language, every matter of fact affirmed by one party in the suit and denied by the other: Provided that no issue shall be settled or framed in regard to any matter or question not arising upon the pleadings as pleaded, unless both parties shall consent thereto, in which case the pleadings shall be thereupon amended in such manner as to put in issue such matter or question.

Form in which issues shall be framed.

6. Whenever, in any matter or question which is in law a matter or question of mixed law and fact, the fact shall, in contemplation of law, be capable of being separated from the law with which it is mixed, and both parties shall desire the separation, in the issues, of the fact from the law; such separation may, should the judge see fit, be made in such manner that the fact alone should be submitted to the jury, and the law connected therewith shall be reserved for the Court.

In mixed questions of law and fact, the law and the fact may, if capable of separation, be separated.

7. As often as any issue shall be settled or framed for trial by jury in any case, in regard to which or the matter of which either party shall claim that the other party may be condemned in damages, then the issues in such a case shall be so settled and framed as to authorize and require the jury, in case they shall find for the party claiming such damages, to assess the said damages.

When damages claimed, the issues shall leave it to the jury to assess the damages.

8. Either party to any such case as aforesaid, who shall, before the judge in chamber, have objected to the form or substance of any issue approved of by the said judge, or who shall, before such judge, have desired the admission of some issue which the said judge shall have refused to admit, may, upon notice to the opposite party, move the Supreme Court to review the decision of the judge in chamber regarding any such issue; and thereupon such Court shall make such order in the matter as justice shall seem to require: Provided that any judge before whom, in chamber, the Issues approved by judge in chamber may be reviewed by, or referred to, the Supreme Court.

No. 7—1854.

settlement of the issues in any case shall come, may, of his own motion, refer the settlement of such issues, or of any of them, to the Supreme Court, and thereupon such Court shall, after hearing the parties, settle the same.

Issues to be engrossed, and left with registrar.

9. As soon as may be after the issue or issues in any such case as aforesaid shall have been settled and framed, the same shall be fairly and correctly engrossed by the attorney, who shall have served the notice in the fourth section mentioned, to attend before a judge in chamber, and such attorney shall carry the said issue or issues, so engrossed, to the judge before whom, in chamber, the same shall have been settled, and such judge shall sign the engrossment thereof, and thereupon such attorney shall lodge such engrossment with the Registrar of the Supreme Court: Provided that, as often as all or any of the issues in any case shall be finally determined, not by the judge, but by the Court, then all the issues in such case, after being engrossed as aforesaid, shall be signed by the Registrar aforesaid and not by any judge.

10. [Repealed by Act 30 of 1874.]

Jury trials to be had before a judge and a jury of nine men.

11. All trials by jury in the Supreme Court shall be had before the Chief Justice of the said Court, or before any other of the judges thereof, and a jury of nine men.

Cases to be tried by jury to be set down not less than 14 days before day of trial.

12. All cases in which there shall be any issue or issues to be tried by jury shall be set down for trial, not less than fourteen clear days before that one of the days set apart for trials by jury on which it is intended that such issue or issues should be tried.

When any case set down for trial by jury, the registrar shall give notice to the sheriff that a jury will be required.

13. When any such case as in the last preceding section mentioned shall be set down for trial, the Registrar of the Supreme Court shall, as soon as may be, and not later than the next day (not being a Sunday or public holiday) after such case shall have been so set down, give notice in writing to the Sheriff of the Colony that a jury will be required in the Supreme Court, for the dispatch of civil business, on the day for which the said case shall have been set down for trial: Provided that it shall not be necessary for the said Registrar, when he shall have given such notice, in reference to any one case, to give any further or other notice, although other cases should be afterwards set down for the same day for trial by jury.

14. [Repealed by Act 30, 1874.]

Jurors for civil cases to be summoned as if for criminal cases.

15. The jurors who shall be required to attend in the Supreme Court for the trial of civil cases depending therein shall be summoned in manner and form as is or shall be by law provided for the summoning of jurors for the trial of criminal cases in the said Court and the Sheriff aforesaid shall make the like return of the manner of serving every such summons, as if such jurors had been summoned for the trial of criminal cases.

List of jurors summoned to be called over.

16. The Registrar of the Supreme Court shall, on the sitting of the Court upon any day appointed for the trial of civil cases, call over the list returned by the said Sheriff, and if any man, having been so summoned to attend as a juror, shall not attend pursuant to such summons, or, being thrice called, shall not answer to his name, or, after his appearance, shall wilfully withdraw himself from the said Court, the Court shall set such fine upon every man so making default (unless some reasonable excuse shall be proved by oath or affidavit) as the Court shall think meet, not exceeding twenty-five pounds.

No. 7—1854.
Penalty for non-attendance.

17. As often as any such fine shall be imposed, and shall not be paid upon demand thereof made by the said Sheriff, then execution may be sued out by Her Majesty's Attorney-General for the recovery of the said fine, precisely as if the order imposing such fine were a judgment of the said Court.

How penalty to be recovered.

18. The names of the men who shall have been summoned and shall appear shall be placed in a list, and from such list each of the parties to the first case standing for trial may, upon the instant, in some convenient place, and in the presence of the Registrar, strike off, if so minded, the names of nine men, and then the name of each man remaining upon the list, with his place of abode and addition, shall be written by the Registrar upon a separate piece of paper (such pieces of paper being all, as nearly as may be, of equal size), and the said pieces of paper shall be put together in a box provided for that purpose, and upon and for the trial of such last-mentioned case, the Registrar shall draw out nine of the said pieces of paper, one after another; and if any of the men whose names shall be so drawn shall not appear, or shall be challenged and set aside, then a further number of names shall be, one by one, drawn out, until nine men be drawn who shall appear, and, after all just cause of challenge allowed, shall remain as fair and indifferent between the parties: Provided that, in the striking off of the nine names aforesaid, from the list aforesaid, by each of the parties to the case, the plaintiff shall, if he will, strike off the first name, and the defendant the second, and so on alternately, until the whole number of nine each shall be struck off, or until both or either of the parties shall desist from striking off such names: Provided, also, that one party to such case, by declining to strike off all or any of the nine names aforesaid, shall not thereby prevent the other party to said case from striking off the whole or any lesser number of such nine names.

Each party in the cause may strike off the names of nine jurors from the list of thirty-six.

The remaining names to be placed in a box, and the nine men first drawn to be the jury.

19. If there shall be more cases than one set down for the same day for trial by jury, then each of the parties in each successive case may, from the list of names of men who shall have been summoned and shall have appeared, as aforesaid, strike off, in manner aforesaid, the names of nine men, and thereupon, in each case, the like proceedings as are hereinbefore provided shall take place with respect to each name remaining upon the list of men summoned and appearing, until all the cases set down for trial upon that day shall be disposed of.

How to proceed in case there shall be more cases than one for the same day.

LLLL

No. 7—1854.

When one jury shall be absent, considering its verdict, the residue of the jury list may, by consent, supply a jury to try any other cause standing for trial.

20. If, whilst one jury shall be absent considering their verdict, the parties in the next case set down for trial on that day shall, both of them, consent to take the list of jurors then remaining unsworn, and from it to strike off so many names, not exceeding nine, as shall leave not less than nine men free from challenge and objection, who shall appear to serve upon the trial of such next case, then the names so left shall be placed as aforesaid in a box, and be thence drawn out as aforesaid, and the trial of such next case shall proceed forthwith. And if the parties in the case next to that in which the jury shall be absent, considering their verdict, shall not so consent, as aforesaid, then it shall be competent for the parties to the case next in order so to consent, and so on, from case to case, as long as there shall remain any case set down for trial upon that day.

Jurors who have served on one jury, to be liable to serve again for other causes standing for trial on the same day.

21. As soon as any jury shall have given their verdict, or shall have been discharged by the Court without having given a verdict, the jurors who composed such jury shall be competent and liable (should they be left upon the reduced list remaining for the purpose of forming therefrom a jury, for the trial of any other case set down for trial on the same day) to have their names, as belonging to such reduced list, placed in the box aforesaid, thence to be drawn, in manner aforesaid, so as to form a jury for the trial of such other case, precisely as if such jurors had not served in any previous case.

No challenge except for cause.

22. No challenge to any man, drawn as aforesaid, to serve as a juror, shall be allowed, except a challenge for cause, and that the causes for which any such juror may be challenged, and the manner and form of trying the existence of any cause of challenge alleged against any such juror, shall be the same, in all respects, as would, by law be permitted or prescribed in a civil case depending, and about to be tried, in one of Her Majesty's Courts of Record at Westminster.

Cause of challenge the same as in the courts at Westminster.

The jury to be sworn

23. The judge presiding at any such trial as aforesaid, before proceeding to such trial, shall administer to the jury the following oath, that is to say:—"You, and each of you, do solemnly swear that you will well and truly try these issues (or "this issue," as the case may be), and a true verdict give, according to the evidence, so help you God!"

Form of oath.

The jury, after being sworn, to be kept apart by themselves.

24. After the jury, in any civil case depending in the said Court, shall have been sworn, they shall be kept, in some convenient situation, apart by themselves, until the judge who shall try the case shall have summed up the evidence and left the issues to the said jury, and if any such jury shall desire to withdraw for the purpose of considering their verdict, then they shall be kept by an officer of the Court in some convenient place, apart by themselves, until they shall have agreed upon their verdict, or shall be discharged; and such officer shall be sworn that he will suffer none to have access to them or to speak to them, unless by the order of the Court, and that he will not himself speak to them except to ask whether they are agreed upon their verdict, or to communicate between them and the Court.

No. 7—1854.

25. It shall not be competent for any such jury to deliver their verdict upon any one or more of the issues left to them, if more than one, unless they shall at the same time deliver their verdict on all the issues so left to them.

Every jury finding upon any one issue left to them in any case, must find upon all the issues left to them in the same case.

26. Not fewer than six jurors of the nine jurors composing the jury must concur in every verdict of such jury, and every verdict in which not fewer than six jurors of the nine jurors, composing the jury shall concur, shall be received and regarded as the verdict of such jury: Provided that no verdict, except one in which the whole of the jurors composing the jury shall concur, shall be capable of being delivered or received until after the jury shall have been in deliberation upon their verdict for not less than one hour.

Six jurors may give the verdict.

No verdict, not unanimous, to be received until the jury shall have been in deliberation for not less than an hour.

27. As often as all the cases set down for trial by jury upon any day shall not be disposed of upon that day, it shall and may be lawful for the judge to adjourn the Court from time to time, as may be found convenient, and to proceed with such trials after any such adjournment. And as often as such judge shall adjourn the Court from any one day till some other day and hour fixed upon by the said judge, then every person bound to attend as a juror upon the day of such adjournment shall be bound, under the like penalty as that hereinbefore in the 16th section provided, to appear again, in the said Court, upon the day and at the hour to which the Court shall have been adjourned: Provided that, whenever the Court shall adjourn from one day to another, during the trial of any cause, the jury trying such cause shall be at liberty to retire to their homes during such adjournment.

The judge may adjourn the court for jury trials.

When during a trial, the court adjourns, the jury may retire to their homes during the adjournment.

28. The verdict of every jury impanelled to try any such issue as aforesaid, may (provided the nature of the issue will so admit) be either a general verdict or a special verdict.

Verdicts may be either general or special.

29. The verdict of every such jury shall be received by the Registrar of the Court, who shall, before recording the same, ask the jury if they are all agreed upon their verdict; and in case they shall answer in the negative, shall then ask the jury how many of them are agreed upon their verdict; and the said Registrar shall record the verdict that shall have been given, and whether the same was an unanimous verdict, or a verdict by a majority; and shall read over to the jury, before they quit their places, the issue or issues left to them, and their finding or findings thereon. Provided that, so long as the verdict shall not have been recorded, it shall be competent for the jury, in case they shall not have quitted their places to reconsider or amend any of their findings.

How verdicts to be received and recorded.

30. No jury impanelled to try any such issue as aforesaid shall be discharged until they shall have delivered their verdict, unless both the parties to the case shall consent to their discharge, or Jury when to be discharged.

No. 7—1854.

unless the Court shall, upon being satisfied that the jurors in any case are unable to agree, see fit to discharge them: Provided, however, that the Court shall not discharge any jury as being unable to agree, until such jury shall have been closed up to consider their verdict for not less than six hours, except proof be given, before the expiration of such six hours, that longer confinement would probably cause serious bodily harm to one or more of the said jurors; in which case the Court may discharge such jury at once.

When jury discharged without having given a verdict, case may be set down afresh for some future jury trials day, or both parties may agree to refer the case to the court.

31. In every case in which a jury shall be discharged without delivering a verdict, such case may be again set down for trial by jury on some future day appointed for trials by jury,—or should both parties so elect, the case may be set down for trial before the Court adjudicating without a jury: Provided that if such case be set down for trial by jury, it shall be so set down not less than fourteen clear days before the day of trial: And provided that if such case be set down for trial before the Court adjudicating, without a jury, it shall be set down for such time before the day of trial as shall be prescribed by the rules of the said Court.

All issues and findings to be kept of record.

32. The issue or issues tried by any jury, and their finding or findings thereon, shall be preserved, of record, by the Registrar of the Court.

Jurors, how to be paid for serving.

33. Every juror serving on a jury shall be paid, upon the delivery of the verdict, the sum of ten shillings: Provided that if any trial shall be adjourned to a second day, the judge presiding at the trial may allow to each juror any sum not exceeding ten shillings for each day during which such trial shall continue: Provided also, that the attorney for the party who shall have set down the issue or issues for trial shall be personally liable for the payment of whatever sum the jury shall be entitled to receive: And provided that, as often as such party shall be entitled to his costs from the opposite party, he shall recover, as part of such costs, whatever sum he shall have lawfully paid the said jury.

New trials may be applied for, and upon what grounds.

34. Any party to any case tried by jury, who shall be dissatisfied with the finding or findings of the jury, may apply by motion to the Supreme Court to grant a new trial, on the ground of the finding or findings being contrary to evidence, or on the ground of mis-direction of the judge in matter of law, or on the ground of the undue admission or rejection of evidence, or on the ground of excessive damages, or on the ground of res noviter veniens ad notitiam, as also on any ground not herein set forth, upon which a new trial may be granted or grantable, according to the law and practice of Her Majesty's Courts of Record at Westminster: Provided that all motions for new trials shall be made at or within such time next after the trial as the Supreme Court shall, from time to time, appoint: And provided that as often as a new trial shall be granted, the case may be set down again for trial, upon some one of the days set apart as aforesaid for trials by jury, in like manner as if such case had never previously been set down and tried; or, should both parties so elect, such case may be set down for trial before the Court adjudicating without a jury.

No. 7—1854.

35. As often as any issue, left to any such jury as aforesaid, shall contain or involve a question of mixed law and fact, the respective rights, powers, functions, and duties of the judge presiding at such trial, and of the jury, in regard to the determination of the law and of the fact respectively, shall be the same in all respects, as would, by law, belong to, or be imposed upon, the judge and the jury, respectively, in any one of Her Majesty's Courts of Record at Westminster, in regard to the determination of a similar issue in progress of trial in such last-mentioned Courts.

The respective powers of the judge and of the jury, in regard to the determination of questions of mixed law and fact.

36. It shall be competent to the counsel of any party at the trial of any issue or issues, to except to the opinion or direction of the Judge before whom the same shall be tried, either as to the competency of witnesses, the admissibility of evidence, or other matter or thing arising at the trial, and, on such exception being taken, the same shall be put in writing by the counsel for the party objecting, and signed by the Judge; but notwithstanding such exception, the trial shall proceed, and the jury shall give their verdict upon the issue or issues left to them, and shall assess damages when necessary. And, after the trial of such issue or issues, the party excepting as aforesaid may, upon motion, apply to the Supreme Court to allow the said exception, and upon the hearing of such motion, the Registrar of the said Court shall produce the said exception, together with the issue or issues in the case, and the finding or findings of the jury thereon, and in case the said Court shall allow the said exception, then the finding or findings upon such issue or issues shall be set aside, and a new trial granted, but if the said Court shall disallow such exception, and the order of Court disallowing the same shall not be appealed from, then the finding or findings shall be final and conclusive, as hereinafter mentioned.

Exceptions may be taken to the opinion or direction of the judge in matter of law.

Proceeding upon exceptions.

37. The rule or order of the said Court upon any such exception as aforesaid, allowing or disallowing such exception, shall be deemed and taken to be a rule or order of the said Court, having the effect of a final and definitive sentence of the said Court; and the party against whom such rule or order shall be pronounced may apply to the said Court, by petition, for leave to appeal, in manner and form as by the fiftieth section of the "Charter of Justice" aforesaid provided; and thereupon, all and singular the provisions of the said section of the said charter, in regard to the said Court and its proceedings, shall apply to such appeal.

Orders of court allowing or disallowing exceptions to be deemed to be final and definitive orders; so as to be appealed from.

38. If a new trial shall not be applied for or shall be refused, or if the exception taken to the opinion or direction of the Judge shall be disallowed by the said Court, and no appeal from such disallowance shall be prayed for, the finding of the jury shall be final and conclusive, as to the facts so found, and shall not be liable to be brought into further question.

When the finding of the jury shall be considered final and conclusive.

No. 7—1854.

After issues found by the jury, the case may be set down for final judgment.

39. Either party to any case in which any such issue or issues shall have been tried as aforesaid, may set down the cause for hearing before the Supreme Court, and upon such hearing the Registrar of the said Court shall produce the issue or issues left to the jury, and their finding or findings thereupon, and the said Court taking and adopting, as final and conclusive, the fact or facts as found by the jury, shall pronounce such judgment upon the entire case as shall be by law required.

Judgments pronounced upon or after findings by a jury may be appealed from, as being, upon the facts as found, erroneous in law.

40. Nothing in the last preceding section contained shall be construed so as to prevent either of the parties to any such case as aforesaid from appealing to Her Majesty in her Privy Council, as in the said "Charter of Justice" provided, against any such judgment as in the said section mentioned, as being, upon or in reference to the facts found by the jury, and the other circumstances of the case, erroneous in point of law: Provided, however, that the facts as found by the jury shall not be reversed or controverted, or be in any manner or in any place reviewed or questioned, except only for the purpose of considering whether a new trial applied for should or should not be granted.

This Act not to affect the practice in provisional cases, motions, interdicts, or cases by default.

41. Nothing in this Act contained shall be construed so as to alter or affect the practice and proceedings of the Supreme Court in provisional cases, or upon any motions other than those in this Act mentioned, or upon interdicts, or in civil cases set down for trial by default.

Interpretation clause.

42. In the interpretation of this Act, the term "verdict" shall mean the finding or findings of the jury upon any issue or issues tried by such jury, and whenever mention is made of any public officer, the officer mentioned shall be deemed to be such officer for the time being, or the officer acting as such.

As often as by any Act passed during the present or any future session of Parliament authority is given for the purposes of any work by such Act authorized to be undertaken or constructed, to take and use any land or to dig, get, or carry away any materials belonging to any person who may be entitled to demand compensation for such land or materials as the case may be (such person being in this Act designated "the owner") the following provisions shall apply:—

- (5) It shall not be necessary before the exercise of any of the powers conferred by any such Act as aforesaid, that any proceedings shall be taken to settle the amount of compensation or recompense to be paid for, or in respect of the land or materials authorized to be taken, and which may be required for any such work, but it shall be lawful for the Minister, corporate body, or person, as aforesaid, as the case may be, to enter upon, take possession of, and use any such land or materials, leaving all questions as to the recompense or compensation to be paid for or in respect of such land or materials to be settled afterwards in the manner by this Act provided.

2. As often as by any Act passed in the present or any future Session of Parliament, the amount of any compensation to be paid, or any other matter, is directed to be awarded, or settled by arbitration, then (except where other provision is specially made), unless both parties concur in the appointment of a single arbitrator, each party shall be entitled to appoint an arbitrator to whom the matter shall be referred.

ACT

To Consolidate and Amend the several Acts relating to the Adjustment of Disputed Land Boundaries and to the Erection and Preservation of Land Beacons (<sup>1</sup>).

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to consolidate and amend the several Acts in force in this Colony relating to the Adjustment of Disputed Land Boundaries, and to the Erection and Preservation of Land Beacons: Be it enacted by the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly thereof, as follows:—

Previous Acts repealed.

1. The following Acts are hereby repealed,—that is to say, the Act No. 10, 1859, entitled "An Act to provide for the Adjustment of Disputed Land Boundaries, and for the Erection and Preservation of Land Beacons," and the Act No. 3, 1860, entitled "An Act to amend the Act No. 10, 1859, entitled 'An Act to provide for the Adjustment of Disputed Land Boundaries and for the Erection and Preservation of Land Beacons,'" and the Act No. 6, 1862, entitled "An Act amending the Act No. 10, 1859, entitled 'An Act to provide for the Adjustment of Disputed Land Boundaries, and for the Erection and Preservation of Land Beacons.'"

Acts, proceedings, &amp;c., done before taking effect of this Act, not affected.

2. Notwithstanding the said repeal, every act, proceeding, matter, or thing done before the taking effect of this Act, under or by virtue of the Acts so repealed, or any of them, relating to the resurvey of any section or area, or the settlement of any dispute regarding the boundaries of any farm or farms not included in any such section or area, shall at all times hereafter be judged of, and be of the same force and effect, in all respects, as if the said Acts were still in force: Provided that as often as no fresh grant shall, at the time of the taking effect of this Act, have been, under the said Act No. 10, 1859, issued, then the provisions of this Act shall, if different from the provisions of the Acts aforesaid, or any of them, apply, so far as applicable, to all resurveys or other proceedings still in progress, in the state and condition in which such resurveys or other proceedings shall then be, precisely as if such resurveys or other proceedings had been begun under this Act, instead of under the other Acts aforesaid, or one of them.

Partial resurveys or other proceedings under previous Acts, how affected.

No. 7—1865.

3. It shall be lawful for the Divisional Council of any division in this Colony, from time to time, to divide such division, or so much and such parts thereof as such council shall deem necessary or expedient, into sections or areas, for the purpose of a resurvey under the provisions of this Act.

Divisional councils may subdivide divisions for purposes of resurvey.

4. Every such section or area as aforesaid shall be, if possible, a tract of country lying between permanent and conspicuous natural objects, such as mountain ranges or rivers, or objects of a like nature; and in case of the total or partial absence of such natural objects, then some undisputed and indisputable beacons or landmarks or other sufficiently distinguishing points shall be resorted to for the purpose of defining or describing a section or area of such extent and of such a character as shall be suitable for the purpose of a complete and effectual resurvey, under this Act, of the several farms included therein.

Sections or areas to be bounded with reference to natural objects or other distinguishable landmarks.

5. As often as the absence at proper or convenient places of such objects or points as are in the last preceding section mentioned, or of a sufficient number of such objects or points, shall render it impossible or undesirable to define or describe a section or area in any particular locality by means of such objects or points it shall be lawful to define or describe for the purpose of such locality a section or area for resurvey under this Act by means of beacons which are capable of being disputed; but the boundaries or limits of all sections or areas so defined or described shall be provisional in their nature, and may be ultimately enlarged, contracted, or otherwise altered as may in the progress of the resurvey be found necessary, and the beacons so taken for the purpose of the provisional definition or description placed where, according to such alteration, they ought of right to stand: Provided that when and as often as any of the beacons so provisionally taken shall be beacons dividing farms being private property from other farms being private property, and the beacons so provisionally taken shall be disputed by the proprietors of farms lying beyond or outside of the said beacons, then such last-mentioned farms shall be deemed to be included in the section or area; and so on from private farm to private farm, until some natural object, some crown land, some undisputed beacons, or some other fixed points shall be arrived at, beyond which it shall not be necessary that the section or area should extend: Provided, also, that if any doubt or question should arise as to the point or points beyond which it is not necessary that any such section or area as in this section of this Act mentioned should extend, such doubt or question shall be decided by the Surveyor-General, with the advice of the Divisional Council: Provided, further, that no such beacons as are

In the absence of natural objects or landmarks, other beacons may be taken.

But the boundaries to be provisional only.

When beacon taken is a disputed beacon between two or more farms, such farms to be included in section.

Surveyor-General to decide questions as to limits of section.

No. 7—1865.

Beacons herein alluded to not to be taken unless Surveyor-General shall be satisfied of necessity for so doing.

in this section mentioned shall be at any time resorted to for the purpose of describing, either wholly or in part, any section or area for the purpose of resurvey under this Act, until the Divisional Council proposing such beacons shall have satisfied the Surveyor-General that it would, under the circumstances of the case, be either impossible or in the highest degree inconvenient to define or describe a section or area in the same locality by such objects or points as are in the preceding section mentioned; it being the true intent and meaning of this Act that no section or area other than one defined or described as in the last preceding section mentioned should be sanctioned by the Surveyor-General, unless in cases in which a departure from the provisions of the said section shall be either absolutely necessary or obviously desirable; Provided, lastly, that if in any case it should become necessary in the progress of the resurvey of any area under this section to include any farm lying beyond the limits of the division within which such area as provisionally defined originally lay, it shall be lawful to include such farm; and such farm shall be in the same plight and condition as regards the provisions of this Act as if it lay within the limits of such division as aforesaid.

Limit of area may be extended.

Surveyor-General to be consulted.

Concurrence of Surveyor-General not to be taken as an admission of correctness of beacons in reference to Crown land.

6. In defining and describing sections or areas of country for the purposes of this Act, every Divisional Council shall consult with, and obtain the concurrence of, the Surveyor-General of the Colony, or of such officer of his department, or Government surveyor, as the said Surveyor-General shall appoint: Provided that as often as there shall, under either of the two immediately preceding sections, be an area proposed to the Surveyor-General for his concurrence, which area shall, either wholly or in part, be defined or described by beacons, then the concurrence of the Surveyor-General, when given, shall not be taken to be an admission by the Surveyor-General that such beacons are correct in reference to crown land, or to deprive the Colonial Government of any crown land lying or being within the area defined or described by such beacons, or by any of them.

Boundaries of sections to be publicly notified.

7. As soon as the whole or any part of any division shall have been divided into such sections or areas as aforesaid, or as soon as any one such section or area shall have been defined, the Divisional Council of the division shall, by means of notices, affixed at public places, and by means of the Field-cornet or Field-cornets resident within such section or area, or otherwise, as such council shall devise, make publicly known the boundaries or limits of such sections or areas respectively, or of such single section or area, should only one be in the first instance described.

Who may apply for resurvey of area or section.

8. It shall be competent for any number of landowners owning not less than half the value of the whole immovable property lying in any such section or area, and valued for the purpose of being assessed for road rates, to apply, in writing, for the resurvey of such section or area, for the purposes of this Act: Provided that, in determining the value of immovable property for the purpose of this section, the valuation of the same for road rates shall be binding and conclusive.

No. 7—1865.

Valuation for road rates to be taken as value of property.

9. Every Divisional Council receiving any such application as aforesaid shall forward the same to the Colonial Secretary, together with the report of such council that such application is signed by not less than one half in value of such owners as aforesaid, and a description or definition of the section or area to which such application shall relate.

Proceedings of divisional council on receiving application for re-survey.

10. As soon as the application, report, and description or definition in the last preceding section mentioned shall have been received by the Colonial Secretary, it shall be lawful for the Governor of the Colony, by proclamation in the Government Gazette, if he shall see fit to direct the resurvey of such section or area for the purposes of this Act.

Re-survey to be directed by proclamation in Gazette.

11. Upon the issue of any such proclamation as aforesaid, or before such issue, it shall be lawful for the Divisional Council of the division to which such proclamation shall relate, to recommend to the Surveyor-General such number of competent land-surveyors as they shall deem proper to be employed upon the resurvey of the section or area described or defined in such proclamation: Provided that it shall not be incumbent upon the Surveyor-General to appoint the surveyor or surveyors recommended by the council, and that if, in any case, he shall see cause not to do so, he may transmit to the Divisional Council the name or names of another surveyor or other surveyors as the person or the persons whom he proposes to employ, and unless the said council shall object to the surveyor or surveyors so proposed, and assign sufficient grounds of objection, to be judged of by the Governor aforesaid, then the last-mentioned surveyor or surveyors shall be appointed: Provided that every such surveyor shall be removable by the Governor at pleasure, and that in case of a vacancy arising from death, removal, or other cause, another surveyor may, in manner aforesaid, be appointed to supply such vacancy.

Divisional council may recommend surveyors.

Surveyor-General not bound to appoint such surveyors.

13. When and as often as any such proclamation as aforesaid shall have been issued, the Divisional Council shall cause such notice published in the local newspaper, if any there be, in which notices of such Divisional Council are usually published, and it shall be incumbent upon the owner or owners of each farm included in the section or area described or defined in such proclamation, of which farm the beacons, or some of them, shall not be standing, to put up, within forty-two days from and after the publication of Diagram and report to be transmitted to divisional council.

18. The Divisional Council receiving any such diagram and report shall transmit the same, together with any remarks which the said council shall see fit to offer, to the Governor aforesaid, through the Surveyor-General, in order that a fresh grant, founded upon the resurvey and new diagram, if found by the said Surveyor-General to be correct, may be issued. 22. If the Surveyor-General, upon considering any such report, shall be of opinion that it does not contain sufficient information to enable him to determine whether there has or has not been any such encroachment, then the Surveyor-General may call upon such surveyor for such further information and may direct such further survey as the said Surveyor-General may think needful or desirable.

Surveyor-General may depute a person to take evidence, &c.

23. Should the Surveyor-General be unable, from the information furnished to him by such surveyor, to determine whether there has or has not been such an encroachment as aforesaid, then the Surveyor-General shall, with the sanction of the Governor, by any writing under his hand, appoint some fit and proper person, not being the surveyor employed in making the resurvey, to proceed to the spot for the purpose of taking evidence and collecting information.

No. 7—1865.

24. Every person so appointed as last aforesaid to take evidence is hereby authorized to summon witnesses, and examine them upon oath; and the provisions of the forty-eighth and forty-ninth sections of this Act shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to the said person so appointed, and to all witnesses summoned by him.

Person deputed may summon witnesses and take evidence upon oath.

25. Should the Surveyor-General, after considering all such information as shall have been supplied to him in regard to any such beacons as aforesaid, be of opinion that such beacons do encroach upon and include crown land, and if the person claiming such beacons as beacons of his farm shall not consent to the removal of the same to such spot or spots as the Surveyor-General shall prescribe, then the question in dispute shall be determined by commissioners chosen in manner and form as hereinafter set forth.

Disputes respecting encroachment on Crown lands may be settled by commissioners chosen for that purpose.

26. Surveyor subject to penalty for failure to report existence of Crown land.

27. As often as any surveyor employed to resurvey any section or area shall be detained from proceeding with such resurvey by reason of reporting to the Surveyor-General as aforesaid and collecting evidence or other information for that officer, such surveyor shall be recompensed for his time and trouble whilst so detained at such reasonable rate as the Surveyor-General shall, with the sanction of the Governor, fix and determine.

Unless sufficient cause is shown for not so reporting.

30. The expenses of the person in the twenty-third section mentioned (should any such person be appointed), the recompense of the surveyor, as in the twenty-seventh section of this Act mentioned, and the expenses of the witnesses in the twenty-eighth section of this Act mentioned, shall be paid in the first instance out of the general revenue, and they shall be included in the costs of the inquiry by the commissioners who shall investigate and decide the case, as such costs are described in the sixty-eighth and sixty-ninth sections of this Act: Provided that as often as no commission shall be appointed by reason that the Surveyor-General shall ultimately admit the correctness of the beacons which were, for a time, in doubt, then the charges in this section mentioned shall (unless it shall be otherwise agreed upon between the Surveyor-General and the person who claimed the said beacons) be borne by the general revenue: And provided that as often as no commission shall be appointed by reason that the person who originally claimed certain beacons shall ultimately remove them from where they first stood, and place them where the Surveyor-General shall have prescribed, then the charges in this section mentioned shall (unless it shall be otherwise agreed upon as aforesaid) be borne by such person: Provided, also, that as often as no commission shall be appointed by reason that the Surveyor-General and the owner of the private property concerned shall mutually agree that the beacons which were, for a time, in question shall finally be placed neither where such owner originally placed them, nor where the Surveyor-General originally prescribed, but at some intermediate spot or spots, then such charges as aforesaid shall (unless it shall be otherwise agreed upon as aforesaid) be borne by the general revenue.

such notice, or within such further time as the said council shall think fit to grant in any particular case; and any landowner failing without lawful cause so to deliver the same shall be liable to pay the sum of five pounds sterling, to be recovered by such council, suing by its secretary, and paid into the funds of such council: Provided that the Divisional Council receiving any such deeds shall give a receipt for the same, and be responsible for the return of the same, or, in case of loss, for the supply of official copies thereof.

Council to give receipt, and be responsible for return.

32. The proprietor of every farm lying within any section or area in process of resurvey shall be bound, upon the application of the surveyor employed on such resurvey to point out to such surveyor the beacons of his farm, and shall also be bound, upon the like application, to admit or deny, by some writing witnessed by not less than two witnesses, the correctness of any of the beacons of any adjoining farm, which beacons abut upon his own farm, and which beacons shall be pointed out to him by the said surveyor; and in case any such proprietor shall refuse or neglect, after reasonable notice from such surveyor so to do, to point out his own beacons, then any beacons of any adjoining farm, which beacons may be inconsistent with the beacons of such proprietor, shall be deemed to be admittedly true and correct; and in case any such proprietor shall, after reasonable notice, refuse or neglect to admit or deny, in writing as aforesaid, the correctness of the beacons of any adjoining farm, which beacons abut upon his own farm, and which beacons he shall, as aforesaid, have been called upon to admit or deny, then those last-mentioned beacons shall be also deemed and taken to be admittedly true and correct; Provided, also, that the proprietor of every farm, whether within or without the division to which the section or area shall belong, which shall adjoin or abut upon any part of the outer side of the limits or boundary of any such section or area, shall be bound, upon such application as aforesaid, to point out the beacons of his farm; and should any such proprietor refuse or neglect so to do, then the same effects and consequences shall take place as are in this section enacted in regard to such refusal or neglect occurring in regard to any farm within the limits of the section or area.

Landholders bound to point out beacons and to admit or deny correctness of adjoining beacons.

How in case of neglect or refusal to do so.

Provisions of this section to apply to adjoining farms, whether within or without division to which section belongs.

33. If, in any case, the title-deed and diagram of any farm lying within any such section or area as aforesaid shall, upon resurvey, be found correct, and shall be found to be so by the Surveyor-General, so that no fresh grant of such farm shall be necessary, then the Surveyor-General shall cause a certificate of such correctness to be endorsed or written upon such diagram in testimony of such correctness.

When title deed and diagram are found to be correct, certificate to that effect to be endorsed on the latter.

34. No Divisional Council shall issue any diagram bearing any such certificate as is in the last preceding section mentioned until it shall be certified, in writing, to such council by the surveyor who made the resurvey, or by some other surveyor to be approved of by the Surveyor-General, that the beacons of such farm have been inspected by him, and that they are correctly placed, and are constructed according to the provisions of the hundred and twelfth section of this Act.

Unless it be certified that provisional beacons have been demolished.

35. No Divisional Council shall issue any diagram bearing any such certificate as aforesaid, until it shall be certified, in writing, by the surveyor who resurveyed the section or area in question, or some other surveyor to be approved of by the Surveyor-General, that all provisional beacons, if any, of the farm in regard to which such certificate shall have been given, have been demolished or removed.

How, if dispute as to boundaries cannot be settled by parties concerned.

36. In all cases in which any surveyor employed in any such section or area as aforesaid shall find that any dispute exists regarding boundaries, which dispute cannot be settled amongst themselves by the parties interested, such surveyor shall give notice of such dispute, and of the names of all parties interested in it, so far as he can judge or discover, to the Divisional Council, in order that, by the means hereinafter provided, such dispute may be inquired into and settled.

Commission of inquiry, how to be formed and number of members.

37. As often as the Divisional Council shall receive any such notice as aforesaid, the said council shall take the same into consideration, and regard being had to the nature of the dispute to be settled, shall frame a list of six men, none of whom shall have any interest in the matter in dispute, or be related to any person who shall be interested therein in or within the fourth degree of consanguinity or affinity, from or out of which six men, two men to form, together with the Civil Commissioner of the division, as hereinafter mentioned, a commission of inquiry, shall be selected or obtained, in the manner hereinafter in that behalf provided.

Who may be placed on list.

38. The list aforesaid of six men, to be framed by the Divisional Council, may include members of such council as well as men not members; and shall contain the names of such men as shall, by the said council, be thought qualified to form an impartial and intelligent judgment upon the dispute in question: Provided that the said council, before inserting in the said list the name of any man proposed to be set down therein, shall ascertain from him that, if necessary, he will be prepared to act as a member of the commission; and provided, also, that not more than four of the names upon any such list shall be the names of members of the said council: Provided, also, that the name of the Civil Commissioner of the division shall, in no case, be inserted upon such list.

Consent to act on commission to be previously obtained.

39. As soon as such list of six men shall have been prepared, and notice thereof given to the parties to the said dispute, it shall be lawful for the said parties, in person, or by agents authorized by any writing under their hands, to attend at some time and place to be fixed by such council, in order that, as often as such dispute shall exist between the owner or owners of two farms only, the owner or owners of each farm may, if so minded, strike off from such list the names of two men, so as to leave thereon the names of two men to form, with the Civil Commissioner of the division, the said commission : Provided that the owner or owners of one farm shall first strike off one name, and then the owner or owners of the other farm, another name, and so again alternately ; and provided that the farm of which the owner or owners shall strike off the first name shall be decided by lot.

If dispute be between owners of two farms only, number of proposed members may be reduced.

No. 7—1865.

How such reduction shall be made.

40. In cases in which any such dispute as aforesaid shall embrace or involve a number of farms greater than two, it shall be lawful for the owner or owners of the two farms which shall respectively have the chief or principal interest upon the opposite sides of the dispute, to strike off, in manner aforesaid, for themselves and the others having a common or kindred interest with them, four names from the list of six men already mentioned. And in case any question shall arise regarding the two farms, or either of them, which really have the chief or principal interest in the dispute, such question shall be decided by the Divisional Council.

How reduction may take place in case of dispute between more than two.

Divisional Council to decide as to relative interest of parties to dispute.

41. Should any owner or owners entitled to strike off, in manner aforesaid, two names, decline so to do, this shall not prevent the other party from striking off, if so minded, two names: Provided that as often as the non-exercise of the right to strike off names, by either or both of the parties entitled so to do, shall leave a number of names greater than two upon the list aforesaid of six men, then the two men to form, with the Civil Commissioner of the division, the commission shall be taken by lot from the names so left.

How, if owners decline to strike off one or more names.

How, when more than two names remain on the list.

42. As often as any dispute in any such section or area as aforesaid, shall be a dispute relating to any crown land, as in the twenty-first section of this Act mentioned, then the Surveyor-General shall be deemed to be one of the parties to such dispute, and shall, in person or by an agent authorized by any writing under his hand, be entitled, on behalf of Government, to strike off in manner aforesaid two names from the list of six men framed as aforesaid by the Divisional Council, and the other party to such dispute two other names.

When disputes shall relate to Crown land, Surveyor-General to be one of the parties.

43. For the better and more satisfactory taking and recording of evidence, and securing greater regularity in the proceedings of the commission, the Civil Commissioner of the division shall, except as hereinafter is excepted, be ex officio, a member of the commission, and shall, together with the two men so selected as aforesaid, form such commission : Provided that in case such Civil Commissioner should have any interest in the matter in dispute, or shall be related to any person so interested in or within the fourth degree of consanguinity or affinity,—or in case such Civil Commissioner should, for any reason to be allowed by the Governor as sufficient, desire to be excused from serving on such commission, or should such Civil Commissioner, for any reason to be allowed by the Governor as sufficient, be objected to by either of the parties to the dispute,—then some other Civil Commissioner, or some Resident Magistrate, to be named by the Divisional Council, with the sanction of the Governor, shall, with the two men so selected as aforesaid, form the commission.

Divisional council to notify time and place for commission to meet.

44. As soon as may be after a commission of three members shall, in manner aforesaid, have been obtained, the Divisional Council shall cause notice, in writing, to be given to the parties interested in the matter or matters in dispute of a time and place at which the said parties, with any witnesses whom they shall desire to have examined, shall attend, for the purpose of meeting, and giving information to, the commissioners named in such notice; and the Divisional Council shall hand over to such commissioners all title-deeds and diagrams or copies thereof in the possession of such council and relating to the matter or matters in dispute.

Oath to be taken by civil commissioner or resident magistrate.

45. At the time and place mentioned in such notice the said Commissioner shall assemble, and the Civil Commissioner or Resident Magistrate forming one of such commissioners shall, before the said commissioners proceed to any other business, take, in the presence of the other commissioners and of the by-standers, the following oath, that is to say:

Form of oath.

“I, A. B., do solemnly swear, as in the presence of Almighty God, that I will, to the best of my skill and knowledge, and without fear, favour, or prejudice, inquire into and decide all matters which this commission has been appointed to inquire into and decide. So help me God!”

Other members of commission to take similar oath.

And the Civil Commissioner or Resident Magistrate shall then administer the same oath, mutatis mutandis, to the other two commissioners, and the taking of the said oath by the commissioners shall be entered upon the minutes of their proceedings.

Examination, how to be conducted.

46. The said commissioners so assembled, being assisted by the surveyor who reported as aforesaid to the Divisional Council the existence of the dispute, or some other surveyor to be approved of by the Surveyor-General, shall, in the presence of the parties to such dispute, examine all deeds, documents, and witnesses produced by the parties, and shall inspect the localities in question between the parties, so as to ascertain where, according to real and substantial justice between the parties, the disputed beacons ought of right to stand: Provided that it shall be lawful for any party, whether present in person or not, to be assisted by an agent.

Parties to dispute may be assisted by an agent.

Rules for deciding matter in dispute.

47. In determining what real and substantial justice between the parties truly is, the commissioners will take into their consideration the particular circumstances of each particular case, but they will, as general principles be expected to recognize and act upon the rules following, that is to say:

a. The original beacons of farms, as pointed out at the original measurement thereof shall be deemed to denote and include the true and proper farms as granted and intended so to be, notwithstanding that such beacons may not correspond with the original diagrams, or with the extents of land which the original title-deeds purport to grant. This rule is, however, to be subject to the qualification or modification mentioned under letter b.

- b*. As often as it shall be made to appear that certain well-ascertained beacons have been, for an uninterrupted period of thirty years or upwards next before the day on which the commission in the particular case was, in manner aforesaid, selected or obtained, recognized by the parties who dispute the same before the commissioners, or those under whom such parties claim, as the true and proper beacons, such beacons shall be taken to be and to have been the original beacons, nor shall any proof to the contrary be acted upon, unless the parties disputing such beacons shall allege and prove some fraud, deceit, or circumvention, in regard to such beacons, upon the part of the person maintaining their correctness, or upon the part of those from or under whom such persons claim.
- c*. As often as it shall be made to appear that any land included within the original beacons of an older grant has afterwards been included within the diagram and beacons, or diagram or beacons, of a later grant, the right of the older grant to the "overlap" shall prevail, unless in the cases next hereinafter stated under letters d and e.
- d*. If the parties interested in the later grant shall prove that they, or those from or under whom they claim, are or were purchasers for valuable consideration, and shall prove that they did, acting bonâ fide, and without notice of any error, purchase the farm granted by the later grant, according to its original beacons, and shall prove that the error made in planting or pointing out such original beacons was induced by the neglect or default of the parties interested, for the time being, in the older grant, in not having kept up their own beacons, or in not objecting, if present at the time of the inspection of the later grant, to the position of the beacons of such later grant, or in not attending at such time for the purpose of so objecting, in case, by the custom of the country, they ought to have so attended, then the title of the later grant to the "overlap" shall prevail: Provided that if the original beacons of the older farm were up and visible at the time of the survey of the later farm, then the right of the older farm to the "overlap" shall prevail, although the parties for the time being interested therein did not attend at the inspection of the later grant; and provided that, if such parties attended at the inspection of the later grant, and pointed out or gave notice of the spots where their beacons had been and should be, the older farm shall, in like manner, be entitled to the "overlap," although the beacons thereof may not have been then up or visible.

- e.* Although there may have been nothing in the conduct of the parties interested in the older grant, or those from or under whom they claim, in reference to the origin of the error in the later grant, which would prevent the said older grant from being entitled to the "overlap," yet if, for thirty years or upwards, beacons other than the original beacons of the older farm have been recognized in manner and form as in letter b set forth, then the rule mentioned in letter b shall apply.
- f.* As often as one party to any dispute shall rely upon the existing diagram, and shall maintain that the beacons which contradict it have been shifted, and the other party shall rely upon such beacons as original and authentic, and shall maintain that the diagram which contradicts them is erroneous, then the commissioners, in deciding whether such beacons are or are not the original and authentic beacons, shall have regard to the nature of such beacons as likely or not likely to have been shifted, to the nature of the diagrams as likely or not likely to be erroneous, and to the evidence produced before them as that of witnesses likely or not likely to know and speak the truth, and shall decide the controversy to the best of their skill and judgment. This rule, however, shall not apply in any case to which the rules under letters b and e shall apply.

Commissioners may summon witnesses,
and require production of documents.

48. If the commissioners should, in any case, desire to obtain the evidence of any person who shall not come before them of his own accord, nor be produced by either or any of the parties interested in the case, it shall be lawful for the said commissioners, or any of them, by any summons under his hand, to require the attendance of any person who shall be regarded as able to give useful information, and to require such person to bring with him and produce such documents and papers as may be in his possession or power, and be deemed necessary to be examined; and every such summons shall be served by any person appointed for the purpose by the commissioners or any of them. And any person without lawful cause disobeying any such summons, after his reasonable expenses have been tendered to him, or without lawful cause refusing to answer any lawful question put to him by the said commissioners, or any of them, shall, upon conviction, incur a fine not exceeding forty pounds sterling, to be recovered in manner and form as provided by the Ordinance No. 6, 1839: Provided that obeying summons.

the offence of disobeying any such summons shall be deemed to be committed in the district in which the person disobeying usually resides, although the place where such person should have given his attendance may be in another district.

No. 7—1865.

Offence shall be deemed committed in district in which offender resides.

49. It shall be lawful for the said commissioners, or any two or one of them, acting in pursuance of this Act, to administer an oath to any witness whom they or he shall examine, to the effect that the evidence he shall give regarding the matters and things that shall be lawfully required of him shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help him God. And any witness who shall, before any such commissioners as aforesaid, or any two or one of them, make on oath, knowingly and wilfully, any false statement in regard to any matter material to any question which shall be the subject of inquiry by such commissioners, or any two or one of them, shall be guilty of perjury, and shall, upon conviction, be liable to such punishment as shall be by law provided for the said crime: Provided, always, that as often as by this or by any other section of this Act any person is required to take an oath, such person shall be entitled to make his solemn affirmation or declaration instead of an oath in case he would, if a witness giving evidence in a Court of Justice, be by law entitled so to do.

Commissioners may take evidence on oath.

Punishment for false oath.

When declaration may be substituted for oath.

50. It shall be lawful for any such commissioners to adjourn any inquiry, or the further proceeding thereupon, from place to place, or from time to time, as convenience may require; and such commissioners may, by any writing signed by the three of them, depute any two or one of them to take, in writing, the evidence of any person or persons named or described in such writing, in order that such evidence may be received and considered at the next meeting of the said commissioners.

Inquiry may be adjourned, and members deputed to obtain evidence.

51. The commissioners shall, when adjourning any inquiry pending before them, announce the place, day, and hour of their next intended meeting; and should they, during the adjournment, find reason to alter their announced intention, they shall cause notice to be given to all parties interested, through the field-cornet, of the changed place, day, or hour of such next meeting.

Upon adjournment, notice of time and place of intended meeting to be given.

52. The decision of the commissioners may be given by any two of them notwithstanding the dissent of the third.

How when decision of commission shall not be unanimous.

53. The commissioners shall, with all convenient speed, transmit to the Divisional Council a report, in writing, of their decision whether unanimous or not, upon the case submitted to them together with such documentary and other evidence as they may have taken, and any remarks explanatory of their decision which they may think it necessary or proper to attach.

Commission to report decision and forward evidence, &c., to divisional council.

54. The Divisional Council shall cause notice, in writing, to be sent through the field-cornet or some other person to the parties interested in the said decision, whether such decision shall have been an unanimous decision or a decision by a majority, informing such parties that unless legal proceedings, as by this Act provided, shall, within three months from and after the receipt of such notice, be instituted for the purpose of reversing or altering such decision, the same will become final, binding, and conclusive, and the field-cornet or other person will report to the Divisional Council the day or days upon which, and the manner in which every such notice shall have been served: Provided that as often as the Surveyor-General shall be one of the parties, notice to him shall be served upon the Civil Commissioner, who shall transmit the same to the Surveyor-General without delay: Provided, also, that such notice shall be served upon such parties either personally or by leaving at the residence of each party to be served a copy of such notice with one of his household: Provided, further, that in case any farm shall be jointly owned by more persons than one who shall, as such joint owners, be interested in the decision to which such notice relates, then, in case such joint owners shall not all reside upon the said farm, service upon such of them as reside thereupon shall be good service upon them all, unless the Divisional Council shall otherwise direct: Provided, lastly, that the costs of serving such notice shall be included in the costs of the inquiry.

Supreme Court may be appealed to against decision.

Any number of persons interested may join in appeal.

Surveyor-General, in certain cases, to be party interested.

Unanimous decisions prior to taking effect of this Act not affected.

Divisional Council on receiving notice of appeal, to transmit report and evidence to Supreme Court.

Court may be moved for rule to reopen decision.

55. It shall be lawful for any person whom such last mentioned decision shall or may concern, at any time within the three months aforesaid, to present a petition to the Supreme Court, stating that he feels aggrieved by such decision, and praying the said Court to enquire into and correct the same, and notice of such petition having been lodged shall be given, by or on behalf of the person presenting the same, to the Secretary of the Divisional Council not later than fourteen days from and after the day of the presentation thereof: Provided that any number of persons having the same or a similar interest opposing such decision may join in petitioning for the correction of the same: Provided, also, that the Surveyor-General, acting on behalf of Government, shall be deemed and taken to be a person concerned in any such decision which shall relate to crown land: Provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed so as to confer or permit any such appeal as aforesaid against any decision, in regard to which the commissioners shall have been unanimous, pronounced before the taking effect of this Act.

56. The Divisional Council, upon receiving notice as aforesaid that a petition has been lodged, shall, with all convenient speed, transmit to the Supreme Court, addressed to the Registrar thereof, the report of the commissioners upon the subject of the decision petitioned against, and all evidence, documentary or otherwise, and all remarks received by the said council from the commissioners, or any of them.

57. It shall be lawful for the petitioner, at any time after such report, evidence, and remarks as aforesaid shall be in the hands of the Supreme Court, to move the said Court, without notice, for a rule to show cause why the decision complained of should not be opened up for the purpose of being corrected, and why the petitioner should not be adjudged to be entitled to make good his right to such specific relief as shall be set forth in such rule; and the said Court, upon consideration of the report, evidence, and remarks aforesaid, and of any affidavit or affidavits which may be filed by the petitioner, and of such matter as shall be urged in his behalf, shall grant or refuse such rule as shall to justice appertain: Provided that the said Court shall only have regard to facts resting upon affidavit, in case it shall, by affidavit, be made to appear to such Court that good and sufficient cause existed why such facts were not proved before the commissioners.

No. 7—1865.

58. Should the said Court see fit to grant such rule as aforesaid, it shall be served upon all such persons as the said Court shall direct, and shall be returnable upon such day as the said Court shall appoint, and upon such day it shall be lawful for the parties served with the same, or any of them, to appear, and upon affidavit, or otherwise, to show cause against such rule, and thereupon such rule shall be discharged or made absolute, as to the said Court shall seem meet.

How, if rule be granted.

59. In case the said Court shall make such rule as aforesaid absolute, then the said Court shall direct the manner in which the matter in controversy between the applicants and the respondents shall be further investigated, and may take additional evidence, either viva voce or by affidavit, or may order an examination before a commissioner appointed by such Court, and upon interrogatories framed or approved of by such Court, or may depute one or more of the Judges of such Court to inspect the farms in question and take evidence upon the spot, and such Court shall, in the most speedy and inexpensive manner which shall consist with a thorough and effectual investigation of the case, decide, according to the principles set forth in the forty-seventh section of this Act, whether the decision in question shall or shall not be affirmed, wholly or in part.

When rule shall be made absolute court to direct manner of further investigation

60. As often as no petition shall be presented to the Supreme Court, within the time aforesaid, and as often as the Supreme Court, shall refuse a rule to show cause as aforesaid, or having granted such rule shall afterwards discharge the same, or having made such rule absolute shall ultimately affirm the decision petitioned against, then such decision shall become and be thenceforward final, binding, and conclusive; and thereupon the same proceedings and consequences shall take place in regard to new diagrams and fresh grants as are hereinbefore provided with respect to the farms which are in the sixteenth section of this Act mentioned, precisely as if the beacons established by such decision had been beacons originally admitted to be true and correct.

When decision of commission shall be final.

No. 7—1865.

If decision be corrected, court to fix position of beacons.

61. If, in any case, the Supreme Court shall see fit to correct any decision petitioned against, then the said Court shall fix by its judgment the proper position of all beacons connected with the case, and may delegate to such fit and proper person or persons as the said Court shall select the duty of placing the said beacons; and such beacons shall be forthwith constructed as hereinafter in the one hundred and twelfth section of this Act prescribed, and the surveyor aforesaid employed in the resurvey of the said section or area, or some other surveyor to be approved of by the Surveyor-General, shall treat and consider the beacons planted under the judgment of the Court as beacons admittedly correct; and thereupon the same proceedings and consequences shall take place in regard to new diagrams and fresh grants as are hereinbefore provided with respect to the farms which are in the sixteenth section of this Act mentioned.

Eastern Districts Court to have concurrent jurisdiction with Supreme Court.

62. As often as, by any of the preceding sections of this Act, jurisdiction is given to the Supreme Court, the Court of the Eastern Districts shall have jurisdiction concurrent with that of the Supreme Court in regard to all lands lying and being within any of the districts over which the said Court of the Eastern Districts has, by virtue of the "Administration of Justice Act, 1864," or has, or shall have, by any other Act, the certain jurisdiction by the "Administration of Justice Act, 1864," conferred.

Costs and charges of proceedings.

And whereas it is necessary to regulate the cost and charges of such proceedings as aforesaid, and to provide as to the manner in which the same shall be defrayed: And whereas, whilst the importance to the Colony at large of the objects contemplated by this Act is such as to justify a contribution towards the expense thereof from the public revenue, the importance to all landowners, especially in cases of disputed beacons, of being supplied with new and accurate diagrams and grants whereby they may know what lands are really their own, so as to divide and deal with them as they may think fit, without strife or litigation, is such as to render it right and proper that such landowners should also contribute, but in different proportions, according to circumstances: Be it enacted as follows:

Surveyor to be remunerated according to tariff.

63. Every surveyor employed in or upon any resurvey under this Act shall, in the absence of any special agreement between such surveyor and the Divisional Council, be remunerated according to a scale or tariff to be fixed from time to time, in regard to each division, by the Governor, with the advice of the Surveyor-General of the Colony and of the Divisional Council of such division.

Remuneration to commissioner.

64. Every commissioner aforesaid shall receive an allowance of two guineas per day for every day during which he shall be really and bonâ fide engaged in any such inquiry as aforesaid, or in repairing to or returning from the place or places where the same shall have been carried on: Provided that such allowance shall include horse-hire.

65. Every field-cornet performing any duty under the provisions of this Act shall be entitled to horse-hire and personal allowance, according to the Ordinance No. 9 of 1848.

No. 7—1865.
Remuneration to field-cornet.

66. Every witness attending and giving evidence in pursuance of any summons of the commissioners, issued under the provisions of the forty-eighth section of this Act, shall be entitled to receive his reasonable expenses, as if the place of his attendance were a Resident Magistrate's Court, and he had attended thereat to give evidence in a civil case.

Expenses of witnesses.

67. In all cases in which sections or areas shall be proclaimed after the taking effect of this Act, then, as regards all farms in any such section or area, which farms shall be found with all their beacons up, and admitted to be correct, as in the sixteenth section of this Act mentioned, the public revenue shall bear one half of the expenses of the resurvey, of the new diagram, and of the fresh grant, and the owner of the farm concerned the other half: Provided that, in regard to sections or areas proclaimed before the taking effect of this Act, the provisions of the forty-seventh and forty-eighth sections of the Act No. 10, 1859, shall apply as if the same were herein inserted.

Expenses of resurvey in regard of farms, the beacons whereof shall be found to be correct.

Sections 47 and 48 of Act 10, 1859, to apply in regard to sections proclaimed prior to Act taking effect.

68. In all cases of disputes investigated by commissioners in manner hereinbefore provided, the expenses of the resurvey shall be kept distinct from the costs of the inquiry, and it shall be in the discretion of the commissioners to decide, as they are hereby required to decide, whether any portion of the expenses of the resurvey shall be paid by the public revenue, or whether the whole of such expenses shall be paid by the owners respectively concerned: Provided that in no case shall the public revenue be liable for more than one-half of the expenses of the resurvey of any farm: And provided that the owner or owners of every farm shall be liable for the whole of such expenses, in case the public revenue shall not contribute thereto, or in case of such contribution for so much as the public revenue shall not pay: Provided, also, that it shall be competent for the commissioners to decide that any owner or owners, paying as aforesaid, the whole or any portion of the said expenses, shall recover the whole of what he shall have so paid, or any portion thereof, which the said commissioners shall fix, from any other owner or owners, as part and parcel of the costs in the next succeeding section mentioned.

Resurvey expenses to be kept distinct from cost of inquiry.

Portion for which the public revenue may be liable.

Each owner of farm liable for all costs.

But may recover from other owners.

69. 72. In case the amount of any taxed and ascertained costs payable by any person who shall not by himself or his agent have signified in writing his intention to bring such taxation in review before the Divisional Council, shall remain unpaid after the expiration of twenty-one days from the day named in the notice aforesaid for the taxation of such costs, it shall be lawful for the secretary aforesaid to certify in writing to the Resident Magistrate of the district the amount due by any person or persons within his jurisdiction, and the process of such Court may issue for the levy of such amount, precisely as if such amount were a sum which had been recovered in a civil suit by the secretary aforesaid, in his said capacity. And as often as any taxation of costs shall be brought in review before the Divisional Council, the costs, as settled by the said council, upon review, shall be in manner aforesaid recoverable, if need be, by the process in execution of the Court of Resident Magistrate.

And whereas, in some parts of this Colony, there are farms which are partly in one division and partly in another, and divisions of which the boundary lines dividing them from other divisions are, in certain places, the boundary lines dividing certain farms one from another: And whereas, when beacons or boundaries happen to be disputed by and between any such farms and contiguous farms, doubts will arise as to the Divisional Council proper for the adjustment of such disputes: And whereas it is expedient to remove such doubts: Be it enacted as follows:

When farms are situated partly in one division and partly in another.

76. As often as any boundary line in dispute between two or more farms shall lie partly in one division, and partly in another division, and as often as any boundary line in dispute between two or more farms shall form part of the boundary line between any two divisions, and as often as a dispute regarding any boundary line within any division shall involve or affect any farm or farms lying wholly or in part in any other division, it shall be competent for the parties involved in such dispute to agree together upon or in regard to the Divisional Council to which the adjustment of such dispute shall be referred; and in case the said parties shall not agree thereupon, then it shall be competent for the Divisional Council of the respective divisions in which any of the lands involved in or affected by such dispute shall lie, to agree upon or in regard to the Divisional Council to which the adjustment of such dispute shall be referred; and in case neither the said parties nor the said councils shall so agree, then the Divisional Council to which such adjustment shall be referred shall be appointed by the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council.

Owners of such farms to agree as to which council shall undertake adjustment of dispute.

In case of disagreement of owners, councils to agree.

And both failing, the Governor to decide.

77. In all such cases as are in the last preceding section described, it shall be competent for either of the persons interested in the dispute to give the other person having an adverse interest a notice, in writing, naming the Divisional Council to which, in the opinion of the person giving such notice, the adjustment of the dispute should be referred, and requiring the person to whom such notice shall be given to state, in writing, within fourteen days next after the receipt of such notice, whether or not he agrees to refer such dispute to the Divisional Council named in such notice, and, if not, what other Divisional Council he proposes.

When both parties agree, council selected to decide.

78. If, within the said period of fourteen days or afterwards, both parties shall agree as to the Divisional Council to which the adjustment of the dispute shall be referred, then such Divisional Council so agreed on shall have the same power and authority to adjust such dispute as if all the lands involved in or affected by it lay within the division to which such Divisional Council belongs.

On failure to agree parties may address themselves to the council of any division in which the disputed beacons are situate.

79. In case the said parties shall not within the fourteen days aforesaid, or within some extension of that time mutually agreed upon between them for the purpose of negotiation, agree upon or in regard to the Divisional Council to which the adjustment of the dispute shall be referred, then either of the said parties may address either or any of the Divisional Councils in which any of the lands involved in or affected by such dispute shall lie, stating the existence of such dispute, the giving or receipt of the notice aforesaid, the persons by and to whom such notice was given, and the failure of the parties to agree upon or in regard to the Divisional Council to which the adjustment of the dispute should be referred, and requesting the council so addressed to make arrangements for or in regard to the appointment of a Divisional Council by which the dispute shall be adjusted.

Duty of council, so addressed.

80. The Divisional Council so addressed as aforesaid shall, as soon as conveniently may be, and not later than one month next after being so addressed, communicate with the council or councils of the other division or divisions in which any of the lands involved in or affected by such dispute shall lie; and such councils shall, between or amongst themselves, agree, if they can, upon or in regard to the Divisional Council to which the adjustment of the dispute shall be referred; and thereupon such last-mentioned Divisional Council shall have the same power and authority to adjust such dispute as if all the lands involved in or affected by it lay within the division to which such Divisional Council belongs: Provided that it shall be lawful for the said last-mentioned council to agree with the other council or councils in question upon or in regard to all or any of the names proper to be placed upon the list of six men mentioned in the thirty-seventh section of this Act, should it eventually become necessary to appoint a commission.

As regards the selection of commissioners in such case.

On failure of councils to agree, application may be made to Governor.

81. In case the Divisional Councils aforesaid shall be unable between or amongst themselves to agree upon or in regard to the Divisional Council to which the adjustment of the dispute in question shall be referred, it shall be competent for either or any of the councils so unable to agree to apply to the Governor or name, with the advice of the Executive Council, the Divisional Council to which the adjustment of the dispute in question shall be referred.

82. As often as the Governor shall receive any such application as aforesaid, he shall, with the advice of the Executive Council, name the Divisional Council to which the adjustment of the dispute in question shall be referred: Provided that before naming such Divisional Council, the Governor shall call for a report upon the subject from the other council or councils concerned, and consider such reasons as may be therein given for naming some particular Divisional Council: And provided that as often as the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, shall name any Divisional Council for the adjustment of any dispute, such last-mentioned Divisional Council shall have the same power and authority to adjust such dispute as if all the lands involved in or affected by it lay within the division to which such last-mentioned Divisional Council belongs.

No. 7—1865.
Governor may name council to adjust dispute.

But not before due inquiry shall have been made.

Powers of council named by Governor.

83. Should it happen that any case not expressly provided for in this Act should occur, whereby a doubt or question might be raised regarding which one of any greater number of Divisional Councils is proper for the adjustment of any dispute, or for the performance of any other function under this Act, it shall be competent for the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, to determine such question, and thereupon the Divisional Council named by the Governor, with such advice as aforesaid, shall have the same power and authority to adjust such dispute, or perform such other function, as if all the lands involved in or affected by it lay within the division to which such last-mentioned council belongs: Provided that it shall not be competent for the parties to any dispute, nor for the Divisional Council connected with any dispute, nor for the Governor, to appoint any Divisional Council to adjust such dispute, except a Divisional Council belonging to some division in which or along some part of the boundary of which some of the lands involved in or affected by such dispute shall lie.

Doubts regarding functions, &c., of divisional councils, under this Act, may be determined by Governor.

No councils but those of the divisions in which, or along the boundary of which, the lands involved lie, to be appointed to adjust dispute.

And whereas the proclamation of the 23rd of December, 1814, by Lord Charles Henry Somerset, the then Governor of this Colony, enjoining the erection and preservation of permanent landmarks or beacons, having in many parts of this Colony, fallen into disuse, was, by the Act aforesaid, No. 10, 1859, repealed, and other provisions enacted in its stead: And whereas the period limited by the said Act No. 10, 1859, for the erection of beacons, either provisional or permanent, has for some time expired, and it is therefore the duty of every landowner in this Colony to have, now and henceforth, all the beacons of his farm erected and in existence: And whereas it is expedient to enforce the said duty by suitable penalties, as well as to provide for fixing, by acquiescence for a certain time, or in case of dispute, by due investigation, the boundaries of farms not contained in any such section or area as is in the third section of this Act mentioned: Be it enacted as follows:

throughout the Colony shall be found, of which farm all the beacons shall not be standing or in existence, the owner or owners of every such farm shall incur a fine not exceeding five pounds, nor less than one pound, for every beacon not then standing or in existence, and such fine shall be incurred afresh for every three months, from and after a first conviction, during which such owner or owners shall fail or neglect to have such beacons put up: Provided that such fine may be prosecuted for by the secretary of the Divisional Council, in his capacity as such secretary, and that the person convicted shall also be liable to the reasonable costs of the prosecution, and the fine when recovered, shall be paid to the Divisional Council for public purposes: Provided also that no prosecution under this section shall in any case be commenced later than three months next after the day on which the whole of the beacons of the farm in regard to which the fine shall have been incurred shall have been standing or in existence: Provided, further, that such beacons need not at any time before the 31st day of December, 1866, be of the description in the hundred and twelfth section of this Act described, and shall until then be merely provisional in their nature, and shall not be evidence to any extent of the rights of parties, but only of the fact that such rights are or may be in dispute; but no person shall, against the will or without the authority of the person or persons by whom such beacons shall have been put up, or without the authority of some competent Court, or of this Act, remove, destroy, or injure any such beacon; and any person who shall, in contravention of this section, remove, destroy, or injure any such beacon, shall upon conviction, forfeit any sum not exceeding ten pounds nor less than two pounds, to be recovered and applied in the same manner as the certain other fine in this section mentioned.

85. As often as any farm in regard to which any fine or penalty under this Act shall have been incurred shall be jointly owned in undivided shares by more persons than one, any one or more of such joint owners shall be liable and may be prosecuted for the whole of such fine or penalty.

86. As often as any new farm shall have been created after the taking effect of this Act, either by grant from the Crown or by the subdivision of any other farm or farms, the owner of such new farms shall be allowed a period of six months from the day of grant or transfer made to him within which period to erect the beacons of such new farm; and should not the whole of the beacons of such new farm be up or in existence at the expiration of such six months, then the fine in the eighty-fourth section of this Act mentioned shall be incurred by the owner of such farm.

87. No beacon, whether one erected before or one erected after the taking effect of the Act No. 10, 1859, shall (except as hereafter is excepted), be deemed to be admittedly true and correct, so as not to be afterwards disputed, before or until the 31st day of December, 1866, anything in any former Act to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided that nothing in this or in the next succeeding section contained shall extend to any of the beacons of any fresh grant issued under and by virtue of the said Act No. 10, 1859, or of this Act, and which beacons shall be placed in conformity with such fresh grant, which beacons shall not, nor shall any of them be capable of being at any time disputed.

No. 7—1865.
Not to extend to beacons of fresh grants.

88. No beacon of any farm, although such beacon shall be standing and in existence on the 31st day of December, 1867, (1) shall be deemed to be admittedly true and correct, so as not to be afterwards disputed, unless such beacon shall have been up and standing for not less than six months next before the said day, and unless the notice in the next succeeding section mentioned shall have been given.

No beacon to be admitted correct unless standing not less than six months before 31st December, 1867, and unless prescribed notice shall have been given.

89. Every person who desires that the beacons of his farm shall, on the said 31st day of December, 1867, (1) (if not sooner), become admittedly true and correct, may deliver a notice, in writing, to the Divisional Council of the division in which such farm is situated, giving the name of such farm, or otherwise describing it, and naming or otherwise describing the farms which immediately adjoin such farm, and stating that all the beacons of such farm are up. Any notice which shall omit to state that all the beacons of the farm of the person giving it are up, shall be null and void; and if any person shall give a notice stating that all the beacons of his farm are up, when, in truth and in fact such beacons are not all up, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds to be prosecuted for in like manner as the fine hereinbefore in the eighty-fourth section mentioned: Provided that nothing in this section contained shall impair or affect the validity of any notice given under the third section of the Act No. 6, 1862, at any time before the taking effect of this Act: And provided that every notice under this section of this Act shall be delivered to the said council not later than six months before the 31st day of December, 1867, (1) or otherwise the same shall be null and void: Provided, also, that the beacons in this section mentioned need not be beacons of the description in the one hundred and twelfth section described.

respectively mentioned shall have been given, shall, unless disputed before or on the day in the next succeeding section mentioned, become and be admittedly true and correct, so as not to be afterwards disputed: Provided that nothing herein contained shall extend to render admittedly true and correct any

No. 7—1865.

93. No beacon or beacons shall be deemed or taken to have been disputed unless an objection in writing shall have been lodged with the Divisional Council of the division in which such beacon or beacons is or are situated before the expiration of six months from the day on which the Divisional Council received the notice in the eighty-ninth section mentioned: Provided that any person who shall know that his beacons, or any of them, are questioned or objected to may at once apply to the council aforesaid, stating the circumstances, and requesting the council to have the correctness of such beacons investigated and determined under this Act. (1)

When beacons shall be taken as disputed.

Owners cognisant of dispute may at once apply to have dispute determined.

94. As often as any beacon or beacons shall be disputed in manner and form as in the last preceding section mentioned, and as often as any person whose beacons, or any of them, shall be objected to or questioned, shall make the application in the said section mentioned, then a surveyor or surveyors, appointed in manner and form as in the eleventh section of this Act mentioned, shall be sent by the Divisional Council to make a resurvey of all the farms or portions of farms, which it shall be necessary or proper to resurvey for the purpose of determining, or assisting to determine, the true and correct position of the beacons or beacon disputed or objected to; and the provisions of the thirty-first section of this Act shall apply to the title-deeds and transfer-deeds, and the provisions of the thirty-second section to the beacons, of all farms which, for the settlement of such dispute, it shall be necessary to resurvey or inspect: Provided, also, that as often as any such objection or application as in the last preceding section mentioned shall be lodged, it shall be lawful for the Divisional Council, in case it shall contemplate the formation of a section or area of country such as is in the third section of this Act mentioned, which section or area shall include the beacon or beacons in dispute, to defer for any period not exceeding twelve months from the day of the lodging of such objection or application the sending of a surveyor or surveyors to make the resurvey hereinbefore in this section mentioned.

that such deputed member shall be paid for his attendance at the rate hereinbefore in the sixty-fourth section of this Act mentioned in regard to a commissioner, and that his expenses shall be taken to be included in the cost of the resurvey: Provided, also, that it shall be in the discretion of the Divisional Council, in each particular case, to decide, according to circumstances, whether a member shall or shall not be deputed as aforesaid.

97. In case all the parties interested or concerned in any such beacon or beacons shall, with the aid and assistance of the deputed member aforesaid (if any), and of the surveyor or surveyors aforesaid who shall have made the resurvey aforesaid, agree amongst themselves upon the spot where the beacon or beacons which had previously been disputed or questioned ought of right to stand, then the beacons of all the farms so resurveyed shall be deemed to be admitted as correct, and thereupon all and singular the same proceedings shall take place in regard to the farms so resurveyed as are in the sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, and twentieth sections of this Act mentioned.

98. Should the deputed member aforesaid (if any), and such surveyor or surveyors as aforesaid, after the making of such resurvey as aforesaid, find that the disputing parties cannot agree amongst themselves in regard to the position of the beacon or beacons in dispute, then the said surveyor or surveyors shall give to the Divisional Council notice of such dispute, in manner and form as in the thirty-sixth section of this Act mentioned, and thereupon all and singular the same proceedings, in all respects, shall be had and taken as are hereinbefore in the several sections of this Act, from the thirty-sixth to the seventy-fifth, both inclusive, provided in regard to the determination by commissioners of similar disputes arising within such sections or areas as are in this Act mentioned.

99. As often as any farm not included in any such section or area as aforesaid, but adjoining to or abutting upon any crown land, shall be resurveyed by a surveyor appointed under the ninety-fourth section of this Act, it shall be the duty of such surveyor to report to the Surveyor-General the existence of such crown land in the manner by the twenty-first section of this Act directed, and thereupon all and singular the several sections of this Act, from the twenty-first to the thirtieth, both inclusive, shall apply to such surveyor, to such farm, and to such crown land, in like manner precisely as if such farm had been situate within some such section or area as aforesaid: Provided that the said surveyor shall not be bound to report upon the diagram or beacons of any farm adjoining such crown land, save and except the farm or farms which he shall be engaged in resurveying.

100. The Divisional Council of every division will, as much as circumstances will permit, adopt the system of defining or describing for resurvey sections or areas of country such as are in the third section of this Act mentioned, in preference to the system of deciding detached disputes between the owners of particular farms.

No. 7—1865.

101. As often as any such resurvey as aforesaid shall be made of any farm or farms not included in any such section or area of country as aforesaid, and as often as any such commission as aforesaid shall be selected and appointed to adjust any dispute regarding such a farm or farms, no part of the costs of such resurvey or of such inquiry shall be paid from or out of the public revenue. In case, upon the resurvey, the parties previously in dispute shall agree upon the beacon or beacons which were in controversy, then the owner of each farm shall (unless it be otherwise agreed upon) be liable for the expense of resurveying such farm. Sections 84 to 101 not to apply to farms included in sections for resurvey.

103. As often as it shall be found upon any resurvey or other proceeding connected with any disputed boundary, whether within a section, or area, or not, that other farms besides those originally engaged in the dispute are really involved in or affected by it, then the owners of every farm involved in or affected by the dispute shall, as well as the farms originally engaged, be deemed to be, for the purpose of the one hundred and first section of this Act, parties to the inquiry, so as to be liable, at the discretion of the commissioners, to pay or contribute towards paying the costs in the said section mentioned, in such shares and proportions as the commissioners in the said section mentioned shall, under the circumstances, consider just and shall adjudge.

Owners of farms not included in section may be made parties to inquiry and be liable for share of cost.

by such admitted beacons, such owner or owners may cause the said farm to be surveyed by a surveyor, appointed in manner and form as in the eleventh section of this Act mentioned, according to such admitted beacons; and thereupon the sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, and twentieth sections of this Act shall apply to such case, and a fresh grant shall be issued, showing a correct diagram and the true contents of the said farm: And provided that the expense of such survey shall be borne by the person causing the same to be made: Provided, also, that no fresh grant shall be issued by the Surveyor-General under this section until after the expiration of three months from the publication of a notice in the Government Gazette by the Divisional Council, at the expense of the owner of the farm surveyed, stating the name or other description of the farm surveyed, and the field-cornetcy and division in which it is situated, and that it has been surveyed under this section for a fresh grant, according to its admitted beacons as the same stood on the 31st December, 1867, <sup>(1)</sup> and for six months previously: Provided, lastly, that the provisions of the ninety-ninth section of this Act, relating to crown land, shall extend and apply to every surveyor employed in making any resurvey under this section, in like manner as if such surveyor had been appointed under the ninety-fourth section of this Act.

105. Every beacon, whether of a farm of which the beacons ought before the taking effect of this Act to have been up, or of a farm first created by grant or transfer after the taking effect of this Act, and which beacons shall have been erected at any time later than six months next before the 31st of December, 1867, <sup>(1)</sup> may be disputed as erroneous for any length of time during which it could lawfully have been disputed in case this Act, (except the next succeeding section thereof) and the several Acts by this Act repealed had not been passed: Provided that as often as any doubt or question shall arise as to the time at which any beacon in controversy was first erected, such beacon shall be deemed and taken to have been erected later than six months before the said 31st day of December, 1867, <sup>(1)</sup> unless the person asserting that it was erected before that date shall prove the giving, not later than six months next before the said 31st day of December, 1867, <sup>(1)</sup> of the notice in the eighty-ninth section of this Act mentioned; and that the beacon in question was up when such notice was given, and that such beacon had ever since been standing; and in the absence of such proof such beacon shall be deemed to have been erected for the first time later than six months next before the said 31st day of December, 1867, <sup>(1)</sup>: Provided, also, that for the purpose of this section, the notice mentioned in the third section of the Act No. 6 of 1862, if given before the taking effect of this Act, shall be deemed to be equivalent to the notice in the eighty-ninth section of this Act mentioned: Provided, further, that nothing in this section contained shall extend to any beacons which shall have been erected in pursuance of and in conformity with any resurvey made under this Act, all which beacons shall be and remain indisputable.

No. 7—1865.

Beacons erected in conformity with any resurvey under this Act, not affected.

106. The period of prescription in regard to immovable property in this Colony, and servitudes upon or connected therewith, shall, from and after the 1st day of January, 1867, be thirty years, instead of the third of a century.

Period of prescription and servitude limited to thirty years.

107. Nothing in this Act contained shall be construed so as to prevent the definition or description, at any time, of such sections or areas as are in this Act mentioned, it being the true intent and meaning of this Act, firstly, not to prevent or interfere with the creation, at any time, whether before or after the 31st day of December, 1867, <sup>(1)</sup> of such sections or areas as aforesaid; and secondly, to provide for the mode in which the beacons of farms not included in any such section or area may, if erected for a certain time before the 31st day of December, 1867, <sup>(1)</sup> become admittedly true and correct; and thirdly, to leave all other beacons whatsoever to be dealt with by the law of the Colony regulating prescription: Provided that if any such section or area shall include any farm which shall have been resurveyed, and shall have had its beacons fixed under the provisions of this Act applicable to the determination of detached disputes not arising within sections or areas previously described or defined, such farm shall not be again surveyed, or be chargeable with any of the expenses of the resurvey of the section or area in which such farm shall be afterwards included.

Definition or description of sections or areas not interfered with.

Farm already resurveyed, &c., if included in a section, not to be resurveyed in such section or charged with expenses.

108. Provided, always, and it is hereby declared, that it shall at all times hereafter, during the subsistence of this Act, be lawful for any person <sup>(2)</sup> who shall dispute the beacons of any other person, or whose beacons any other person shall dispute, to proceed, by objection or application (as the case may be), according to the ninety-third section of this Act: and thereupon the several sections of this Act from the ninety-fourth to the ninety-ninth, both inclusive, shall apply to the final settlement of such dispute: Provided that nothing in this section contained shall extend to any beacons within any section or area which shall have been proclaimed for resurvey.

Parties disputing beacons, or whose beacons are in dispute, not prevented from proceeding under section 93.

But not to extend to beacons included in any section.

109. Should it in any case happen that there shall be standing upon the 31st day of December, 1867, <sup>(1)</sup> and not then already objected to, or put in course of settlement, in manner and form as in the ninety-fourth section of this Act provided, the beacons of two or more farms not contained in any section or area which shall have been or shall be proclaimed for resurvey, which beacons shall be inconsistent with each other, so that all of them cannot be true and correct, then, in case neither of the persons maintaining, respectively, the correctness of each set of inconsistent beacons, shall have given the notice in the eighty-ninth section of this Act mentioned, none of the said beacons shall become or be admittedly true and correct, but shall all be capable of being disputed as erroneous for any length of time during which they might lawfully have been disputed in case this Act (except the hundred and sixth section thereof) and the several Acts by this Act repealed had not been passed. But in case one of the said persons shall have given such notice as aforesaid, and the other shall not, then the beacons of the person who shall have given such notice shall be deemed to be admittedly true and correct, as against the person who did not give such notice: Provided that if the farm of such last-mentioned person shall have first come into existence by grant or transfer, within the period of six months next before the 31st day of December, 1867, <sup>(1)</sup> then such person may object to the beacons of the person who gave such notice, at any time before the 31st day of December, 1868, <sup>(1)</sup> and such objection shall be of the same force and effect as if it had been lodged within the time in that behalf in the ninety-third section of this Act limited.

But council may extend time.

Council to prescribe size and shape of and material for beacons.

110. Nothing contained in the ninety-second or any succeeding section of this Act, regarding the cases or circumstances in which beacons shall or may become admittedly true and correct, shall apply to any beacon adjoining any crown land, which beacon may (except as hereinafter is excepted) be disputed by the Government for any length of time during which the same might have been disputed in case this Act and the several Acts hereby repealed had not been passed: Provided that nothing herein contained shall extend to any beacon erected in conformity with any fresh grant made, upon resurvey, under the Act No. 10, 1859, or under this Act, all which beacons, whether within a section or area or not, and if not within a section or area, whether under section ninety-four or section one hundred and four, shall be and remain indisputable.

111. From and after the 31st day of December, 1866, the owner or owners of every farm throughout the Colony shall (except as hereinafter is excepted) be at all times bound to keep up and in repair the beacons of such farm, being such beacons as are in the next succeeding section mentioned: Provided that when, by reason of disputes or any other sufficient cause, any owners or owner shall not be in a position to put up such beacons as are by the said succeeding section contemplated, it shall be lawful for the Divisional Council to grant to such owner or owners such an extension of time for the erection of such beacons as to the said council shall seem reasonable.

112. All such beacons as are in the last preceding section mentioned shall be of such a size and shape as the Divisional

113. If after the 31st day of December, 1866, or after any further extension of time which the Divisional Council may under the hundred and eleventh section of this Act, have seen fit to grant, any farm within the Colony shall be found which shall not have the beacons thereof, being such beacons as are in the last preceding section mentioned, up and in good repair, the owner or owners of such farm shall incur, for and in regard to each beacon not up, or not in repair, a fine not exceeding five pounds, nor less than one pound, in addition to the costs of the prosecution which fine shall be incurred afresh for every three months, after a first conviction, during which any such beacon shall not be put up, or be left out of repair: Provided that it shall be lawful for the Divisional Council to cause every absent beacon of which the site is known to be erected, and every defective beacon to be replaced or repaired, and the costs thereby incurred shall be recovered as part and parcel of the costs of prosecution: Provided, also, that the fine aforesaid may be prosecuted for, and when recovered shall be applied, in like manner as the fine in the eighty-fourth section of this Act mentioned.

As to resurvey of pleted.

And whereas the Divisional Council of the division of Piquetberg was, in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, requested by the proprietors of certain farms in the said division, who could not agree amongst themselves regarding the proper boundaries of their farms, to define or describe for resurvey a section or area under the "Land Beacons Act of 1859," in order to have all doubts, disputes, and controversies regarding such boundaries settled under the said Act, the said proprietors offering to defray the whole cost and charge of such resurvey : And whereas the said Divisional Council, acceding to the request of such proprietors, did define and describe for resurvey the section following, that is to say :

"A tract of country in the division of Piquetberg contained within the following boundaries, and including the places, 'Steenwerf,' 'Middelpost,' 'Avontuur,' and 'Holfmans Hoff,' namely, eastward from the Twenty-four Rivers mountain to the outermost beacon of the place 'Gelukswaard,' which is undisputed, to the outermost beacon of the place 'Klipbanks Drift,' which is also undisputed, to the outermost beacon of the place 'Koppes,' which is also undisputed, and from there to the Berg River ; and southward from the undisputed beacon between the places 'Hofmans Hoff' of A. J. Wyd, in this division, and 'Hofmans Hof' of William Edwards and F. Liesching, in the division of Tulbagh, to the undisputed beacons between the places 'De Twenty-vier Rivieren,' and 'Avontuur,' in this division, and from there to the Berg River: "

No. 7—1865.

And whereas the Divisional Council aforesaid, in defining or describing the section or area aforesaid consulted with and obtained the concurrence of the Surveyor-General, as by the third section of the "Land Beacons Act of 1859" required, whereupon the resurvey of such section or area was, partly from reasons of local convenience, and partly from inadvertence, begun and completed, whilst as yet the application, report, and description or definition in the sixth section of the said Act mentioned had not been forwarded to the Colonial Secretary, and whilst as yet no proclamation under the seventh section of the said Act, directing the resurvey of the said section or area had been issued; And whereas under these circumstances, no proclamation for the resurvey of such section or area has been issued: And whereas it is expedient to supply the want of such proclamation, as well as the want of any other forms enjoined by the said Act, which may have been neglected, none of which forms, owing to the fewness in number of the proprietors of farms within the said section or area, and their unanimous desire to have such resurvey made, were needed in this particular case: Be it enacted as follows:

118. The description or definition of the section or area aforesaid and the resurvey of such section or area, and everything already done, or to be hereafter done, in reference to such resurvey, shall be judged of and be of the same force and effect, and be as valid and effectual, as if, before the commencement of such resurvey, a proclamation under the seventh section of the "Land Beacons Act of 1859" had been duly issued directing such resurvey and as if, the previous notice in the twelfth section of the said Act mentioned had been duly given.

Validity of resurvey of section irregularly commenced and completed established.

WHEREAS it is expedient that the landowners of the division of King William's Town and East London should have an opportunity of availing themselves of certain temporary provisions of Act No. 7, 1865, whereby land beacons may be rendered indisputable, and that a further opportunity should be extended to the other landowners of this Colony: And whereas it is expedient that further provisions should be made for determining the boundaries of farms abutting on crown lands, when there is reason to believe that the beacons purporting to define such boundaries encroach on such crown lands: Be it enacted by the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly thereof:—

Period allowed for verification of beacons extended.

1. That the eighty-eighth, eighty-ninth, ninety-second, one hundred and fourth, one hundred and fifth, one hundred and seventh, and one hundred and ninth sections of said Act shall be amended by inserting therein the year 1867 in lieu of the year 1866, wherever the said year 1866 is mentioned in any of the said sections, and the one hundred and ninth section shall be further amended by inserting therein the year 1868 in lieu of the year 1867 where the said year 1867 is mentioned in the said section.

Exceptions where beacons have been or are being adjusted.

2. Nothing in this Act contained shall be deemed to alter the law as now existing in respect of any beacons which shall have become indisputable before, or would become indisputable on the 31st day of December, 1866, or which now are or may then be in course of settlement, under any of the provisions of the said Act No. 7, 1865, or shall invalidate any act or proceeding already done under the said Act.

The word "person" in section 108 of Act 7, 1865, to include Surveyor-General.

3. For the purposes of the said Act No. 7 of 1865, the word "person" in the one hundred and eighth section of the said Act shall be held to include the Surveyor-General of the Colony in respect to any land the property of the Crown: Provided, always, that nothing herein shall be taken impliedly to repeal anything in the ninety-second or the one hundred and tenth section of the said Act contained.

Sections 92 and 110 of said Act not affected.

Rectification of beacons where the Crown is not bound by Act 7 of 1865.

4. It shall be lawful for the said Surveyor-General, on behalf of the Crown, at any time, in cases in which the Crown is not bound by virtue of the said Act, if he shall have reason to suspect that the beacons of any farm encroach on any land the property of the Crown, to cause a notice to be served on the proprietor of such farm that such beacons are disputed, which notice may also define where such beacons ought to be erected, and require that such proprietor shall rectify the same, and also to lodge with the Divisional Council of the division within which such beacons are situate a like notice; and if such proprietor do not within three calendar months after the service of such notice rectify such beacons in manner required by such notice, if he shall have been so required, then, at the expiration of such three calendar months, or if he shall not have been so required, then forthwith, proceedings shall be taken in manner provided by the ninety-fourth section of the said Act No. 7 of 1865, in like manner as if a person whose beacons had been objected to had applied under the ninety-third section of the same Act requesting the council to have the correctness of such beacons investigated and determined under the said Act.

No. 8—1866-'67.

5. In every case in which the Surveyor-General, on behalf of the Crown, shall have required that the correctness of beacons disputed by him on behalf of the Crown should be investigated, and the same shall have been settled by a resurvey under the said Act or this Act, such settlement shall, under the provisions of the said Act, and subject to the conditions therein contained as to appeals, become and be binding on the Crown as well as on the person with whom such disputes shall have been settled, in like manner as if the Crown were a private proprietor of a farm abutting on the farm the beacons whereof shall have been so disputed as aforesaid, and such dispute had been settled under the said Act No. 7 of 1865.

Settlement under resurvey binding upon Crown.

ACT

To amend in certain respects the Act No. 7 of 1865 entitled the "Lands Beacons Consolidation Act."

WHEREAS the Land Beacons Consolidation Act does not provide for the issue of amended titles in all cases where diagrams do not represent the boundaries actually in existence, and where the correctness of the said boundaries is not disputed or questioned by any of the persons concerned: and whereas it is necessary to amend the said Act in this respect: Be it enacted by the Governor of the Cape of Good Hope, with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and House of Assembly thereof, as follows:—

Preamble.

1. So much of the Act aforesaid, No. 7 of 1865, as may be repugnant to or inconsistent with any of the provisions of this Act is hereby repealed.

Portion of Act 7 of 1865 repealed.

2. As often as it shall be found upon resurvey that the diagram of any piece of land enregistered in the land registers of this Colony, does not truly and correctly represent the boundaries of the said land, it shall be lawful for the owner thereof to require from the Surveyor-General the issue of an amended title and diagram, provided the following conditions shall have been fulfilled:—

Proceedings in cases where diagram found to be incorrect.

- (a) An agreement or agreements in writing, which shall be in the form set forth in the schedule hereunto annexed (or shall, so far as the circumstances of the case permit conform thereto), signed in the presence of two competent witnesses (one of whom may be the surveyor making the survey), by all the owners of land adjacent to

Agreement between all owners of land affected.

No. 9—1879.

the land resurveyed, or their duly-accredited agents, shall be lodged with the Surveyor-General, which agreement or agreements shall set forth that the said owners do consent to and accept the boundaries adopted in the said resurvey as the true and correct boundaries of the said land: Provided that it shall not be necessary to lodge such agreement or agreements in writing with regard to any beacon or beacons which shall have become admittedly true and correct, by virtue of any proceedings under any one of the following Acts, namely, Act No. 10 of 1859, Act No. 6 of 1862, Act No. 7 of 1865, and Act No. 8 of 1866-67.

Surveyor to lodge with surveyor-general certificate of agreement being duly executed.

(b) The surveyor aforesaid shall lodge with the Surveyor-General a certificate stating that the said agreement or agreements are signed by all the owners of the lands adjacent to and abutting upon the land resurveyed, except as hereafter provided, and that to the best of his knowledge and belief, the boundaries of the land resurveyed have not been changed by mutual arrangement, so as to cause a transfer of land otherwise than according to the laws in force for the transfer of fixed property.

How surveyor-general to act.

(c) The Surveyor-General shall be empowered to withhold the issue of an amended title, if he shall have reason to believe that crown land or other unregistered land is encroached upon or included within the boundaries of the land resurveyed, or that payment of transfer duty has been sought to be evaded by any change of boundary as referred to in the last clause (b): Provided that the owner of the land resurveyed may, if he sees fit, petition the Supreme or Circuit Court, which Court may order the Surveyor-General to issue an amended title, on proof to the satisfaction of the Court that no such change of boundary for the aforesaid purpose has been made.

In case of joint owners, the owner or owners of three-fourths may require amended title and diagram.

3. As often as any land shall be owned by two or more owners, without partition or subdivision, it shall be lawful and sufficient for the purposes of clause 2 of this Act, for the person or persons owning in the aggregate three-fourths of the registered contents or area of the land so held in common to require from the Surveyor-General the issue of an amended title and diagram, as provided for in the said clause, and such issue shall also be binding upon all the owners of the remaining one-fourth of the registered contents or area of the land aforesaid, who shall, moreover, be chargeable with their pro rata shares in the expenses connected with the re-survey and issue of the amended title and diagram of the land aforesaid, and which pro rata shares of expenses shall be recoverable against them, in any competent Court, at the instance of the other owners who shall have paid the same.

4. As often as any land adjacent to the land resurveyed shall be owned by two or more owners, without partition or subdivision, it shall not be necessary for all such persons to agree in the manner set forth in section (a) of clause II, but the signature or signatures to such agreement of the person or persons owning in the aggregate three-fourths of the registered contents or area of the land so held in common shall be taken to be sufficient and the said agreement shall be as valid and effectual as if it had been signed by all the owners of the said land: Provided that as to any such owner or owners refusing or failing to give his or their consent, notice in writing be given to such owner or owners, or his or their duly authorized agent or agents that, unless within thirty days after service thereof, an objection be lodged with the Divisional Council of the division in which the land is situated, in terms of the 93rd section of the "Land Beacons Consolidation Act, 1865," such owner or owners will be deemed and taken to have consented: And, provided further, that within the said period no such objections shall have been lodged by such owner or owners or his as their duly authorized agent or agents with the Divisional Council aforesaid.

No. 9—1879.

Signature of agreement by owner or owners of three-fourths binding on rest.

Notice to dissentient owners.

5. As often as the boundaries of any land, which shall have been in dispute between the owners, shall be or have been finally determined by the judgment of any competent Court, or by the award of arbitrators duly made a rule of a competent Court, it shall be lawful for the owner of such land to apply to the Surveyor-General for the issue of an amended title, based upon a diagram correctly representing the boundaries of such land as fixed and determined by such judgment or award: Provided that, as to the boundaries of such land other than the boundaries so fixed and determined as aforesaid, the provisions of the second section of this Act shall apply.

When dispute settled, owner may apply for amended title.

6. It shall be the duty of every land-surveyor who shall be employed upon any such resurvey to frame an accurate plan of the land resurveyed, and in doing so to conform to such instructions of the Surveyor-General, upon technical points, as may from time to time be issued for the guidance of surveyors in such cases. The surveyor shall forward the said plan to the Surveyor-General, with the new diagrams, and the title deeds or transfer deeds of the land resurveyed, together with a report containing any information which the said surveyor may deem useful, and amongst other things the degree or particulars in which the said plan differs from the existing diagram or title deed; and with his certificate that the beacons thereof have been erected in a substantial and durable manner, and of materials clearly and easily distinguishable from other objects in the vicinity of such beacons. The surveyor shall likewise forward to the Surveyor-General such proofs of the accuracy of the resurvey as the said Surveyor-General may deem it fitting to require.

Duties of land-surveyor under this Act.

No. 9—1879.

Notice by surveyor-general of intention to issue new title.

Sixty days.

On issue of amended title, &c., former documents void.

7. It shall be the duty of the Surveyor-General to give notice in the Government Gazette of every intended issue of an amended title under this Act, and to name in such notice a day for such issue: Provided always that the day so named shall not be earlier than sixty clear days from the date of such publication.

8. Upon the issue of such amended title, all existing title deeds or transfer deeds of the land resurveyed shall become void, cancelled, and of no effect: Provided that as often as any hypothecation, conventional or tacit, of or over such land shall be in existence at the date of such issue, such hypothecation shall attach to and upon the same precisely as it existed upon the said land under its former title deed or transfer deed, and all usual or proper entries and endorsements as may be necessary to record any such hypothecation shall be made in the Deeds Registry of the Colony before such amended title shall be delivered from and out of the office of the Surveyor-General to the person or persons entitled thereto.

How if diagram found correct.

9. If in any case application for amended title shall be made under the provisions of this Act, and the existing diagram shall be found to be correct by the Surveyor-General, so that no amended title of the said land shall be necessary, then the Surveyor-General shall endorse a certificate of such correctness upon such title deed and diagram.

Interpretation of terms.

10. In the interpretation of this Act the term "owner" shall mean the person or persons, or corporate body, or association, in whose favour enregisterment in the land registers in the offices of the Surveyor-General or Registrar of Deeds has been made, or in whom any land may have been vested by legal enactment. The term "unregistered land" shall mean land not enregistered in the aforesaid land registers as the lawful property of any person, corporate body, or association of persons, and shall include the following:—

- (d) Land set apart for public purposes, such as outspan places or other reserves for the public convenience.

PROCLAMATION.

By His Excellency General the Right Hon. Lord CHARLES HENRY SOMERSET, &c., &c. [Dec. 23, 1814.

Preamble.

WHEREAS doubts have arisen with respect to the quantity of disposable Government ground in the vicinity of this town, and with respect to the limits of private property as affecting the same, a commission was appointed, in the year 1811, for the purpose of superintending a complete survey thereof, and examining the documents and titles to the land claimed and occupied as private property : Now, be it hereby made known that the survey of all the land situate and being to the right of the great road from Cape Town to Simon's Town, and extending from the military lines to the estate of Claassenbosch, now possessed by W. F. Versfeld, has been completed, and laid before me by the Government sworn surveyor, L. M. Thibault; and having personally examined the same, and compared the whole with the documents in support thereof, and the reports relative thereto, I do hereby declare my entire approbation of the same, and hereby recognize the boundaries as described thereon to be the true limits of the respective estates therein described.

Proc., Dec. 23, 1814.

Boundaries of land from Cape Town to Claassenbosch established.

And it appearing, moreover, that the occupiers of several of the estates alluded to have, either through error or inadvertence, enclosed or cultivated proportions of land, to which the former grants of this Government have not entitled them, I have resolved to cede to each of the parties alluded to the land so illegally held by them, upon due valuation thereof by the Magistrate of the Cape District, provided the parties interested take out, within six months from the date hereof, the usual title, authorizing them to occupy the several spots of ground in question.

Cession of ground near Cape Town, enclosed and cultivated in error, to occupiers, on title being taken out within six months.

And whereas it appears that within the limits of the survey under consideration, there are other persons who claim Government land, in virtue of certain resolutions of the former Governments, although they had not obtained regular titles thereto; and being desirous, whenever the interest of the Crown and local circumstances will admit of it, and no actual disposition has taken place, or been directed, to give favourable consideration to claims of the nature alluded to, I have given detailed instructions to the landdrost of the Cape district, to value such of the lands alluded to as are specified to him as being such as may, without detriment to public interest, be alienated, in order to their being ceded under regular title to the parties in question.

Titles to claimants of Government land.

And it is hereby recommended to all holders of land in the direction of the said survey, for the prevention of all future disputes with respect to the boundaries or extent of the land they occupy, to cause to be taken from the general survey under consideration, a diagram or chart of the lands they possess, which diagram, with a proper certificate from the Colonial Secretary, will be delivered to each applicant, free of expense, excepting the usual cost attending the land surveyor's copying the same.

Delivery of diagrams to applicants

And in order that no person may plead ignorance hereof, this shall be published and affixed in the usual manner.

Ordinance to provide for the Enregisterment in the Land Registers of the Colony of certain Subdivisions of the Locations and Extensions of the Settlers of 1820.*

WHEREAS in consequence of the encouragement to emigration to the Cape of Good Hope offered by the Government of his late Majesty King George the Third in certain letters dated Downing-street, London, 1819, certain parties of settlers arrived in this Colony in and about the year 1820 and were located in the lower part of the division of Albany and at Glen Lynden in the division of Somerset, on certain lands which were surveyed for the said parties respectively: And whereas certain of the said parties consisted wholly or in part of individuals who paid, in England certain deposits required by the said Government, and thereby acquired certain rights to portions of the original locations so surveyed for the said parties: And whereas other lands were set aside by Government, and certain exchanges of granted land were made for the better maintenance of some of the said parties, and surveys of the shares held by the said individual settlers their heirs or assigns, at the date of survey, effected for the purpose of enabling the proprietors thereof to obtain registry of the same in the Land Registers of the Colony: And whereas the said proprietors have been and still are prevented from obtaining such registry by reason of the death, absence from the Colony, mental incapacity, or insolvency of the former heads or nominal heads of their parties, to whom in most instances grants of the original locations were issued, or of other persons through or from whom the said proprietors have mediately or immediately derived just, lawful, and undisputed rights to the said subdivisions, or by reason that in many instances it has now become impossible to produce such legal evidence of the cessions of the said rights as would enable the Supreme Court or the Circuit Courts of this Colony to declare and enforce the same, while at the same time the provisions of the Ordinance No. 97, entitled "Ordinance for enabling certain persons having respectively the just, lawful, and undisputed right to certain Lands and Houses, to procure the same to be enregistered as their property in the Land Register," could not, properly be accommodated so as to meet the exigency of the cases aforesaid, or if they could be so accommodated not without much and unnecessary expense. And whereas in many instances the head of the party cannot give transfer of the subdivisions which have been effected by reason that the said subdivisions include without distinction portions of land registered as his property together with portions of lands granted to others, or of ungranted crown

And be it enacted that in case any such objections as aforesaid shall be lodged as aforesaid the said objections shall be referred to the board of commissioners for lands for investigation, and should the said board deem it necessary in any case to amend their previous recommendation a further publication of six weeks by proclamation in manner aforesaid of such amended recommendation, shall be necessary before it shall be lawful for the said Governor to direct that any title deeds or title deed shall in conformity with such amended recommendation be cancelled or be issued as the case may be: Provided that if no objection be lodged within the said period of six weeks to any such amended recommendation it shall be lawful for the said Governor to direct the certain title deeds or title deed referred to in such amended recommendation to be cancelled or issued as the case may be in conformity therewith.

6. And be it enacted that it shall be lawful for the Supreme Court or any Circuit Court of this Colony to grant an interdict to any person or persons applying as aforesaid for the same in case it shall appear that the party so applying has some right to or over or in respect of the land of which a title deed is recommended to be cancelled, and to the cancellation of which such party objects or to which any new grant is announced as intended to be made, and moreover that such party is likely to be prejudiced by the cancellation or issue as the case may be of any title deeds or title deed intended to be cancelled or issued respectively.

7. And be it enacted that when and as often as any such interdict as aforesaid or any copy thereof shall be lodged at the office of the Secretary to Government in Cape Town as aforesaid a public notice of the lodgment of the same shall be forthwith given in the Government Gazette, and in some one of such newspapers as aforesaid, and the said interdict or a copy thereof together with the claim or claims and all the proofs and documents relating thereto on which the recommendation of the board of commissioners for lands was founded, shall be delivered or transmitted to or placed at the disposal of the person or persons or some one of them to whom the grant was recommended or whose claims shall be stayed by the said interdict, or their heirs or other representatives, for the purpose of enabling him or them to procure the removal of the said interdict, and the final determination according to law of all questions in dispute connected with the same.

Interdict to be conclusive of rights unless removed.

8. And be it enacted that when and as often as any such final determination as aforesaid shall have been made by any competent Court in any suit or proceeding arising from or connected with any such interdict as aforesaid the cancellation of any old title deed or issue of any new title deed respectively shall be regulated in conformity with the judgment of such Court, and so as to secure as much as may be the rights of all parties as the same shall have been ascertained and declared by the judgment of such Court. But in case it shall so happen that the person or persons whose claims are stayed or supposed rights affected by any such interdict shall not within a period of six months from the date of the publication of the notice in the last preceding section mentioned obtain a final determination of the matters in dispute in regard to the same and give notice of such final determination being had and come to to the Secretary to Government in Cape Town, then the matters so in dispute shall be considered as if decided in favour of the party who shall have obtained the interdict, and thereupon the consequences hereinbefore mentioned shall take place in the same manner as if a competent Court had finally determined in favour of such party. Provided, always, that it shall be lawful for the Governor aforesaid to enlarge the time during which notice of any such final determination being had and come to may be given as aforesaid to the Secretary to Government.

Locations to be sold, if there be no application for grant.

9. And be it enacted that when there shall remain any subdivision or subdivisions of locations aforesaid to which no claim has been made or the claims to which shall not have been proved so as to enable the said land board to recommend the issue of the title deed or title deeds thereof to the claimant or claimants respectively, or to any other person, it shall be lawful for the Governor of the Colony to cause to be published in the Government

Gazette and in one or more of the newspapers which shall be published at Graham's Town a notice describing the said subdivision or subdivisions, and declaring that unless a notice stating cause to the contrary be lodged in the office of the Secretary to Government in Cape Town within three months after such notice shall be last published the said subdivision or subdivisions will be sold by public auction for account of whom it may concern.

Ord. 15--1844.

10. And be it enacted that if no such notice as aforesaid be lodged as aforesaid at or before the expiration of the said three months then it shall be lawful for the said Governor at any time thereafter to cause the said subdivision or subdivisions to be sold in freehold by public auction; and in case of any such sale the proceeds after deduction of the expenses of sale shall be disposed of in manner following, that is to say: first, a sum equal to fifteen years' purchase of the annual quitrent fixed for settlers' grants and of such stamps as would have been required in respect of such annual quitrent for the said period, shall be paid into the Colonial Treasury to account of the general revenue; secondly, the amount of loan from the Storm Fund if any with the interest thereon if any shall be paid into the said treasury to account of the said fund; and lastly, the remainder of the said proceeds if any shall be paid into the Guardian Fund in the name of the proprietor at the date of the said sale of the location surveyed for or other person justly entitled thereto or to any portion thereof, there to be subject to the same provisions in all respects which are provided by the Ordinance No. 105, bearing date the 5th of July, 1833, in regard to moneys placed in the said fund belonging to persons absent from the Colony.

Application of proceeds of sale.

11. And be it enacted that in case such a notice be lodged as the second notice in the ninth section mentioned the said notice shall be referred to the land board, and if the said board shall be enabled thereby to recommend the issue of title deed to the party who shall have lodged such notice or to any other person the name of the person or persons so recommended by the said board and the description of the subdivision or subdivisions referred to shall be published by proclamation as in the second section of this Ordinance provided. But if it shall appear to the said board that the said notice does not state any sufficient cause against the said sale and the party lodging it does not furnish sufficient proof to enable the said board to recommend the issue of title deed to such party or any other person then it shall be lawful for the said Governor to cause a notice to be inserted in the Government Gazette and in some one or more of such newspapers as shall be published at Graham's Town declaring that unless restrained by an interdict of some competent Court or some Judge having lawful authority to be lodged at the office of the Secretary to Government in Cape Town within three months from the publication of such notice the subdivision or subdivisions

And be it enacted that nothing in this Ordinance contained shall be held or construed so as to prevent any person or persons whomsoever from proceeding in any manner in which he or they may be advised in any competent Court in regard to any lands belonging or appertaining to any of the locations or extensions of the said settlers of 1820 ; or from applying to the committee nominated and appointed under Ordinance No. 97 in order to obtain enregisterment in any case to which the said Ordinance No. 97 shall be considered by such person or persons to apply. Provided, always, that no such proceeding as aforesaid in any such Court (except as certain proceedings are by this Ordinance contemplated and provided as aforesaid) and no application to the said committee shall in any case be commenced by any person or persons in regard to any locations or subdivisions mentioned in any such proclamation as in the second section of this Ordinance provided ; and all persons having commenced or being interested in any suit or proceeding at law or any application to the said committee in regard to any title-deed or to any subdivision or subdivisions mentioned in any such proclamation shall be bound within six weeks from the date of the publication of such proclamation to lodge at the office of the Secretary to Government in Cape Town notice of the pending of such suit or application, which notice shall be deemed and taken to be an objection duly lodged as in the fourth section of this Ordinance provided.

14. And whereas it is expedient to limit the time during which the provisions of this Ordinance shall be operative, be it enacted that this Ordinance shall take effect from and after the promulgation hereof, and that no such proclamation as is in the second section of this Ordinance mentioned shall be issued after the 31st day of December, 1846.

13. And be it further enacted that in any action which shall or may be brought touching the matters aforesaid or any of them, or in anywise relating to the said Public Library, by or against the committee of the said Public Library for the time being, it shall and may be lawful for the said committee to sue or be sued by the style and description of "The Committee of Management for the Public Library of the Colony of the Cape of Good Hope."
