ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Countless individuals have crossed my path and have contributed in some way to the development of my academic career. Unfortunately, not everyone can be given recognition here. While I am grateful to everyone, I dedicate this study to the following people:

My father, George. You were always willing to encourage and assist me in my attempts to come to terms with this phenomenon we call "life". Without your love and support I would never have made it this far. Thank you for everything.

My mother, Ezette. Thank you for all those little things one fails to appreciate until they are no longer available. Thank you for all you have done to make this journey through life a little more bearable.

My supervisor, Professor Gert Prinsloo. Thank you for being there, for caring, for listening, for guidance and for allowing me to study under your supervision. Thank you for making my final years as a(n) (official) student of yours a memory that I shall always cherish. The last nine years (since BA II) have been long and both of us have had our share of obstacles to overcome. I am honoured and thankful to have shared them with you. For what it is worth, your love for the Old Testament and Semitics have terminally infected me. The withdrawal symptoms have started already.

Professor James Crenshaw. Though we have never met, I have been a "fan" of your publications since I was first introduced to OT wisdom literature during undergraduate studies. The way your own personal spirituality is expressed amidst your impeccable research has been a great source of inspiration for me. I for one shall think of you as the foremost scholar in the field of OT wisdom during the 20th century. Gratitude is mixed with awe and maybe a little jealousy. Thank you for finding the time to act as an external when I am sure you could have declined for very good reasons. I hope you won't be disappointed.

Professor (Sakkie) Spangenberg, Thank you for agreeing to act as an external. Your expertise on Qohelet has impressed me since I first became acquainted with studies on this fascinating OT text. For what it's worth, your contributions in educating the general public on the findings of biblical criticism are much appreciated.

My fellow students, Bennie du Toit and Gerda de Villiers. Good luck with your own dissertations.

God, the Creator. Thank you, for the gift of life.
