WARNEFORD, V.C., COMES HOME.

They brought Lieut. Warneford, V.C., home last night. To the capital of the Empire he had served so nobly came the body of the gallant airman, who for ten short days was the hero of his countrymen and the idol of France. The coffin, draped with the Union Jack and covered with wreaths and floral emblems—including a miniature aeroplane and an aviator's helmet—was placed on a naval gun-carriage and drawn through the streets by men of the Royal Naval Air Service to Brompton Cemetery, where the funeral takes place to-day. A vast crowd, standing with bowed uncovered heads, paid a silent tribute to the passing of the hero.—(Daily Sketch Photograph.)

A MOTHER'S NERVES.

When the children "get on your nerves," the trouble is with your nerves, not with the children. You find yourself scolding them when you should be reasoning with them, and if you are wise you will realise immediately that your nervous system needs prompt attention.

You observe, doubtless, that you wake up in the morning unrefreshed by your night's sleep, that you often feel better at night than you do in the morning. You find you are getting irritable; things worry you that did not do so formerly, and you have headaches more frequently than ever you used to.

If you let this state of health go on uncorrected you invite a serious breakdown. The proper treatment is to take more rest, stop worrying, and build up your blood and nerves with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You will soon find that you sleep better and are more refreshed by it, that your appetite and digestion improve, headaches are less frequent, and that little things do not annoy you as they did. You can begin this treatment to-day, for your own dealer sells these Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but mind you always ask for Dr. Williams'.

What Women Are Doing.

BY MRS. GOSSIP.

SIMONE, who is in Paris, sends me this charming little story of the late Lieut. Warneford, V.C. Her letter was posted on the 16th, just before his tragic and overwhelming death. "We were dining last night," she writes, "at the Ambassadors, that charming open-air restaurant in the Champs Elysées. A young English officer, wearing the Legion d'Honneur on his khaki tunic, was in a quiet corner with a party of friends. Suddenly a whisper went round, 'C'est l'aviateur Anglais, Warneford.'" At once the entire company spontaneously rose to their feet and cheered and applauded the blushing young hero, who looked both surprised and embarrassed at this sudden outburst; but there was worse to come.

The oldest habitué of the restaurant, a stately comte with a flowing white moustache, strode up to the table, made a beautiful complimentary speech in academic French, and then insisted on kissing the hero on both cheeks.

Well Done, Girls!

My first portrait to-day is of Lady Harry Waechter. Let me say at once, and as delicately as I can put it, because these explanations are always uncomfortable, that neither she nor her husband has a drop of Teutonic blood despite their name. Sir Harry is a thorough-going Englishman, and his wife was a Miss D'Arcy, and comes of an old Irish family. I am mentioning her for two reasons. First, she is president of the Girls' Realm Guild, and, with Lady Evelyn Scott, received the guests at its reunion at the Ritz on Saturday. The gathering celebrated the raising by the girls of the guild of a special fund of £500 to provide skilled training for destitute girls of gentle birth.

LADY WAECHTER.
(Lafayette.)

Thrilling!

In the second place, Lady Waechter and her friends are rather anxious about Sir Harry. A few days ago he had an awfully narrow escape at the front. Fragments of a shell actually fell on the bed in which he was sleeping. But to return to the reunion. Lady Waechter was in a charming dress of white silk and a white hat. Lady Evelyn Scott wore black, with a small black bonnet. I saw there Lord and Lady Haddo, Lady Mackenzie Davidson, Mrs. Parker (Lord Kitchener's sister, who, of course, spoke), and lots more interesting people.

Lord Methuen's Son in Hospital.

Dora writes of her visit yesterday to King's College Hospital, where she went to visit a wounded friend:—"On the balconies at the back of the building," she enthuses, "you can imagine yourself in the heart of the country, for you literally are in a most delightful park." Lord Hambleton and Lord Methuen, as I happen to know, are both keenly interested in the hospital, which is worthy of the great surgeons and scientists who made its history—Lord Lister, Sir William Ferguson and many others. Now wounded soldiers occupy nearly half the beds; and there are many wounded officers, including Lord Methuen's son.

Mrs. Asquith Serves Tommy With Tea.

Lady Limerick tells me she will be very grateful for any kind of food, such as ham, potted meats, fruit, cakes and, of course, tobacco and cigarettes for her soldiers' and sailors' free refreshment buffet at London Bridge. I looked into the buffet last night and found a wonderful number of Tommies being served with coffee and tea and other refreshments. Lady Evelyn Ward was very busy helping. She was wearing a mauve linen overall, so was Lady Milbanke, whose husband, Sir John, is at the front. You remember he won the V.C. in the South African War.

Mrs. Asquith had been working there and taking the greatest interest in the buffet, also Cora Countess of Strafford, the Duchess of Abercorn, Lady Wimborne and Lord Desborough, who also came to give a hand at the counter.

Delysia Dressed.

You have read a lot about the new Ambassadors show, but you simply can't realise Delysia's frocks unless you see them. She says herself, "The Censor is pleased when I wear anything at all," so what would you be if you saw her in the lovely things she now puts on? I loved the Early Victorian dress. The crinoline suits her admirably. The skirt is of flowered chiné silk, over which a little cherry-coloured coat is worn, bordered with marabout. A tiny black velvet hat, possessing one green feather, rests upon her hair, which is worn in a net. Delysia's statuesque gown, of white tulle embroidered in silver and pearls, is particularly becoming to her slight figure. The gown is short, but it has a long train, cut square from the décolletage of handsome white brocade, and she wears an attractive headdress of black tulle and diamonds.

What To Wear in The Sea.

Haven't shopped so hard for months as I did yesterday morning. Marjorie, who is at the Isle of Wight, insisted on my selecting and dispatching at once a really chic bathing costume. "It doesn't matter what one wears out of the sea, but in the sea I must look nice" is what she writes. I found the most attractive things at Marshall and Snelgrove's, Oxford-street. Such a selection that it was hard to choose which I liked best.

I finally decided upon a black alpaca, quite a short tunic, cut square at the neck and girdled round the waist with a futurist silk cord; on the bodice and sleeves were hand-worked futurist flowers—for 49s. 6d. Bewitching cap and shoes correspond. By the way, bags can also be found there to match the bathing suit; just the right shape and size to carry it in. There were some charming black silk costumes with various trimmings for 6½ guineas.

Going?

To-day Miss Helen Mar will be the chief attraction at the Botanic Gardens at the open-air Thé Chantant given by the War Emergency Entertainments. The Femina Quartet will also take part.

So Talented.

This is a photograph of Miss Margaret Nielka, a pupil of Jean de Reszke, who is to sing at M. Henri Verbrugghen's farewell concert at the Queen's Hall on June 30. She is an artiste of many and varied accomplishments. In her early youth her aspirations were towards the stage, and that they have never quite left her is shown by the fact that she has studied opera and can sing in five different languages. Miss Nielka is also a notable sportswoman, who excels in riding, shooting, golf, tennis, and motor-driving, and for some time past she has been the organising secretary of the Lambeth Red Cross detachment. She is the niece of Lord Cowdray, and she can also play the violin.

My Needlework Competition.

I knew my readers would be pleased about Princess Arthur of Connaught becoming a patroness. The announcement and my appeal for still more workers has resulted in the entries being doubled this week. "What a lot of work it must give you," writes one. True, but I don't mind that the least little bit. It does my heart good to see the letters coming in by every post, especially when I read such sentences as "I want all my work to be sold for the benefit of the Red Cross and St. John of Jerusalem Societies"; "It is so little I can do, being an invalid; I am therefore so grateful to you for having started this admirable scheme by which every one can help." Another correspondent writes:—"Since reading your letter last week I always think of the following words when I am working: 'O Lord, grant Thou our soldiers courage high when foes are near: to strive, to suffer or to die—untouched by fear.'" This is very excellent in its way, but personally I should like to dwell on a more happy alternative than any of the three mentioned.

And now don't forget to hustle up your friends and let us have an even larger entry this coming week. In every case a self-addressed stamped envelope must be sent to Mrs. Gossip, Needlework Department, Daily Sketch, Shoe-lane, London, E.C.

Heartburn & Acidity

Causing Sleepless Nights.

Sufferers from Heartburn, Flatulence, Acidity, etc., which are so often the cause of sleepless nights, are invited to send for a Free Sample of Dr. Jenner's Absorbent Lozenges, which Messrs. Savory & Moore make from Dr. Jenner's original formula, and recommend as a valuable remedy for these complaints. The lozenges are pleasant to take and quite harmless. The testimony of those who use them, of which the following letter is an example, affords the most convincing proof of their value.

"Normanhurst," Burnaby-road, Bournemouth.

"I am very glad I sent for a trial of Dr. Jenner's Absorbent Lozenges, for I found them so beneficial that I immediately secured a large box, and now after a somewhat extended use of them I can truthfully say they have done and are doing me more good than anything else I have tried for Heartburn and general Acidity. They have saved me from a good many sleepless nights. I feel so grateful that you are at liberty to use this testimonial if you choose.—E. Fippard."

Boxes 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. of all Chemists.

A FREE TRIAL BOX

of the Lozenges will be sent to all who write, enclosing 1d. stamp for postage, and mentioning the Daily Sketch, to Savory and Moore, Ltd., Chemists to The King, 145a, New Bond-street, London.

SIR JOHN FRENCH AND THE YOUNG TERRITORIAL.

Touching Story Of Solicitude For Grief-Stricken Lad.

MOTHER DIED BELIEVING HER SON HAD BEEN KILLED.

NORTHERN FRANCE, Monday.
A story which has just reached me illustrates in the best possible manner the solicitude for his men which is characteristic of Sir John French. During a surprise visit behind the firing line the British Commander-in-Chief came upon a boy Territorial who was in the act of writing a letter. Sir John was surprised to see that he was sobbing bitterly as he wrote and questioned him as to the cause of his grief. The lad, taken unawares, made attempts to overcome his emotion, and stammered out some sort of excuses, but the Field-Marshal was not to be put off, and, speaking kindly, insisted upon knowing what was the matter.

SAD LETTER FROM HOME.

Thereupon the boy produced a letter. It was a tragic letter from a younger brother in England, telling him of the death of their mother following the receipt of an unofficial report that her son had been killed at the Front. The family, it appeared, was in humble circumstances.

General French sent the Territorial home on three weeks' leave. He gave him, moreover, a substantial sum to help pay the funeral expenses, and he dismissed him with the words:

"Bless you, my boy. Your mother, at any rate, died with the satisfaction of knowing that her son did his duty."—Central News Special Correspondent.

TWO ZEPPELINS FLYING WEST.

Seen Coming Towards England With Following Of Taubes.

AMSTERDAM, Monday.
Two Zeppelins were sighted to-day off Vlieland, Northern Holland, flying towards England at a great speed, followed by a number of Taubes. The German aircraft flew very high whilst passing over Dutch territory, and quickly disappeared in a north-easterly direction.—Exchange Special.

DE WET FOUND GUILTY.

BLOEMFONTEIN, Monday.
De Wet has been found guilty on eight counts of the treason indictment and not guilty on two. The latter charges him with smashing telegraph office apparatus and proceeding to join the Germans. The Court accepted prisoner's statement that he had had no intention of joining the enemy. Sentence was deferred till to-day.—Reuter.

WAR WORKER KILLED BY FUMES.

Medical evidence at an inquest at Farnborough yesterday showed that Lily Neves (23) died at the Royal Aircraft Factory, at which she was employed, from inhaling a poisonous vapour known as tetrachlorethane, thrown off from a varnish used as a "dope" in the making of aeroplanes. The inhaling of the vapour causes the liver to dry up, and the girl's liver had all but disappeared, heart failure ensuing.

ONLY A PICTURE PUZZLE SPY.

Aldershot magistrates yesterday discharged Thomas Richardson, who was charged under the Defence of the Realm Act with being in possession of suspicious documents. Accused was able to establish his defence that the documents related to a picture puzzle entitled "Hunt the spy."

FOUND HIS HOME IN FLAMES.

Capt. A. Forbes Gordon, of the 8th Cameron Highlanders, was motoring towards his home, the Border mansion of Langlee, on the outskirts of Galashiels, yesterday, when he saw the house in flames. The children were safely removed from the nursery on the third floor, but the whole of the main block was gutted.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR YOUR STOMACH TROUBLE.

IT NEUTRALISES ACIDITY AND PREVENTS FERMENTATION.

Doubtless you have already tried pepsin, bismuth, soda, charcoal, drugs, etc., and so you know that these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases they do not even give relief—but before giving up hope and deciding that you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little magnesia—not the ordinary carbonate, oxides or citrates, but pure bisulphated magnesia, which you can obtain from practically any chemist in either powder or tablet form. Take half-a-teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralise the lactic acid which now causes your food to ferment, giving rise to wind, heartburn, flatulence, and many other unpleasant symptoms, and you will find that, provided you take a little bisulphated magnesia immediately afterward, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain and discomfort to follow.

BISULPHATED MAGNESIA can now be obtained of all chemists in mint-flavoured carbonating tablets as well as in the ordinary powdered form.—(Adv't.)

WAITING TO PAY THEIR TRIBUTE TO WARNEFORD.

A vast crowd waited patiently outside Victoria Station last night to pay a tribute to the memory of Lieut. Warneford. Women wept and men were deeply moved as the body of the heroic young airman was placed on the gun-carriage.—(Daily Sketch Photograph.)

LUXURIES AT RUHLIBEN.

From Egg And Milk For Growing Boys To Golf Course And Theatre.

There are 4,500 British civil prisoners in Germany, and of these some 4,000 are concentrated at the Ruhleben camp, which early in the war was notorious among German camps for the lack of everything that mattered to the unfortunate occupants. Now, thanks to the good offices of the American Ambassador, things have greatly improved. Indeed, a report now forwarded by his Excellency to Sir Edward Grey suggests that the occupants in the camp are having a life of comparative luxury. These are some of the reforms recently installed:—
A recreation ground with a football field and a small golf course and grand stands.
A theatre, complete with stage, scenery, dressing-rooms, orchestra, where performances varying from Shakespeare to musical shows, are given practically every night.
An educational department, wherein schools and lectures are regularly conducted, replete with all materials.
A police force of British subjects, which has greatly lessened the necessity for German soldiers in the camp.
A public library of 2,500 volumes.
A laundry, where each man may wash his own clothes every week.
A camp newspaper and a printing machine for the production of programmes, camp news, etc.
It is also mentioned in the report that growing boys—40 to 50 in number—are now provided with an extra glass of milk and an egg in the morning.

NO ELECTIONS FOR A YEAR.

Mr. Asquith stated in the House of Commons that a Bill for the postponement of the elections for a year and dealing with registration for next year would be introduced forthwith.

THE TURKISH GIBRALTAR.

Positions That Would Be Untakable If In British Hands.

All the wounded brought to Egypt from the Gallipoli Peninsula, says a Reuter special telegram from Alexandria, speak of the difficulties that have to be encountered in the Allies' advance. Achi Baba is described as a small "Gibraltar," and one officer remarked that the British soldiers were being asked to take positions which, if held by the British, would be untakable by anybody else. In the attack at Gaba Tepe the Turks were warned that if they wavered or attempted to retire they would be annihilated by their own machine-guns. When 100 yards from our trenches the Turks flung themselves on the ground and maintained hot rifle fire, while the second line passed through them at the double. The first line then joined them, the whole coming on in close formation with bayonets fixed. Our guns met them at point-blank range.

MR. RONALD M'NEILL'S LATEST.

Mr. Ronald M'Neill in the House of Commons asked whether the War Office were aware of the indignation excited by a statement that Lieutenant von Tirpitz, son of the German Admiral responsible for the submarine policy, had been released on parole. Mr. Tennant said that as Lieutenant von Tirpitz had not been released on parole or otherwise, the hon. gentleman would agree that the emotion had been wasted. (Laughter.)

Lord and Lady Howard de Walden have given £2,000 to the Metropolitan Hospital, Kingsland road, so that two top wards may be fitted up for wounded soldiers.

FAMOUS GOLFER KILLED.

Captain John Graham Falls In Gallant Charge At Ypres.

Captain John Graham, the famous amateur golfer, has been killed in action with the Liverpool Scottish in Belgium. According to news received at Liverpool Captain Graham fell during a gallant charge at Ypres. Captain Graham was once placed by Mr. "Chief" Evans, the American expert, among the greatest golfers in the world.

CAPTAIN JOHN GRAHAM.

As a youngster he had the benefit of the best of coaching from experts like John Ball and H. H. Hilton, and it was not long before he was playing a strong game.

Probably all the honours of the Royal Liverpool Club fell to him, and probably no club could at one time have produced three amateurs to beat these three.

He was four times in the final of the amateur championship, and in 1906 his score was the best amateur figure in the open championship at Muirfield, being 306 to the 300 of James Braid (the winner). He twice won the St. George's Vase—a stroke competition at Sandwich—doing 154 in 1904, which up to that time was a record, and 146 last year, which, of course, constituted a new record.

TRENCHES 12 YARDS APART.

Officer's Dying Wish To Be Buried In The Ditch His Men Were Defending.

During a visit to the French Armies in the West the special correspondent of the Exchange walked two and a half miles along a communication trench to the middle of the Apremont Forest, where French and Germans face one another in trenches 12 yards apart.

The positions of both sides are extremely strong, he says, as the rocky character of the ground is a natural aid to defensive operations. We penetrated to the first line and found the trenches fitted up with amazing comfort, not excluding electric light.

At one point was a tombstone bearing the name of a lieutenant whose remains lay beneath. It was the officer's dying wish that he should be buried where his troops continued to fight, and they reverently laid him beneath the trench.

Through a loophole we could see shapeless masses lying on the ground separating us from the enemy trenches. They were bodies that had lain there for many weeks, and neither side can go out to bring them in, even at night.

A SOLDIER AND A SPORT.

Captain E. G. Mylne, of the Irish Guards, who has died of wounds, was a well-known Army pedestrian. His commission with the rank of captain was gazetted in October, and he was attached to the 1st Battalion.

MAJOR KILLED WHILE FLYING.

Major H. M. Lumsden was killed at Brooklands aerodrome yesterday while a passenger in an aeroplane. Engine trouble occurred when the machine was scarcely 200ft. up, and it fell nose first. The pilot was only slightly hurt, but Major Lumsden died from his injuries five hours after the accident. The aeroplane was wrecked.

CIGARETTE FUND CONTRIBUTIONS.

We are asked to point out that Miss Gretta Holmes, who sent a donation of £3 a day or two ago, lives at Galbally, Tipperary, and must not be confused with anyone living at Tipperary. Our first acknowledgment of her subscription was, we regret, not quite correct. To-day's list is as follows:—

GOOD NEWS FOR STOUT PEOPLE.

RAPID FAT REDUCTION WITHOUT EXERCISES OR STARVATION DIETS.

"One great objection to exercises for fat reduction," says a noted Health Scientist, "is the after exhaustion and discomfort they generally cause those who adopt this method of becoming slender. Yet superfluous fat can be rapidly and surprisingly reduced in a more simple way. Get a dram of quassia chips and three ounces of cirola bark extract from any chemist. Put the quassia chips in a pan and pour a cupful of boiling water over them, then after they have stood for a minute strain the liquid through a cloth and add the cirola bark extract. Rub this lotion into the fatty parts of the body, hips, abdomen, chin, or wherever excessive fat exists, for about ten minutes night and morning by a circular movement of the hand. As the preparation is absorbed by the skin it dissolves the fat tissues underneath, at the same time tightening the loosened skin, and leaving it beautifully smooth and firm."—Adv't.

The very latest club is the new River-side Murray's at Maidenhead, the week-end resort of people whom you associate with the West-end. Here stage favourites and others who figure in personal paragraphs have a very pleasant time on the river and the tree-shaded lawns.

ANXIETY OF THE HON. MRS. HOOD.

Mlle. Gaby Deslys was among those who visited the New River Club.

A new photograph of the Hon. Mrs. Hood and her two children, Mollie and Peter. Her husband, Lord Bridport's heir, of the Hood Battalion of the R.N. Division, is reported from the Dardanelles as wounded and missing.—(Yevonde.)

Miss Regine Flory, the well-known dancer, carried a big parasol.
