

repetition of big & small

in form of the big pier and that, never looks very well.

I have only just come back from my holiday but Scott has kept you informed of what has been done in the Square. I hope to get to work upon the building soon and then I shall have more to tell you.

Yours sincerely,

P.S. I delayed posting this letter because I was going to see the High Commissioner and there might be something to add, and then we missed the post. I had a long talk to him and he was pleased at the successful result of our negotiations with Murray, a copy of my letter to whom was sent you, but he did not go into any details.

I told him what we had done about the top storey and the lifts, how by moving the Sample Room down there was nothing left on the top floor especially requiring a lift except the Registry, I think it is, up to which the book lift does go; so I think that all is well.

He emphasised the importance of ensuring that our neighbours do not disfigure our skyline with top hampers of floors or lift gear and I said that I should watch
