

FROM MR HERBERT BAKER, A.R.A.

14, BARTON STREET,

WESTMINSTER, LONDON, S.W.1.

TELEPHONE, VICTORIA 7109.

Hillmott showed much skill & patience with his legs.
 Mr Brown in particular, in the morning and succeeded in time in setting good masonry.

19. He felt most the need in the ~~great~~ climate of the big-room steep ~~the entrance~~ of the atrium or half open atrium of J. Europe - the ~~one~~ ^{one} large central living-room - the need both to meet the taste & the ideals of the time - and to economic need due to cost of transit, labour - of great simplicity of external treatment. But Stonehouse are a shock to Johnmayers and a very fine advertisement for me!

In cheaper buildings he felt that corrugated iron was not such an evil building material as it seemed, when ~~used~~ ^{used} in styles or methods ^{of class} suited to tile -
 The that kept flat at its economic & functional slope with a wide projecting eave, ^{with deep shadow} it had a practical fitness which produced a simple but real beauty of its own.
 In walking thro. Florence for instance - ^{looking} up at the great eaves who see eaves what the roof is composed of. except, and its