A THEOLOGICAL ETHICAL ASSESSMENT OF HOMOSEXUALITY IN THE EAST AFRICAN CONTEXT:

A SEVENTH - DAY ADVENTIST PERSPECTIVE

BY

Pastor Matwetwe K.N. Nyarenchi.
A THEOLOGICAL ETHICAL ASSESSMENT OF HOMOSEXUALITY

IN THE EAST AFRICAN CONTEXT:

"A SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST PERSPECTIVE."

by

Pr. Matwetwe K.N. Nyarenchi

Submitted in Partial Fulfillment of the Requirements for the Degree of Philosophiae Doctor
in the Department of Dogmatics and Christian Ethics
Faculty of Theology
University of Pretoria

Supervisor: Prof. dr. DE de Villiers

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is a most difficult task for me to enumerate my indebtedness to many persons who have directly or indirectly contributed to the realization of this research project. Indirectly, I feel indebted to the many evangelical authors, who have written on this subject, even though in some instances I could not agree with their views. The reading of their books and articles has stimulated my thinking and broadened my understanding of the subject.

Directly, I really want to express my sincere heartfelt gratitude to Prof. D.E. de Villiers, the promoter of this dissertation, for the encouragement, advice, patience and editing of the manuscript several times. Also, Prof. D. A. du Toit, Prof. John Henry, Dr. Sliebert Johanna, Dr. Johnson Tuli, Pastor O.B. Gabasiane and Mrs K.P Mogegeh, each of whom went beyond the call of duty by reading, correcting and reacting constructively to my manuscript.

Very special thanks goes to Pastor William H.W. Nelson, my former pastor and teacher in Tanzania who through the years has been a kind of spiritual father to our family. His willingness to take time off his most busy schedule to improve the text and to make valuable suggestions will long be remembered. I also want to express my deep gratitude to Dr. Ron and Hester Palse of "Care and Cure" in South Africa, my esteemed friends. Besides their financial contributions to my studies, they have greatly enhanced the value of this research project. Their encouragement and prayers are greatly appreciated. I also owe much gratitude to the Seventh Day Adventist Church members of East Africa, especially New Life S.D.A Church, Makongeni S.D.A Church, Jericho S.D.A, Magomeni S.D.A Church, Kurasini S.D.A Church and Morogoro S.D.A Church for their support during my research interviews with them.

Special acknowledgement is also due to my family - especially my wife Martha and our daughter Hester Naomi who have been a pillar of strength to me throughout the years. Their patience and personal sacrifice of our family time in order for me to study were exemplary. They also laboured long and patiently typing my research work. Often they have expressed their hope that I should finish and succeed in doing this research work. Without their love, patience and encouragement, this research would never have seen the light of day. I appreciate their undying commitment and encouragement.

This research has been done with the earnest desire to help my Seventh Day Adventist Church administrators, pastors, my fellow believers and Christians of all faiths in East Africa to better understand the role of East African culture in evaluating homosexuality and what the Scriptures teacher about homosexuality. At a time when humanistic ideologies are promoting Homosexuality, it is an imperative for Christians to resist these pressures by upholding the Scriptural principles which God has revealed for the well being of our homes, churches, and the community. It is my fervent hope and desire that this dissertation will inspire such a commitment through a fuller understanding and acceptance of the Biblical teachings on homosexuality.

Matwetwe K.N.N

October, 2004
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements ................................................................. i

Table of contents ............................................................... iii

CHAPTER 1

INTRODUCTION ............................................................. 1

1.1 Target Audience and the Research Problem ......................... 4

1.2 The Hypotheses ........................................................... 8

1.3 The Method, Objective and Overview ................................ 8

CHAPTER 2

WHAT IS HOMOSEXUALITY ? .............................................. 10

2.1 Definitions of Homosexuality ........................................ 10

2.1.1 The Condition Separated from the Act .......................... 14

2.1.2 Homosexuality as Natural ....................................... 15

2.1.3 The Psychological Thesis ........................................ 20

2.1.4 Homosexuality as a Chosen Sin ................................ 23

2.1.5 Conclusion of the Definition of Homosexuality ............... 24

2.2 The Causes of Homosexuality ......................................... 25

2.2.1 The Genetic Thesis ................................................. 25

2.2.2 Hormonal Factors .................................................. 26

2.2.3 The Prenatal Thesis ............................................... 28

2.2.4 Psychological Factors ............................................. 32
CHAPTER 3

EVALUATION OF HOMOSEXUALITY IN EAST AFRICAN CULTURES

3.1 The Field Surveys of Homosexuality in East Africa 40
3.2 The silence and secrecy regarding homosexuality in East Africa 43
3.3 Selective Forms of (Homo-) sexuality rejected in East Africa 49
3.4 Homosexuality in East Africa (Kenya) 54
3.5 Homosexuality in East African Prisons 62
3.6 Homosexuality in East Africa and the Street Children 64
3.7 Morality in East Africa (Kenya) 66
3.8 The Immorality of the Churches in East Africa 68

Appendix A 73
Appendix B 75

CHAPTER 4

THE OLD TESTAMENT AND HOMOSEXUALITY 76

4.1 Old Testament Historical Background 76
4.1.1 Egypt 78
4.1.2 Babylon and Assyria 86
4.1.3 Cult Prostitution 88
4.1.4 Canaan and Hittite 95
4.1.5 Canaanite Practice
4.2 The Texts of the Old Testament
   4.2.1 The Use of Scripture
   4.2.2 The Bible as Opposed to Homosexuality
   4.2.3 The Bible as Condoning Homosexuality
4.3 Old Testament Texts Cited With Reference to Homosexuality
   4.3.1 The Case of Sodom
   4.3.2 The Mosaic Laws
   4.3.3 The Idolatry Thesis
   4.3.4 The Outrage in Gibeah
4.4 Secondary Old Testament Texts Cited with Reference to Homosexuality
   4.4.1 The Case of Jonathan and David
   4.4.2 The Case of Noah and Ham
   4.4.3 The Case of Ruth and Naomi

CHAPTER 5
THE NEW TESTAMENT AND HOMOSEXUALITY
5.1 New Testament Historical Background - The Classical Setting
   5.1.1 Classical Greece
   5.1.2 Lesbianism in Greece
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5.1.3</td>
<td>The Development of Pederasty in Classical Greece</td>
<td>157</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.1.4</td>
<td>Charges of Homosexuality as Political Handicap</td>
<td>160</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.1.5</td>
<td>Plato and Pederasty</td>
<td>161</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.1.6</td>
<td>Plato's Defence of Pederasty versus Sensualism and Licentiousness</td>
<td>167</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.1.7</td>
<td>The Androgynous Myth</td>
<td>171</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.1.8</td>
<td>Homosexuality in Greek Drama</td>
<td>173</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.2</td>
<td>New Testament Historical Background – The Hellenistic World</td>
<td>179</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.2.1</td>
<td>Pederasty and Prostitution in later Greek Practice</td>
<td>179</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.2.2</td>
<td>The Reaction of Hellenistic Judaism</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.3</td>
<td>The New Testament and Homosexuality</td>
<td>194</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.3.1</td>
<td>The Social Background of Early Christianity: Form and Content of Anti-Homosexual References</td>
<td>194</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.3.2</td>
<td>Christians and Social Structure</td>
<td>197</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.3.3</td>
<td>New Testament Vice Lists:</td>
<td>199</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.4</td>
<td>Primary New Testament Texts Cited</td>
<td>203</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.4.1</td>
<td>Natural versus Unnatural</td>
<td>211</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.4.2</td>
<td>Meeting the Gnostic Approach</td>
<td>225</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
5.5 Secondary New Testament Texts and Homosexuality 233

CHAPTER 6
Researcher's Analysis 247

CHAPTER 7
Conclusion 269
Bibliography 273
Summary 292
Key Terms 295
SUMMARY

In the world in which we are living today many people, especially Christians, wonder why people should talk about homosexuality. For many past years, the Christian Church, especially in East Africa, considered herself more or less immune from many of the challenges, experienced by the rest of the world, particularly the Western world. However, as the church now continues to grow in numbers and expand its territories, these problems start to appear in the church also all over East Africa.

Increasingly the consciousness of the society is being raised concerning social-ethical issues such as women’s rights, battered children, single parent families, teenage pregnancy, wife beating and of course homosexuality. As a result such issues are widely discussed within the church and outside, sometimes causing a rift within the church.

Such has been the case with homosexuality. Recently at a Seventh-day Adventist Church camp meeting in East Africa, a debate in a Bible study on the ethics of homosexuality as perceived by the Seventh-day Adventist Church paved the way for divisions in the church, which has left church members in four categories (groups) namely: culturalist, rejectionist, reinterpretationist and the reaffirmationist. Unfortunately the debate closed without a definite conclusion as to what should be the normative basis for the theological ethical evaluation of homosexuality by the Seventh-day Adventist Church in East Africa. The issue was whether the Bible, culture or both the Bible and culture should be the normative basis and also as to what theological ethical guidance does the Bible provide for the ethical evaluation of homosexuality in the present-day context.

The dissertation surveys definitions and causes of sexuality, and traces some of the background from the pre-modern to the postmodern era reflecting on the definitions and causes of homosexuality, and it also traces some of the historical background regarding homosexual practices and views on homosexuality. It also discusses and assesses the Cultural beliefs on homosexuality in East Africa.

The study also looks at the Biblical texts that refer to or are thought to refer to homosexuality and “examines” the claims made in much of the “gays” literature with reference to these texts. Other texts used by over-zealous Christians bent on finding condemnation of homosexuality through Scripture.

During the East African pre modern era, sexuality, including homosexuality was not publicly discussed. The whole subject was encircled by a halo of secrecy and hedged around by innumerable East African taboos. When this silence is combined with the absence of written documentation on the cultures and histories of many parts of East Africa, the difficulties of accessing traditional understanding of homosexuality and sexuality become immense. One can conclude that it will be a serious mistake for the Seventh-day Adventist Church in East Africa to make East African culture normative in the ethical evaluation of homosexuality since: (i) Oral East African tradition does not really provide any moral view on homosexuality. To read into the silence on homosexuality the moral condemnation of homosexuality is not acceptable. (ii) Homosexual practices, in a ritualized form, are not foreign to East African culture. (iii) The strong condemnation of homosexuality in East Africa is often politically and ideologically inspired.

This dissertation advocates the need for the Seventh-day Adventist Church in East Africa to use the Bible alone, Old and New Testament, being the written word of God, given by divine inspiration through holy men of God who spoke and wrote as they were moved by the Holy Spirit, as the infallible revelation of God’s will. The Bible is the standard of character, the test of experience, the authoritative revealer of doctrines, and trustworthy record of God’s acts in history and therefore is central in any formulation concerning homosexuality, whether theological or ethical evaluation and therefore should be used as the only normative basis for the ethical evaluation of homosexuality.
KEY TERMS

1. Homosexuality
2. Christian Ethics
3. Bible
4. East African Culture
5. Seventh-day Adventist Church
6. Old Testament
7. New Testament
8. Tradition
9. Theology
10. Greek Culture