I wish to express my sincere appreciation to those who have assisted me in completing this research:

To the Sovereign Lord, the pillar of my life, for his strength and wisdom

In memory of my grandmother Mosima Miriam Mabitsela who saw great things in me and nurtured me.

Dr A. Gildenhuys, my supervisor for his guidance

MAWINSO Minister’s Fraternal for assisting me in my research

To the participants who I interviewed, for sharing their unique personal experiences.

My family’s understanding and support motivated me and assisted in my seeing this work through to its completion

My friends, for providing special encouragement at difficult times.

Nkululeko and Tshifhiwa for assisting with editing.
The study is an exploratory investigation of Pentecostal pastors’ perceptions of psychological distress, using grounded theory. Semi-structured interviews were conducted with five senior pastors, of Pentecostal churches in Soshanguve township located near Pretoria in South Africa. Data was analysed using open, axial and selective qualitative research methods. Verification of the results by the participants enhanced the validity and reliability of the research. Results indicate that there seems to be certain similarities between the established frameworks in psychology and the worldview of pastors with regard to psychological distress. It seems as if the pastors share common views about psychological distress with the medical, interpersonal and cognitive schools of thought. Therefore, psychological distress would be regarded as impairment in the social and occupational life spheres. The pastors’ referral patterns and strategies to deal with religious clients’ psychological distress are discussed, as well as their limitations as mental health care workers for their communities. It is suggested that, to bring psychological services to the black community, psychologists form collaborative relationships with Pentecostal pastors.

SAMEVATTING

Die studie is ‘n verkennende ondersoek na die persepsies van pastore van die Pinksterkerk ten opsigte van sielkundige nood deur die gebruik van die Begrondingsteorie. Semi-gestruktureerde onderhoude is gevoer met vyf senior pastore, verbonde aan Pinksterkerke in die stedelike woongebied van Soshanguve naby Pretoria in Suid Afrika. Die data is geanaliseer aan die hand van oop-, aksiale- en selektiewe kwalitatiewe navorsingsmetodes. Verifiëring van die resultate deur die deelnemers het die geldigheid en betroubaarheid van die navorsing verhoog. Resultate dui daarop dat daar sekere ooreenkoms is tussen gevestigde sielkundige benaderings en die wêreldbeskouing van die pastore ten opsigte van sielkundige nood. Dit blyk dat pastore menings ten opsigte van sielkundige nood huldig, wat ook in die mediese-, interpersoonlike- en kognitiewe denkskole aangetref word. Daarvolgens word sielkundige nood as ‘n ingekorte fuksionering van die sosiale- en beroepslewensfere, beskou. Die pastore se verwysingsraamwerk en hanteringstrategieë, waardeur godsdienstige kliënte se sielkundige nood hanteer word, asook die beperkings in hulself om as geestesgesondheidswerkers binne gemeenskappe op te tree, is in die navorsing bespreek. Daar word voorgestel dat sielkundiges met en Pinksterkerkpastore saamwerk om sielkundige dienste in die swart gemeenskap te vestig.
