

STATION OPEN AT LAST

PUBLIC PLEASED WITH CITY'S NEW STATION.—While the general public does not see much architectural beauty to admire in the exterior of Johannesburg's new railway station, they are thoroughly pleased with the interior design and general appointments. For the past three nights, since the barriers have been down, hundreds of citizens have wandered about the concourse, gallery promenades, platform subways and general rooms, admiring everything they saw. The above "Rand Daily Mail" flashlight picture shows a section of the crowd on the opening night. A picture of "Park Station" in the early days is shown in page 12.
