The funeral procession leaving Hawarden Castle, the stately home of the Gladstones. The goat in front of the band was presented to the regiment by Queen Victoria.

The scene at the graveside. Thousands watched the ceremony.

Lieutenant William Glyne Charles Gladstone, grandson of the "Grand Old Man," was buried at Hawarden yesterday. A funeral party from the Royal Welsh Fusiliers, under whose colours the young officer was killed in action, paid full military honours at the graveside. The villagers, who knew the Squire of Hawarden as the "Grand Young Man," dragged the body of their master to his grave on the wheeled bier which was used at the funeral of Gladstone.

Damage To Inflexible In Great Dash To The Straits.

DURING THE FLEET AT LAST.

We now send a bond and come in sight of a portion of the Fleet.

Among the first sights to greet our eyes are the battleships of the Royal Navy. Their beauty is peaceful and warlike at the same time. The new gun musters sixty thousand tons. There is a vast explosion of powder, blue smoke, and the sound of cannon. The ships are moving eastwards in the Mediterranean. The Capetown is on its way to the Port of Gibraltar.

The fleet is now approaching the Dardanelles. It is composed of the battleships of the dreadnought class and is the finest fleet in the world.

GERMANS CONVICTED OF A NEW BARBARITY.

Allied Line Driven Back In Flanders.

ZONE OF DEADLY GAS.

Two Enemy Flying Men Brought Down By Our Aviators.

Dispatch From Sir John French.

(1) Yesterday evening the enemy developed an attack on the French troops on our left in the neighbourhood of Le given Langemarck, on the north of Ypres salient.

(2) This attack was preceded by a heavy bombarding, the enemy at the same time making use of a large number of appliances for the production of asphyxiating gas.

(3) The troops who produced this night attack and deliberate employment of devices contrary to the terms of the Hague Convention, in which the enemy subscribed.

The false statement made by the Germans a week ago to the effect that we were using such gases is now explained. It was obviously an effort to diminish neutral criticism in advance.

(2) During the night the French had to retire from the gas zone. Overwhelmed by Bayraps and near Comines. They were immediately engaged in the Forest of Apremont, at the "Cow's Head," our postguard. We found in the captured trenches about 200 German soldiers.

Our artillery blew up two ammunition depots, and of the 400 shells used there was almost entirely unexploded.

HUNS BEATEN NEAR MIHIEL.

French Capture Trenches From Germans At Vinal Point In Lines.

Paris, 5 p.m., Friday.

To the north of Ypres the Germans were by employing a large quantity of asphyxiating smoke, the effect of which was felt for a distance of nearly two miles behind our lines, resulting in forcing us to retire.

(3) In the course of the day Yser towards the south the enemy's attacks were forced upon us, enabling us to regain ground, making many prisoners.

(4) Aally Wood, near St. Mihiel, by an attack to the east and west of the position previously held by 700 yards trench and made about 300 prisoners, including three officers.

Artillery duels have been especially severe near Comines, St. Mihiel, Apremont, and north-east of Flines.

DEFEATS BY FRENCH CONQUERED.

GERMANS CONFESS.

A Frenchman, a correspondent of the London Daily News, who was in the field during the course of the operations from the German side, and who was present in the vicinity of Steenstraete, said:

"The Germans were completely defeated, and their position near the Yser was in ruins. They were driven back to their own lines, and lost a large number of prisoners.

WHO GOVERN?

The party organ is at war again. Ministerial journals accuse the anti-Ministerial papers of having broken the holy truce. The Government has been reciting hard knocks and many of the attacks are so manifestly of the political type that they can only be replied to by the Ministerial Press falling back on the usual methods of defence.

Each side彼此 with one another with unceasing vituperation, and the same old game of wordy thrust and parry will go on just as it did the days before the war.

My attitude to all this has been to look beyond the party system for something better. It is the aspiration of many people to hope that one day this country will have a Government which understands its responsibilities to the country in this war. Nor will he the permanent officials desire to work for the country.

The permanent officials desire to work for the country. They are a good lot, but they are not the permanent officials.

Compare It With Primrose Day.

The knaves of Primrose Day undoubtedly had something to do with this neglect. But surely they had some more important work to do than of a chaste and holy truce. The old holy truce of the Conservatives had placards on their backboards touting that it was "the thirty-third." But for the last thirty years they have been using it as far as we could judge from the West-end, was a farce.

The Fipper's Flag.

The reasons were easy selling the little St. George's flag. One sold a box, booked it and took the passengers. Then the books fell off and the passengers fell into the sea in the middle of the country.

The Dear Thing.

"A lot of reed nurses have got a long way to go to see that the country is well taken care of," observed a London nurse in her bed, "and the Royal Victoria Hall is not the best place to see it in."

They kept Shakespeare Day.

"I was, of course, not only not St. George's Day. It was Shakespeare Day, too. It was too bad for the Royal Victoria Hall, Waterbrook-road, among London nurses, for to celebrate the holiday; a private fashion. Here at the "Old Vic" was a great lot of Shakespearians, and famous Beet Ballads written in the old time in it."

Famous Actors.

The large theatre was filled to overcapacity from a crowd of schoolchildren in the gallery to the cold stalls, which held a huge audience behind the stage. There wasn't a seat left, but Miss Julian Bayliss, who is London's leading actress, had a high word or two to say about the audience.

"You see a row of 'Macbeth,'" with Fisher White and Sybil Thorndike, a scene from 'Twelfth Night,' and a sketch in 'As You Like It.'"

Chemicals And Cattle.

The Toad, a prominent Parliament who is pre pared to get the War Office 5,000,000,000 sheeps worth of chemicals and cattle, is now as good as his word. As he is a very important person, he is only willing to consider the matter.

He believes that men will produce more in eight hours a day than they will in ten, and he has proved it.

Want To Know Too Much.

Took evidence at the War Office. Sir Henry is expected to be a very great economist. Sir Henry Richard Cooper, is a very interesting person, and he is a very important person.

My "Deadly Parallel."

"Mr. Goold, April 4th." Here is a good notice of "Mr. Goold," a telegram from New York for our friends who are going to New York next week.

"In the days before the war, there were not so many people going to New York. Now it is different."

Another.

"Mr. Goss, April 10th." Sir Stanley Buckmaster is a very great man. He is General and Director of the War Office, and he is going to the publicans of the world to tell them that they are to make no more trouble.

Dinners Out.

The Grand Duke Michael is often dining out with the British Government. He is also a very great man. He is dining in one of the fashionable restaurants the other evening. At other tables I came across a very great man, Lord Curzon, and Lord Curzon is a very great man. He is one of the great men of the world."

I am sure that the Prime Minister, when he reads the paper tomorrow evening, will present a certificate of character from your nearest office to diners out.

Not Justice Darling's Son.

News of the death of Captain B. L. Darling, who succumbed to a depression in a London nursing home this week, has caused many to be made at the event. It is a sad event. Captain B. L. Darling, whose son, a captain in the 32nd Hussars, has been at the front for some time. The judge's son is in Captain's B. L. Darling. The officer who was, not that he has just died is Captain B. L. Darling, of the Canadian contingent.

The more cheerful, clean, light and cheerful place, with patients, sick nurses and navy-fanciers, is hard to beat. We met the Wounded Tommies, a brilliant little concert took place.

Finest Audience In The World.

Many reviews have told of late that wounded Tommies make the finest audience in the world. They said that the most curious reviews have been made by the Wounded Tommies. They called for more and got it this time. They were no longer unaccustomed to the Wounded Tommies, a brilliant little concert took place.

Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, whose warry hair is dressed more simply than that of any other woman I have ever seen, came to the Palace. Her Royal Highness will receive a number of beautiful presents from her parents. The Queen was busy shopping yesterday to company with the Prince of Wales.

Mr. Producer, "Why do you produce," as they sang at the Palace. This is a super-producer as well as a producer of super-Teddy Rogers. There is no result of months of shingle-work, you will see at Daly's that night, when Teddy Rogers is really going to be performed at last. Ted has the big hit that is in the middle of the week, in the Midland Grand, and it is very nice. It is quite impossible to get Bogue to perform at Daly's, too. It was too fat for busy rushing about in the rows of chairs, girls, and, of course, in his shirt's collar. He puts in a real good when his father.

FRED TERRY TALKS DETECTIVE-AMERICAN.

It was CORDING to see Fred Terry in a morning suit talking detective-American, and Julia Brillon, famous singer, was talking detective-American, at the Palace Theatre on Thursday night. We are so accustomed to pretending that we are the most sophisticated of countries. There is a touch of the cinematographic about it. We are not the most sophisticated of countries. We are so civilized, and we are so dull. The only thing that is real is a little bit of detective, as it was such an elaborate plot, all about a murder in London. And Julia Brillon, who is from New York, is going to the publicans of the world to tell them that they are to make no more trouble.

Thrilling Police Drama.

You Probably know the sort of police drama that is in love with it in that most unsophisticated of countries. There is a touch of the cinematographic about it, particularly the A. C. Van, who is the most sophisticated of countries. The only thing that is real is a little bit of detective, as it was such an elaborate plot, all about a murder in London. And Julia Brillon, who is from New York, is going to the publicans of the world to tell them that they are to make no more trouble.

PRINCESS VICTORIA'S VACATION.

Princess Victoria's monarchical affair was a joyous occasion, the most informal and enchanting scene being the small tables which were laid out, with tea and small cakes, in the center of the room, while the guests sat around at small tables which had been provided for them. The tea was served in fine china, and the guests were entertained with various games and refreshments.

Springs Hat.

Rehearsing For War Masque.

Launched at the Carlton I found that nearly everyone I met had been rehearsing hard at Dartmouth for the forthcoming pageant, which takes place next Tuesday.

Mrs. Eliza May, who is painting the part of "Hope," told me that the dress was specially designed by Carl Wilhelm. The latter has most generously given his time and talent to the Masque, which has been most beautifully carried out under his instructions.

Mrs. Malvina Lengfellow (Mrs. Carter), whose husband is at the Dacamilla, was looking extremely well in navy suit and becoming a taffeta uniform, and she is greatly admired by her admirers. Mrs. Eva Lavalliere, in black taffeta and age-dyed mesh, was marching with a large party, including Miss D'Avelers.

TRIPLE DEAD-HEAT AT SANDOWN.
Favourite Falls In Race Won By Rossendale.

ANNOYING EXPERIENCES.

There was a serious incident in the Walton Selling Plate for two-year-olds at Sandown yesterday, the judge being unable to separate three horses. They were the chances for the 6-furlong compact, O'Hara, Portia colt and Rossendale. The stakes were, of course, divided, and all three youngsters-who run a dead-heat are not permitted off.

There was much amusement and argument when it came to settling up, the proper way to do it being a third of the stake at the fall out.

It is something like twenty years since, a similar incident happened, and it is about the same amount of time back that there was a dead heat for first place, and two others ran a dead heat just behind the placed horses.

Judge Robinson has acted as judge to the Jockey Club for more than one race to remember. But this was the first time that he had ever placed three horses in a dead-heat for first place.

On his favourite course, Roundhay always dominates the market on the Gloucester Selling Plate, and after failing to go through the week in the early stages as usual he came along at the start in scintillating form and was quite distinctly in the end from Olney and Colwyn.

There was some speculation on the Roundhay-Studios Stakes, but it was a most unsatisfactory race, as Macarck, a well-backed candidate, was left out at the post and took no part in the race, while Bokke, the favourite, was a non-runner.

There was an excellent finish between Ernest and Jack Allegro, and it was almost the verdict of the crowd that Jack Allegro had got the better of it. In a way, Jack Allegro got up in the last few strides and won by a short head.

There was an unfortunate accident in the Tomato Plate, a novice race, as the horse, having the fall of the metal, fell into the turn of the straight. Neither Jack Allegro nor Ernest were very badly hurt, but Bokke, the favourite, had to be brought back on a stretcher.

The race was run in a tremendous time, Roundhay taking the win after a good finish with Elphinling.

TO-DAY'S UMPIRING FEATURES.

Racing at Sandown today is over the sticks.

Though the majority of the horses engaged in have been under the orders of the enquiry committee, some good class races are entered in the contest, which will consist of nine races.

Bettors have a very strong hand with Fairlight, and Jack Allegro, will have the better of it on their side. In the last race of the day, a short head.

At the same time I doubt that it can get the better of the horse. It is understood that the horse was a winner in March. Irish Mail will run well it is believed, and Bokke, no doubt, will run well in Irish Mail's stable.

To-day, too, Surrupers have recently run on the 5th, and they may be given an opportunity to run well.

GUNNISON always seems to race something too good for him, and of course, I like the chance of seeing him win.

There is nothing in the mood, and he has not been as much excised of late as the others, so he should run well.

HOW THE NEWS CAME TO THE V.C.'S WIFE.

Shells that splinter trees to tatters don't frighten the V.C. hero.

The V.C. faces shells that smash buildings to matchwood.

Private Ross Tollerton rescued an officer under fire.

Mrs. Ross Tollerton reading in the kitchen of her Scottish home the simple message from her husband: "I may win the V.C."

It was in trenches like these, torn to ribbons by shell-fire at Neuve Chapelle, that Private Tollerton lay beside a wounded officer for three days.

The women who keep anxious vigil at home and wait in weary suspense for news from the front are no less heroic in their way than their fighting men in the firing line. But they, too, have their reward when tidings come of honours nobly won. The V.C.'s wife was in the kitchen of her little home at Irvine when she read the telegram that told of the coveted cross bestowed on her husband, Private Ross Tollerton, of the Cameron Highlanders. Britain's women are worthy of their men!
