The second great Battle of Ypres in two phases—photographs taken while the fighting was still in progress. In the top picture our guns are bombarding the enemy's lines. You can mark the flight of our shells as they burst with unerring aim over the German trenches. The guns themselves are carefully hidden from view. In the bottom picture you see our infantry creeping forward to the attack. The artillery have cleared the way—the bayonet now must push the victory home. (Daily Sketch Exclusive Photographs.)
LOVE ROMANCE IN HIGH LIFE.

Earl's Granddaughter And Adventurous Dane.

MARRIAGE PROPOSAL AT 77.

"My Body Trembles With The Gentle Thrill Of Love."

A love romance in high life, in which the chief characters were Lady Harvey, granddaughter of the 10th Duke of St. Albans, and Mr. Gatreau, a Dagge, "employed in the secret service of certain Government," was unfolded yesterday in the press and among the diplomatic circles.

The woman was Lady Harvey, then 70 years of age, inherited from her sister a large estate at Langton, Berkshire, the property including a fine old manor house and ancient residence and other art treasures.

Shortly afterwards she made the acquaintance of Mr. Gatreau, and yesterday's action had reference to the two pearls, worth about £5,400, which, it is charged by an ex-nuncio, Bertone Iltol-ber-Lady Harvey having died early in 1913—were obtained by Mr. Gatreau under false pretences.

Mr. Gatreau maintained that the pearls were a gift, but in his absence the jury decided otherwise, and ordered him to answer a bill of complaint for money had and received.

According to Mr. Gordon Heward, Q.C., who appeared for the executed, Lady Harvey, at the time that she made the acquaintance of Mr. Gatreau and Mr. Berton-Iltol-ber, Lady Harvey having died early in 1913, was made acquainted with Gatreau.

In an "unfortunate moment," Mr. Heward said, she communicated with a London firm who, sent to Langton, to make a journey to the estate in the company of the nuncio, and that she had an inventory made. By means she has not named.

The woman was first seen in Langton upon several occasions, after which Mr. Berton-Iltol-ber and Mr. Gatreau went to her on the very day of her arrival, and she never had the opportunity of meeting with her again. While it is not shown that the nuncio had any intention of meeting with her, it is shown that she had an inventory made of the pearls.

LONDON TERRITORIALS IN ACTION.

23rd And 24th Regiments Lose Heavily In Volunteers.

Heavy losses occur among the volunteer regiments on the front. In the 23rd Regiments, five officers have been killed, one died of wounds, and two wounded. In the 24th Regiments, six officers have been killed, one died of wounds, and two wounded.

The worst suffering was in the 23rd Regiments, which had been subjected to heavy fire on the front. The 24th Regments, however, had been subjected to less fire, but the losses were heavy.

CAPTILL HOMICIDE.

Grave Charge Against Tinsley, the Gretna Signalman.

James Tinsley, one of the accused arrested after the Gretna railway disaster, has been liberated on bail by the Home Office.

The charge against him is one of culpable homicide by neglect and不尽 the regulation of the train and of the firemen of the train and of the others.

SEND NO MORE RESPIRATORS.

An improved type of respirator has been adopted as the special expert committee.

The first type of respirator was not well received, but it must be modified. It would have given me more comfort to have had the latter to use, but I prefer the former to the latter.

The second type of respirator is in the Army, and the new one is not as comfortable.

WAR OFFICE.

"Like A Beautiful Star."

Once Lady Harvey wrote—

The hope of seeing you soon is like a beautiful star."

Another letter continued the same:

"The news of your arrival was not received with satisfaction."

In the same letter, Lady Harvey wrote, "If she is a miscarriage of your neck, imagine your neck is very, very soft."

INSUFFICIENT PAY:

Why Not Separation Allowances For Their Wives?

The financial position of the married officer and his family is not a happy one. While it is true that the Government has not yet seen the need to increase the allowance, as is done annually in the lower ranks.

A year ago men who became officers had ample private means, but since the war, expenses have been increased, and it is thought that the Government authorities have not yet seen the need to increase the allowance, as is done annually in the lower ranks.

The main reason for this is that the Government authorities have not yet seen the need to increase the allowance, as is done annually in the lower ranks.

overcomes the danger of poisoned water.

Now that the Huns have taken to poisoning the water in Flanders a box of Wrigley’s Spearmint is doubly welcomed by our brave boys in khaki. It relieves thirst and saves Tommy from being forced to drink water which may be poisoned.

You can get a mammoth box of 40 bars for 1/6 sufficient to keep your soldier lad well supplied for several weeks.

Every soldier appreciates Wrigley’s Spearmint. Chewing Gum—he does not try it as he does of chocolate (which only aggravates thirst.)

Wrigley’s Spearmint stimulates, keeps one fresh; a thoroughly wholesome and agreeable change from smoking. It is a capital dentifrice, keeping the teeth white and clean. It is a splendid help to digestion, the mint juice which it contains is a natural tonic to the stomach.

Sold by all chemists and confectioners. If you cannot obtain it locally, write direct to Wrigley’s, Ltd., Lambeth Palace-road, S.E.

ECHOES OF THE TOWN AND ROUND ABOUT.

THE SPIRIT OF COALITION.

The formation of the Coalition Government will ensure an immediate end to all party squabbles in office. In normal, or even abnormal, times, the appointment by a Unionist Minister of a secretary with known Liberal sympathies is not an unheard-of occurrence, but such a circumstance may be found, in fact, at the Colonial Office, where the present Secretary is an appointed Mr. J. C. G. Davidson, one of his private secretaries (unpaid).

A Harcourt Protocol.

This is a fine spirit of the ministers, which permits the country at the present time. Mr. Harcourt is one of Mr. Hartley's colleagues at the Colonial Office, where he has handed in his resignation for some time on an unpaid member of the staff.

THE RIGHT HONOURABLE SIR A. A. MACDONALD.

Mr. Macdonald, the one of the new Privy Council and Parliamentary Secretary of the Board of Agriculture, has been announcing the appointment of the University of London Officers' Training Corps. He has joined as a private, but was soon promoted to a sergeant. His instant promotion has caused a feeling of surprise, since it is usual for reserve officers to be appointed to the London Officers' Training Corps.

A Sunbeam Tragedy.

Lady Willingdon's first visit to Bombay was made when a girl. She accompanied her father, Lord Willingdon, on a visit to the city in 1915, and was very excited at the prospect of seeing the city's famous landmarks. She was received with great enthusiasm by the people of Bombay, who were overjoyed to see the young princess.

THE WINE BILL.

It may have been Italian wine which started it, but a new trend in the wine market is the increasing popularity of Tuscan wines. These wines are known for their rich, full-bodied flavors and are often used as a base for many Italian dishes.

SMACK HIM, DADDY.

The Earl of Macclesfield is reported to have been slightly shocked at a recent performance. He had not realized the intimate nature of the performance and was not prepared for the intimate nature of the audience.

THE WAY TO VICTORIA CROSS.

The recruiting office at Bricklayer's Arms is currently experiencing a new trend in recruitment. Instead of sending out traditional recruitment brochures, they are now using social media to reach potential recruits. This has led to an increase in the number of applications received.

POOR BARCLAY GAMMON.

Mr. Gammon, a well-known figure in the world of finance, has recently been hit by a series of bad luck. He has lost a significant amount of money in the stock market and has been forced to sell off some of his assets to pay off his debts.

CORRY GRAIN AND POLLINER.

Mr. Gammon has been unable to report the legitimate succession of Corry Grain, and both men were found dead in their homes. The police are currently investigating the matter.

INTO WHICH BOY?

Now that we have a Coalition Government, into which contribution does the recipient of birthday honours drop his little missus?

OPEA IS ON NOW.

I wish more people would realize that there is no point in going to opera if you don't want to miss it, and that it should not be allowed to languish for lack of support. There have been very few people at the opera in recent weeks, but the theatre wants a lot of filling, and the show must go on, regardless of the size of the audience. You cannot drag anyone into going to opera or anything else. But this season deserves encouragement, not least because of the fine sporting effort, but because the productions are excellent in themselves.

FROM RUSSIA.

On Wednesday night I saw "La Jolie," the new ballet opera at the Imperial Theatre, and Delius The performance was first-rate, although the voice of the leading tenor, M., was not as good as usual. But Miss Mignon, daughter of Emma Mignon, was a picture of Lisette, and sang well. M. Delius and M. Octave Désiré were seen again, what most of us knew before, that they are native experts.

NATIVE EXPERTS.

LAFAYETTE is all about India, and the Indian atmosphere was reproduced exactly. M. Lafaycet, who is in charge of the production, is, of course, ought to know what is about, just as M. Tosti, Macclesfield did in the case of "Madama Butterfly." Miss Brown is a native expert's a wine move on M. Bosquet's part.

REAL IRISH.

After the Maturity of the Cream of the Porkers, the Playhouse this afternoon presented "The Oath," a new play by Miss Ethel Smith, which was undertaken at the last minute, and which was written by Miss Cathleen Nesbit, who would appear in it. Miss Nesbit has that rare and valuable quality—temperament. From the ordinary leg of the play to the last scene when it was given small parts (she is a much more important actress), and she made them stand out extraordinarily. Do you remember her as Dr. Hepworth in "The Mahometans" in Canon Hankey's play, "General," or as the lass in the back row of the first row in "The Beef," or as Miss Ethel Smith, with all the poetry of her race.

THE EMERGENCY SHAVE.

Here's a wise piece of news that will pleasantly affect a good many people. The shaving saloon at the Hotel du Soleil since the beginning of the season will be reopened next week. This was about the only item of news that could get a shave for nine o'clock, and I have known people quite unable to afford a razor, sometimes when you come in at 10.30 in the morning with half an hour of shaving still to do.

A MAGIC BRASS TICKET.

One of the most valuable privileges of a Cabinet Miniser is the possession of a little brass ticket which allows him to drive through the archway at the House Guards, and to break through the ranks of waiting carriages at all great functions. His right to carry it varies from time to time, and at sight of his shining brass even the most indignant of custom-house officers will hold up the traffic in the Minister's favour.

TO FRANCE AND BACK TWICE A DAY.

The splendid trade of my army on the Continent is so good that it is often a matter of an afternoon or, rather, a two-days' occurrence, for one of the customs officers tells me that double journeys happen frequently.

MORE SOLDIERS' CLUBS WANTED.

One would think that there were enough clubs already. It's the leading workmen who insist that this is not so. All the commanding officers of our Colonial stations are generally for the benefit of Colonial contingents. It is not a question of Colonials being sent to places near London, and spending two days in the metropolis, and then having to go to work.

YOUR ORIGINAL IDEAS MAY WIN A PRIZE IN THE £1,000 COMPETITION.

Did you ever wonder why women are so conservative in the matter of baby clothes? Many mothers dress their babies in garments made on exactly the same patterns as those used by their grandmothers and take the resultant trouble and objections by the babies, as inevitable trials.

Have you any ideas on the matter? If you have you will find Class 26 of the Daily Sketch Patriotic Needlework Competition interesting. It is for 'a set of first garments for an infant. Easy in washing and putting on to be taken into account.' The number of garments, of course, is left entirely to the competitors. It may be your set which will win the first prize of £1,000 is offered in prizes for the best pieces of needlework done by Daily Sketch Readers. There is no entrance fee, but each entry must be accompanied by 24 coupons from the Daily Sketch. These coupons will appear daily until November next, when the competition closes.

After the judging, which will be done by experts under the auspices of the Royal School of Art Needlework, all the work will be exhibited in a suitable hall in London, and, in case where the competitors feel unable to attend, will be sent for the benefit of the Red Cross Society and the St. John Ambulance Association.

In order to take part in the competition readers must send a large stamped self-addressed envelope to Mrs. Gossey, Needlework Competition, Daily Sketch, London, E.C., for full details and an entrance form. It must be distinctly understood that all work submitted for competition will be sold for the benefit of the Red Cross Society and the St. John Ambulance Association unless competitors specify on their Reptation Forms that such work is to be returned.

NELSON’S “VICTORY” STILL SERVICEABLE.

The old flagship Victory is still able to render good service in war work. By exhibiting a model of the famous battle ship Blackwood Water Chaise, Limited, has been enabled to obtain a commission for iron and copper vessels, and having also contributed several pounds to the work of the “Royal Navy,” the firm is now engaged in the construction of a large number of iron and copper vessels.

According to the plan issued by the firm, the Victory is to be used as a training ship for the Royal Navy, and will be open to inspection by the public on certain days. The Victory is the last of the old ships of the old school, and will be a fitting monument to the memory of Nelson.

CHAPTER XXVII

The Shadow That Fell From the Taft

How Klara Goldstein spent that terrible night she never fully realized. When half an hour or so had dragged herself up from the floor, full consciousness had returned to her, and with it the power to feel, to understand. A hideous, awful terror was upon her which seemed to freeze and cool through and through; a cold sweat broke out all over her body, and she was quite trembuling from head to foot. She crawled as far as the narrow walk which was in a corner of the room, and just managed to throw herself upon it, her back on the floor, and to remain with her eyes staring upwards into the darkness, her ears strained to every sound that came from the other side of the door.

But gradually, as she lay, her senses became more acute; she could now quite distinctly feel, almost discern the existence of the tragedy which had been enacted outside her door. She felt in the storm-torn, tumultuous world, and her head, which had been in the air, went through the window and opened the front door of her room.

A Sound of Mournment.

She knew well the risks which she was running, going out like this at the dead of night, and alone. Any passer-by might see her—ask questions, suspect her of connivance. It was told her that it was a great risk and cost her life, and her eyes could—almost perceive—this emotion as it presented itself in the form of impatience in this awful, awful scene.

She started on her knees, and then proceeded to it, and then to slip through it into the house was even worse, to realize that she was again in her room, like the hunted beast back in its lair—panting, quivering, ready to dash, but safe, at all events.

One had seen her, she was sure. And now she knew—saw—she knew—to what end she had gone, and in what manner. The terror of it was so terrible, so lasting, that she started up, and the key with which she had been able to enter the door was no longer even in her possession.

For the present she must once more think of herself, and the world must be left. She strolled about, and then she was able to get back through the door into the room, and then to slip through it into the house was even worse, to realize that she was again in her room, like the hunted beast back in its lair—panting, quivering, ready to dash, but safe, at all events.

Nerves all on Edge. Would Jump at a Sound.

Because Lyons serve more customers in one day than any other refreshment caterers in a whole week, you can justly claim to be the undisputed Leaders of Popular Catering. Courteous service, moderate prices, their delicious bread, entrees and pastries have made, with the aid of Lyons' Tea, their teashops the most famous in the world. Lyons' 2Tea is the Tea that, in the opinion of the vast majority of housewives, gives the maximum number of cups of delicious and satisfying Tea per packet.

It is sold by 160,000 shopkeepers, or a sample packet may be purchased at any of the 200 Lyons' Leaders.
THE LONDON TERRITORIALS HAVE WON UNDYING GLORY.

London has reason to be proud of her Territorial soldiers. The lads we saw in August guarding the railway stations and public buildings have proved themselves the best of fighting men at the front. If we forgot them as we cheered the men of the Regular Army, the honours list—and, alas, the casualty list—remind us now that they, too, were soldiers, and, unlike some of us, ready to take their part in the great struggle. They have been in the thick of the fighting.

THE DUCHESS LED THE CHEERS AT THE HOME-COMING OF LANCE-CORPORAL FULLER, V.C.

Mansfield gave a wonderful welcome to its son, Lance-Corporal Fuller, V.C., of the Grenadier Guards. Photograph shows scene on the platform. Left to right: Sir Arthur Markham, M.P., Lady Victoria Cavendish-Bentinck, the Duchess of Portland, Lance-Corporal Fuller, V.C., the Mayor of Mansfield, the hero’s mother, and (inset) his father.
