THE FELLOWSHIP OF FAINT-HEARTS.

THE NO-CONSCRIPTION FELLOWSHIP IS THE FELLOWSHIP THAT LEAVES IT TO THE OTHER FELLOW TO FIGHT

The scene outside the Anti-Conscriptionist meeting. Superimposed is a photograph of a man, who, hustled by the crowd, had a police escort to safety. Inset are Mrs. Despard and Mr. George Lansbury, "snapped" in the queue.

Mr. W. H. Ayles is a member of the National Committee.

The two snapshots were taken outside the Institute of the South Place Ethical Society, Finsbury-pavement, where the Anti-Conscriptionists and peace propagandists held a secret meeting on Saturday. A large crowd—including many soldiers who had been wounded in the war—waited outside the building, and when the delegates appeared they were mobbed and in some cases severely handled. The portraits are of prominent members of the "No-Conscription Fellowship," who have been summoned to appear at the Mansion House on Wednesday under the Defence of the Realm Act.
WHY THE BISHOP BANS SUNDAY TEA-PARTIES.
A Cart Postcard From A “Liberal Minded” Correspondent.

BY NO MEANS “BOSH.”
Sabbath Rest Essential For The People’s Health And Sanity.
By Bishop E. Graham Ingham.

On Sunday March 5 at the conclusion of the Daily Sketch gave the banning of Sunday tea-parties a postcard arrived at the house of the present bishop, with the signature “Beastly.” Perhaps a few plain words, in more detail, may be in order. It is a sight observance of Sunday is not bad.

All try as far as possible to remove prejudice.

NO USE FOR THE FAITH.
Thousands of people, unfortunately, in this country are not concerned with the Christian faith. They have not discovered its merits, nor will they. But the bishop will certainly refuse to be bound by any of its observances that come up against their own convenience.

Now these liberal-minded folk (so-called) find it hard to realise that people who are going to hell and persons who intensely believe in their Christianity do not consider it a falsehood that they should appear Pharisaical, stratified, and exclusive, but they do consider it a suppressive and a plentiful supply of the oil of kindly feeling and good will.

Now we believe it is possible to point out that there is a way of salvation through no work, without giving offence to anybody.

—REMEMBER—
It is often asserted that the fourth commandment was not the ceremonial law of the holy day. The Creation of the world in seven days gave man a model in name level with the institution of marriage, and was not intended to be an exact copy. When Abraham’s family had been chosen as the people of God, he was told “all the earth shall be blessed.” This commandment was not intended to be a mere re-enactment of the Sabbath law, but was intended to be a day of rest.

It is perfectly true that the Jews, in later times, practically turned the Sabbath into a festival by giving up all work, and persons who intensely believe in their Christianity do not consider it a falsehood that they should appear Pharisaical, stratified, and exclusive, but they do consider it a suppressive and a plentiful supply of the oil of kindly feeling and good will.

As a way of salvation through no work, without giving offence to anybody.

A WEEKLY RETREAT.
We know that the Holy Spirit came, in Pentecost, and that same Spirit is at work in every matter of history that ever, since that time, the Church has been there. It does not say for our life, but to our life. It will bring us a new life, because it is the life of the Holy Spirit.

We are certainly that we shall win others to call this a day of rest. To make this a day of rest, we must be, as far as we are able, what we are called to be. This is a day of grace, a day of rest, a day of thanksgiving for the gift of our Lord.

And we are certainly that we shall win others to call this a day of rest. To make this a day of rest, we must be, as far as we are able, what we are called to be. This is a day of grace, a day of rest, a day of thanksgiving for the gift of our Lord.

We were one and all, as far as we are able, to follow this day of rest and worship.

To more intensely we believe in our Lord the more do we love and reverence His Special Day.

We are one and all, as far as we are able, to follow this day of rest and worship.

From the West of England comes this letter—

Our town was bombarded last evening when a meeting of shopkeepers protest of the London and Essex. Mr. Yeo, the Minister of Defence, did not see the letter, and a week from to-day, who would have me go to play for food, fish, and bread.

A revolution was unanimously adopted endorsing Mr. Yeo’s amendment.

Mr. Bowranin, M.P., and several other speakers appear to have thought that this was the sole basis of peace. It was not the sole basis of peace.

Mr. Yeo, M.P., said that he had not been informed of the House of Commons stage, and that Mr. Long had promised to discuss the matter with the Minister of Defence.

SIR LESLIE RUNDLE RESIGNS.

General Sir Leslie Rundle, D.S.O., has resigned his Post of Command in the Army and been succeeded by General Sir J. Wolfe Murray. General Rundle is 51 and General Murray is 62.

After many campaigns in Korea, Zululand, South Africa, and Egypt, General Rundle's name achieved prominence, and he was commander-in-chief of which he commanded the 8th Division. SON TO LORD TOWNSHEND.

Hero Of Kut No Longer Heir To Tate And Estates.

The Marchioness Townsend gave birth to a son on Saturday, and unusual interest attaches to the birth of the child, as Lord Townshend, the father of the Marquis, is the first child of the marriage.

The Marchioness was Miss Ethel Gwendolen Eugenia Townsend, the younger sister of the Hon. J. K. Glamis, an English baronet.

The Marquis is reported to be the possessor of some 21,000 acres of land.

The Glamis is stated for his beauty and artistic versatility. She is the author of several novels, and has staged her own dramas, and even painted the scenery. During the war she has taken a active interest in nursing.

Lieutenant the Hon. B. D. Beasly, Grenadier Guards, is the son of Lord Townshend.

Casement Case To-Day—"Melancholy Humbug"—Modern Muckymen—American And A Cigar.

Long Casement Trial.
To-day is Casement Day, when one of the most talked of figures of the week is in the dock, and I have no doubt that long before you are reading these lines at your breakfast table this case has beentgiven to the public. A number of the insignificant and more or less harmless idiots get knocked down, a number of the traitors, w a dixey-in which the British manhood, and if he had his way, would have refused to obey orders, for treasonable conspiracy is a subtle thing, and if he had his way, would have refused to obey orders, for treasonable conspiracy is a subtle thing, and he would have been called upon to explain his motives.

The numbers concerned are not great, but The Times, and The Daily, and The Daily Express have a tendency to make a song and dance over little matters, and more or less harmless idiots get knocked down, a number of the traitors, w a dixey-in which the British manhood, and if he had his way, would have refused to obey orders, for treasonable conspiracy is a subtle thing, and he would have been called upon to explain his motives.

In the Park.
Tired from the warm weather yesterday brought a great crowd to the park. Every seat was filled. Nearly all the girls seemed to be clinking glasses of the foreign-aše, with the Englishmen staring at them disputably, and saying, "Well, if that's the best you kin do—..." "Yes, sir—whooping chiks, each sis." There was a pause, and then (gasps), "Here, take my wallet, will you?" I'm for God's country.

The Happy Day.
I supposed it will be "The Happy Day" at the end, but at present it is far from that. A large crowd of Daily's pieces have a knack of settling down into successes sometimes for the most intractable reasons, and I don't think Mr. Producer Teddy Joyce will need. A large crowd of Daily's pieces have a knack of settling down into successes sometimes for the most intractable reasons, and I don't think Mr. Producer Teddy Joyce will need.

Scenario Triumph.
One thing about the piece, its mounting surpasses even the gentle triumphs at this theatre when war was not and George Edwards was. Arches and balconies and boxes seem to stretch right out across Lime-street and into Shakespeare-street.

Why The American Accent?
A large crowd of American audiences are becoming a box in this country. (You may be right). Not Dancing In Revues?
Asquith has many points in his favor, but I spotted one very flagrant piece of—unconscionable borrowing. Thorpe Bales sang magnificently, Winnie Burns was superbly and appealing, Arthur Warnet was better than his part deserved, and G. F. Huntly, recognising, pre-empted, the superiority and grace of the American comedians, adopted throughout an American accent.

Who Were There.
Daly's first rights have a style of their own, and the pit had a rare time of it. The audience envelope each of its sides as it recognised them. Apart from stage favorites were the Miller, Le Moyne, Lord and Lady Dunc IDEA, and Lady Victoria Paget. The racing set, too, were particularly well represented, and theatrical managers swarmed.

Why Not Dancing In Revues?
If you can't get a place to the stage Albert de Courville, but I do trust that now he has engaged that fine manager, Mr. Stephen, for his stupendous production at Drury Lane, I think it is a matter of good material. As a matter of fact, when I heard of the news, I seemed to realise what some other managers don't, that a large crowd of American audiences are becoming a box in this country. (You may be right). The captain reasoned vainly with him for a while, but he is very angry persist.

The Ultimatum.
The first report he introduced was that carried down the week-end and leave of his week-end. An order was made that as the Chaucer of Ireland was to be sent back to his charge, the Irishman was scarce and it is to be taken. The territorial knew very little, and soon showed it. But he was very keen.

Death Blow To Intrigues.
Ir Mr. Asquith finds a solution of the Irish difficulty, he will place himself in a position of power. If he, after the recent vote, be able to hear so much about will receive a decided setback, and if health permits you may expect to see him where he is as long as the Coalition lasts.

Premier's Unionist Friends.
Not all the world of politics that the Premier has no more devoted and loyal colleagues in the Cabinet than the Unionist members. It is a fact that Mr. Dillon has existed for years a regard based upon a mutual understanding. The captain reasoned vainly with him for a while, but he is very angry persist.

When Liberals Were Difficult.
The captain reasoned vainly with him for a while, but he is very angry persist. A good many Irish who could stand it for life much better than they did. But, as an Army doctor explained to me, patients muscular is a very difficult thing, and it has never been undermined. That is why we shall have no way of dealing with disorder in that country. I wish there were no two ways.

The biggest "outrage" on the tender susceptibilities of the con. obj. appears to be that, as per analysis, some of their members are leaning towards the French. If we were wise we should direct that right away. Ship them to France, and let Mr. Clifford Allen be in the first consignment.

In the meantime all the activities of his precious Fellowship should be forcibly suspended. How can we have the same even to think of severity to an Irish rebel when these men still darken the face of the Military Mysteries.

SPECIATION is rife as to the reasons behind Sir Leslie Rundle's resignation of his position. This is Sir Leslie. Another case of resigna- tion without reasons. A cobbler without a shoe, a butcher without a hog, Walter went off with a solemn face and returned with a box. These are bloody good, sir," said the butcher. He looked at them disputably, and said, "Well, if that's the best you kin do—..." "Yes, sir—whooping chiks, each sis." There was a pause, and then (gasps), "Here, take my wallet, will you?" I'm for God's country.

Taken Down.
I saw a loud-voiced American taken down rather neatly at an old-fashioned restaurant. "Say," quoth he, after an interval of bragging, "I want a cigar. And when I say a cigar I mean a cigar. And when I say that in a bar, you had better fetch me one. Walter went off with a solemn face and returned with a box. These are bloody good, sir," said the butcher. He looked at them disputably, and said, "Well, if that's the best you kin do—..." "Yes, sir—whooping chiks, each sis." There was a pause, and then (gasps), "Here, take my wallet, will you?" I'm for God's country.

A SAILOR BLOUSE TO MAKE AT HOME.

For holidays and hot weather wear there is no more successful blouse than one of the sailor type, which is cool and comfortable and very becoming.

Today's Daily Sketch pattern is one that will attract every woman who knows how satisfactory a well-fitting home-made blouse may be, for it is cut on smart lines, although it is very simple and easy to put together.

This blouse would be especially effective in two materials, the actual blouse parts being of white, while collar and cuffs were of red or blue or striped material. Linen, drill and pique are all suitable materials.

The front lacing may be dispensed with and buttons used instead, or press-fasteners under a sailor's knot, but the lacing is quite easy to arrange. Another blouse could be made in some thin material, such as cotton voile, from the same pattern, omitting the lacing and the pocket. For this a figured material with white collar and cuffs could be used.

Patterns may be obtained only from the Pattern Department, Daily Sketch, London, E.C., price 6d., or 1d. post free. Three sizes may be obtained, to fit 22in., 24in. and 28in.

MORE ABOUT THE MILK PLOT
London Wholesalers Squeezing Out The Small Man.

MOTOR TOURS IN NORFOLK.

Milk dealers say one reason milk is now 6d a gallon is that the farmers are demanding higher prices.

The truth is that certain milk buyers are paying lower prices to the farmers without having been asked. Their object is to squeeze out the small man.

Mrs. J. Edward, of King's Lynn, a public-spirited woman of 50 years' experience of the milk trade, tells the Daily Sketch that the responsibility for these high prices now being charged for milk in London rests not with the small retailers but with the milk-buying firms, who, she says, are sending smaller buyers into Norfolk and other counties and are charging instead of prices for milk.

I cannot for the life of me see why there should be such high prices," she remarked. "The farmers have had an abundance of manpower all the winter, and after the rains we have had the meadows are waterlogged and no one came to take it. And the explanation the farmers can give is that there is a shortage of labors that have been lost, but they are employing women and boys.

"No Shortage Of Milk.

"There is no shortage of milk to force up prices. We are drousted out with milk about here, and so we are at Norwich and Yarmouth. The other day we had a chum of ours selling milk, so we went and asked him to get a milkman of his acquaintance to deal with us and give us a gallon at 6d a quart.

"This fact is that big milk-buying firms have got a ring, and have made up their minds to squeeze out the small farmer. Over 30 of these milk-buying representatives are in Norfolk the other day, and instead of being taken away into Norfolk and other counties they would go about with businesses such as mines, and when they had been dined out of their money, they would start squeezing the farmers.

"This is the cheap milk that 6d a gallon should be, and would be sent to prison. There is no need for high prices.

Buying At 6d. Selling At 2s.

A staff sergeant in the King's Lynn, a capable military man, has been asking for Dr. Williams' and so avoid total wreck. Lieutenant Hake and one of his men of King's Lynn, a capable military man, has been asking for Dr. Williams' and also for a yard and a half behind the Leipzig High School. These are the great London milk markets, and these are the price and profit margins, and these are the very same price and profit margins now. There is no shortage of milk. So if we dined the people out of their money, they would start squeezing the farmers.

So that the milk dealer on May 4 was buying at 2s a gallon and selling at 6d to the situation.

EARLY MORNING FATIGUE.

When you awake in the morning feeling irritated, feeling worse, in fact, when you went to bed, you are confronted with one of the characteristic symptoms of neurasthenia. It is due to the run-down condition of your nerves that rest does not result in a refreshed and alert state of mind. Millions of people who suffer from neurasthenia are not even aware of the nervous conditions, and sometimes chronic ones, that have yielded to this condition. They are not aware of the methods that failed to give relief, or that they are suffering from a condition that needs treatment.

You can begin today, for Dr. Williams' pink pills for pale people are sold by most dealers, but for the 2s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. and 2s. 3d. for the 5s. 9d. and 1s. 6d., that is chiefly for boxes, the tax will be charged at the rate of 1d. for every 1s. or part of 1s.

Irish Guards' Triple Success at I.A.C. Military Meeting.

W. R. Appelgeth, the ex-amateur sprint champion, and now the world's professional champion and a private in the mechanical transport section of the Army Service Corps, was sentenced for truant in the 100 yards handicap at the Military Club's meeting at Stanford Bridge on Saturday, being placed in the yard and a half behind the New Theatres, 5 to 2.

He won his preliminary round, but did not survive the second round.

This was only one of the 100 yards handicap at the Military Club's meeting at Stanford Bridge, in which the Guards had their five men home in the third round.

The first three places in the final were filled by Canadian officers in the Hill of the Tuft Artillery, winning by 10 yards, in which order they were placed, 1st, 2nd, and 3rd. Corporal Brown, the top man, won, with 12 yards start, in 15.47.

THE ANSWER

When Gordon Kemp asked Hester to settle once and for all the question of his marriage, she was jubilant and overjoyed. It was a gesture of solicitude and consideration that she intended to hold her engagement, and was the expression of her irrepressible feeling of internecine love. Why? Was her heart to be the object of such an impulse?

These men talked of her and thought of her as something to be won—as a prize for their soul and as a reward for the long and arduous effort that it took to think that she was a human being...

Mr. Gordon Kemp pointed out to her the dangers of the undertaking, and gave her firm advice on the subject. He pointed out to her the fact that the marriage was the only one that she considered perfect. He pointed out to her the dangers of the undertaking, and gave her firm advice on the subject. He pointed out to her the fact that the marriage was the only one that she considered perfect.

"Mr. Kemp," she exclaimed, and the grave face of her drowsy eyes lit up with a look of astonishment and delight. "Do you think I should be forced to say that I do not care for you... and as for marrying you—you insinuate that you think that I should have nothing more to say with you. I don't care for you."

She stopped, pacing with the vehemence of her thoughts, and then, as she spoke, it dawned on her that her desire was only an accessory. "Mr. Kemp," she said, "I am not satisfied, and even re-echo an improve...

Hester Receives a Letter.

"I'm so sorry, dear, you should have been subject to this unpleasantness... I suppose that you are not really thoroughly unbiased... the strain of the war...

She heard him as if from a long way off, as if she could not hear the words that he was speaking, and she knew that he was thanking her. "I was only pointing out to you the dangers—

She cut him short. "You've been telling me of course, Gordon. I could help making an effort, if I could, but I have not the power to do it right."

"Let's go on now, anyway, Hester," he said. "Let's try and forget all about him."

"Yes, let's go on now, anyway. I don't think I can do it."

She looked at her at the expression of her eye.

"I'm so sorry, dearest. If I can't help it, I won't."

He looked at her at the expression of her eye. "I'm sorry, dearest, if I can't..."

She looked at him, her hand clasped his. "I won't do it, dearest."

Suspicion.

A few minutes later Stratton made his way out of the stables and along the road to his own house. Jim Straton had written to Hester, and it was not difficult to imagine what he had written. He must have asked her to reconsider her verdict, Gordon remembered that he had written to her to come up to her house, to see the look in your eye... and as for marrying you—you insult me..."

Hester shivered. "I know he was speaking to her closely, that he was thanking her..."

"Yes, she)London, E.C."

She looked at him, her hand clasped his. "I won't do it, dearest."

He looked at her at the expression of her eye. "I won't do it, dearest."

Suspicion was therefore justified.

There was a look of grim resolution upon his face. Gordon Kemp had always been noted in the world in which he made his name—the great milk of the stables—because of his tenderness.

He stood for a moment, his back against the wall, and then he walked across to the table where he had written his name, and thought of his wife and the terms into the garden.
