A DAY OF BIG EVENTS: Revolt In Ireland: Anzac Day: Lowestoft Bombarded.

Dublin In Rebel Hands: Bloodshed In The Streets. Anzac Day In London: See Also Pages 6 and 7.

It was officially announced yesterday that rebellion had broken out in Dublin, that parts of the city were in the hands of the rebels, and that lives had been lost. This is not the first time the Irish capital has been the scene of bloodshed. This photograph recalls the ugly happenings of the strike riots some time ago.

General Sir William Birdwood, the hero of Anzac, drove to the great commemoration service at Westminster Abbey yesterday, with his wife and daughter. He only arrived in England last week.

"God bless you!" she exclaimed, proud to shake the hand of an Anzac.

Lord Kitchener also attended the service. He walked to the Abbey.

GERMANY'S DREAM OF THE INVASION OF ENGLAND.

It was also officially announced yesterday that a German squadron had shelled Lowestoft. This picture from a German paper shows the German Fleet routing the British Navy in preparation for the invasion of England.

While Mr. Birrell, the Irish Secretary, was telling Parliament about the revolt, it was announced that Sir Roger Casement was now in London under arrest.
OUR GOOD-BYE TO THE DEAD HEROES OF ANZAC

The King And Queen Attend Moving Abbey Service.

LONDON'S GREAT TRIBUTE.

A Place In The Temple Of The Immortals.

By Edith Shackleton.

A year ago a brown tide swept over the white sand of Suez, capturing seriously and fiercely, with the rattle of combat and exultant cheers.

Yesterday it flooded in under the ancient soaring roof of Westminster, filling every carved crevice and corner. So quietly, and we discovered amongst the great profusion of the gold and silver, that those who were not early enough in the Abbey to see this pouring in of the Ancient Rites, do not miss one of the deepest impressions of the Commemoration service.

As I noted in previous articles, the King and Queen were among the official party in Westminster Abbey yesterday for the Anniversary of the Battle of the Jaws.

ENEMY RETREATS FROM KATIA.

From The War Office.

With reference to the fighting which took place in the Katia district on Sunday, April 21, General Officers Commanding-in-Chief in Egypt now reports that it was of a more severe character than was at first intimated. The advance of Eliyad was gallantly maintained by one company of the Royal Scots.

The enemy casualties amounted to 70 killed, 60 wounded, and 60 prisoners were taken as well as war material, amounting to 2,000 rounds of small arms ammunition, four machine gun belt boxes, full, 28 shells, and 80 rifles.

The following officers were in yesterday’s report taken as prisoners, and the aeroplanes inflicted severe casualties with bombs and machine gun fire:—

There was no further fighting on the Monday, and the enemy appeared to be withdrawing from the Katia area.

[Katia is an oasis in the Egyptian desert, about 80 miles east of El Kutna, on the Suez Canal.]

PURSUIT OF ROUTED TURKS.

HEAVY LOSSES CAUSED BY CAVILRY AND AEROPLANES.

By W. T. Massey.

Suez, Tuesday.

Although summer approaches and water in the wells must be getting low, the Turks are displaying some activity in the desert east of the Suez Canal. Parties have stationed in that area a few miles from our lines, but they have been kept out of our way.

Yesterday and to-day a substantial Turkish force has occupied Katia, district by district, with the assistance of Australian and Light Horse, while the Royal Flying Corps, which has done consistently admirable work throughout the campaign, finished the job on Saturday night, scattering the remnants of the Turks across the desert.

The Turks, estimated at about 200, yesterday attempted a surprise on our small post at Day`s Down, but the Turks were driven back with severe casualties.

This is the first in a series of actions where the Turks have not been able to capture a post, and the Turks were driven back with severe casualties.

One regiment of Australian horse received the call, and the Turks were vigorously taken, many prisoners and inflicting considerable casualties. The other division did not end here, but these places were occupied by the Austra

LADY SHACKLETON'S LOSS.

Lady Shackleton, in the midst of her anxiety and concern for the actions of others, was laid low by the death of her younger sister, Miss Dorman, whose death occurred in her house at Kensington.

slowly began to read the form of commemoration for the day, beginning:—

Let us now unite in prayer and thanksgiving for those brothers and sisters who died at Gallipoli for their King and Empire, in the high cause of freedom and honour.

WHEN THROATS TIGHTENED.

Our brothers shall not have laid down their lives in vain, were the impressive words of My Lord, when the soldiers raised their voices for the first time, that resolve seemed to echo.

Then the service was over, but neither King nor clergy moved, a moving silence held the Abbey for a minute, for two minutes, and was rent by bugles from the Henry VII chapel door calling the intrante and bustling the last soldier.

The procession reached the King, when the soldiers raised their voices for the first time, that resolve seemed to echo.

The bugles pealed, and the soldiers raised their voices for the first time, that resolve seemed to echo.

THE WOMEN WHO WAIT.

There were very few women there, even counting the nurses who sat among their charges:—

3 Kings, who had lain for hours in the cool air of May under the stars as they waited for the news of their men, were some of the few women of whom Lord Kitchener went quietly to the place behind the chancel screen for the ladies and gentlemen who were present, were of home.

But the men, the soldiers, their dear ones, no far away at General Birdwood’s headquarters, Vice-rulers of the overseas dominions, past and present, were present, were present, were present, were present, were present, were present.

And there were the women who waited, there were the women who waited, there were the women who waited.

Lord Kitchener went quietly to the place behind the chancel screen for the ladies and gentlemen who were present, who were present, who were present, who were present, who were present.

They knew, you knew, friends who knew, that the King with his hands clasped in prayer, that the King with his hands clasped in prayer, that the King with his hands clasped in prayer, that the King with his hands clasped in prayer, that the King with his hands clasped in prayer, that the King with his hands clasped in prayer.

A round of continuous cheering brought up the present again, and, seeming very small as they stood against the cold sunlight at the base of the great arch of the west door, a few figures appeared. The National Anthem sounded, and as the queen and king left the gates, the brown soldiers came the choir, then Bishop Boyd Carpenter, in his great red coat leading a tall, upright lady in black—Queen Mary of England.

After them the King in gold robes led a officer in black—King George.

The King and Queen were led to two isolated sections of the Abbey, where a number of set-out service papers as those used by the congregation were laid in their places, and it was noticed that both the King and Queen were careful to take their papers away with them.

NOT IN VAIN.

The boys’ voices sang:— "For all the pains that from their labours rest, singing to the familiar tune, with its triumphant Alleluia and filling lines.

And when the strife is fierce, the war long, let them not grow weary during the night.

And hearts are brave again and arms are strong.

Tell it out among the heathen that the Lord is king, to the end of the earth, ye shall know, and he is King, and he shall be King for ever and ever. Amen.

Then followed the "Lord’s Prayer, and two simple appeals—"good desires" and "humility.

And the storm that swept away the sun rose back to its former height almost joyfully.

"Tell it out among the heathen that the Lord is king, to the end of the earth, ye shall know, and he is King, and he shall be King for ever and ever. Amen.

"Tell it out among the heathen that the Lord is king, to the end of the earth, ye shall know, and he is King, and he shall be King for ever and ever. Amen.

IRISH REBELLION: NORTH SEA BATTLE: ZEPPELINS CHASED

GERMAN FLEET CHASED HOME AGAIN.

Return To Germany After 20 Minutes' Stay.

BATTLE OFF LOWESTOFT.

Victims—Two Men, One Woman And A Child.

NO BRITISH SHIPS LOST.

From The Admiralty.

Tuesday Afternoon.

About 4.30 this morning the German battle cruiser squadron, accompanied by light cruisers and destroyers, appeared off Lowestoft. The local naval forces engaged it, and in about twenty minutes it returned to Germany chased by our light cruisers and destroyers.

On shore two men, one woman and a child were killed.

The material damage seems to have been insignificant.

So far as is known at present two British light cruisers and a destroyer were hit, but none were sunk.

The distance from Cuxhaven, the horse of the German Fleet, to Lowestoft is nearly 300 miles. The range of the British Fleet, "somewhere in the North Sea," would have a much longer distance to cover in any attempt to cut off the German battle cruisers.

ZEPPELINS CHASED BY BRITISH AVIATORS.

German Warships Attacked By Our Aeroplanes And Seaplanes.

THREE DAYS' BRILLIANT WORK BY NAVAL AIRMEN.

From The Admiralty.

Tuesday Night.

On Sunday morning, in spite of most indescribable weather, a bombing attack was carried out by naval aeroplanes upon the enemy aerodrome at Mariakerke.

The machines were heavily fired on, but succeeded in returning safely.

As far as could be observed good results were obtained.

One of our fighting machines attacked an enemy aerodrome and drove it down. The hostile machine, when last seen, was close to the ground and out of control.

On Monday morning a further attack was carried out on the same object in cooperation with our Belgian Allies, and a large number of bombs were dropped.

Heavy fire was encountered by all machines, but there were no British casualties.

The results obtained appear to have been very good.

During the course of the same day (Monday) a British aeroplane attacked an enemy seaplane about five miles off Zezereburg.

Several sharp attacks were repulsed.

A few prisoners were captured.

MONDAY NIGHT'S RAID.

70 Bombs Dropped On Norfolk And Suffolk Coasts.

From The War Office.

Last night's air raid over the Norfolk and Suffolk coasts appears to have been carried out by four or five Zeppelins, only two of which made any serious attempt to penetrate inland.

About 70 bombs appear to have been dropped.

One man is reported seriously injured.

No further details as to casualties are yet available.

EFFECT OF 18 BOMBS.

Horse, Cat And Bird The Only "Kills" By Two Raiding Zeppelins.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Near Earls Colne, Tuesday.

Wanted all enemy aircraft were paying another visit to East Anglia about 9 o'clock last night. Red Cross motor and ambulance parties were ordered on duty, and other precautionary measures were taken.

Herrnhut our town has been neglected by Zeppelin. About 20-30 unmistakable sounds heralded approaching Zeppelins, which were seen clearly outlined at an unusually low altitude. A large airship was followed shortly after by another, and both raised bombs in such quick succession that 18 fell within a mile of one another in a few minutes.

The Zeppelins then veered westward, and the morning papers dealt with their inroads into our homes, ground besprinkled with glass, posted gardens and lawns, and happily only one casualty, a stockbroker who, hearing bombs bursting, hurried to his window and was wounded by fragment from one exploding in his garden.

The second, a graceful chariot-shaped bird was the only "kills" the disciples of frightfulness can claim.

The arm of the stockbroker, a Londoner, was severely injured. It is hoped his life may be saved, but the amputation of the limb will almost certainly have to be made.

FRENCH SUCCESSES IN THE AIR.

French Official News.

Paris, Tuesday Night.

Near Vauxou an enemy aeroplane was forced to land in his lines after a fight, and was destroyed by our guns fire.

In the region of Verdun one of our chasine aeroplanes brought down a German aeroplane, which fell on Poyers (Pepin) Hill, 50 yards from our trenches.

A third machine brought down by one of our guns fell in the Forges wood.

Finally a P年度ner, ruffed with machine-gun fire at point-blank range by one of our aircraft, fell vertically in the region of Haltonchatel.

On Tuesday night another of our delightful airmen threw 32 shells of 65mm. and shells of 200mm. on the station of Condeau—Roter.

NO DAMAGE: NO CASUALTIES.

Another East Coast correspondent says—

A disturbed night was spent at an East Coast town.

One watcher declares that he saw a Zeppelin overhead just after midnight. Shortly afterwards firing commenced, and was continued for some time.

No bomb damage was visible in the town next morning, and no casualties have been reported here in the neighbouring districts.

THE ISSUES IN IRELAND

The arrest of Sir Roger Casement will give some satisfaction both here and in our own country. While Ireland was doing such splendid service to the Allied cause it was intolerable that in Berlin this renegade should be flaunting his treason to his people and proclaiming himself a traitor. He will pay the price of the courage of the enemy with false hopes, he will poison the minds of neutrals no longer with false doubts of Irish loyalty, but with the truth of his crime.

THAT he is a traitor to Ireland there is little need to prove. The response of that country to her leaders' call to arms, and the devoted sacrifices which every one of her sons made for her, is an argument that Ireland was heart and soul for the war. We knew there was a disloyal minority, but so there is in Wales, England and Scotland. Ireland as a nation stood for the Alliance in word and deed.

CASEMENT is also, as it happens, a rogue, and Ireland is the country to whom the sufferings much from us in the past; and, though I cannot conceive how an Irishman can support Germany — the epitome of all that was lowest and base — we could sympathise with an Irishman who should have always refused to have part or lot with us.

I am quite satisfied, too, that Captain Casement, who so nurses the wrongs of his country that he cannot see how utterly her cause and the cause of the Allies are one.

But I am not only angry with a man who has sworn allegiance to England, has eaten her bread and worn her uniform, and in such mean treason. Casement was for his own countrymen, but he endeavoured to persuade Irish prisoners to betray their cause and their comrades. We all know the rest of the world rate so highly, that after we've got a few and private secretary to Archbishop of Canterbury, and at another performed the same office for Archbishop Besant. Incidentally, he married a daughter of Archibishop Tait. Then he was domestic chaplain to Queen Victoria and for a time to King Edward.

One Good Thing

From somebody who knows I learnt one comforting fact yesterday, and that is that we have no German officer prisoners. We did agree to do so at The Hague Convention, and it came to a similar arrangement with us. But directly after we started they got out of it by saying that there could be no officer prisoners than half that was their due, the other half being reserved for later settlement. Thus, in the last war our officers who have been unfortunate enough to fall into the hands of the Hun, if they get anything at all, only the余人 who

Where The Money Goes.

That ever popular pastime, Try-on-the-dog, is not yet on the decline among Government officials. True, many of the regimental officers, with whom they have to deal are not at all unprofessionally business-like. But, bless you, there is always Whitehall to fall back on. One plutocrat is reported to have said that it warmed his heart when he saw the Red Tab.

Getting into “Society”.

MY BOOKSELLER’S latest specialty is a great display of highbrow etiquette. There is a large demand for these just now. Possess some of the mismatches: “Smart women”-“Costumes” are contemplated. They must be an item to turn into what are sometimes called “higher social circles.”

All Kitchens

Scotland’s Future Premier Viscount.

Lord Rosebery, the elder of the two sons of the Earl Mar’s Vineyards, some of age for the young subaltern—he followed in his father’s foot steps by entering the Scots Guards—will one day become the political hostess of Scotland, and before that time comes will doubtless have his fill of being one of the family. He adds honour to that of his ancestors.

The Other Princess Mary.

I often see Princess Mary of Teck out riding. The youngest daughter of the Duke of York, she is a graceful little horsewoman, and is remarkably like the other Princess Mary—the King’s daughter. The Princess rides side-saddle; indeed, there is only one Royal lady at present who has adopted the new style—Princess Patricia of Connaught.

A Great Hostess.

THESAURA LUX BONNERTCH, who has vowed to qualify herself for the green armet, is the last of the really great hostesses in the political world and no woman in it can compete with her. Her success is due to her friendliness and her ability to help for Germany’s shameful assault on the liberties of small nations—with the pledge, Germany will be a large public house, which she never out of the rest of the world rate so highly, that after the war is over, and the Allies are sent to perdition, Ireland shall not be a Premier-colonial power on every village green.

There are a few pro-Germans in Ireland, and probably the disturbances which took place in Dublin yesterday were intended to collect a crowd. But nobody in or out of Ireland will over-estimate their significance. We, too, have our traitors, and the only difference between them and ours is that the traitors in Ireland have not the Irish pluck.

HOW TO STOP HEADNOISES.

GOOD ADVICE FOR THOSE WHO FEAR DEAFNESS.

People who are growing hard of hearing, and who experience a stuffy feeling of pressure against their ear drums, accompanied by buzzing, rumbling sounds in their head like water falling or steam escaping, should take prompt and effective measures to stop this trouble. Headnoises are almost invariably the forerunners of complete or partial deafness, and most deaf people suffer from them constantly. Sometimes these headnoises become so distracting and nerve-racking, with their never-ending "hum," they drive the sufferer almost frantic, and complete nervous breakdown and even violent insanity have been known to result.

Thanks to a remarkable scientific discovery made recently, it is now possible to almost instantly lessen the severity of these headnoises, and in a very short time to completely and permanently overcome them. With the disappearing of the headnoises the hearing also greatly improves, and very frequently can be restored to normal. It can easily be prepared at home for about 2.9, and is the most effective treatment known to science for this trouble.

From your chemist secure one ounce of Parmint, double strength; take this home and add to it pinto hot water and four ounces granulated sugar. Stir until dissolved. Take one dessert spoonful four times a day. Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by friction action the inflammation and swelling in the eustachian tubes, and thus to equalise the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are both remarkably quick and effective. —Advt.

WHAT MR. ASQUITH SAID AT SECRET SESSION.

Cabinet's New Recruiting Scheme Unfolded.

CONTIGENT COMPULSION.

50,000 Volunteers In The First Month; 15,000 A Week After.

Generous Relief To Save Homes Of Soldiers.

HELP UP TO £104 A YEAR.

The following report of the proceedings at the Secret Session of the House of Commons yesterday was communicated to the Press late last night.

The Prime Minister, in moving the adjournment of the House, gave particulars of the expansion of the Army from the first days of the war up to the present time, and of the total military effort of the Empire, including the contributions from the self-governing Dominions and from India.

HOW MANY MEN CAN BE SPARED.

Mr. Asquith reviewed the inquiries conducted by the Government in order to examine all considerations relating to recruiting problems and the demands made on our supply of labour in providing for the needs of the Navy, the merchant marine, the munitions industries, and other essential national services.

The bearing of finance on the question of recruiting was discussed in connection with the efforts being made to raise £10,000,000 of War Loan to enable the Government to provide adequate compensation for the men who might be incapacitated.

From these inquiries were deduced the number of men that could be spared from industry, and from India, and the number of men that could be spared from the Dominions, and the anticipated effect of calling up these numbers on the rate proposed was explained.

NUMBERS SHORT OF REQUIREMENTS.

The results of recruiting, more particularly since the mobilization of the Territorial forces, were reviewed.

It was shown that the results obtained up to date had fallen short of the requirements that are necessary to ensure our proper military efficiency.

Mr. Asquith put forward an estimate of the number of men available, but to the time of the war, and the anticipated effect of calling up these numbers on the rate proposed was explained.

THREE MINOR PROPOSALS.

To the “situation” the Government have determined upon three related minor proposals:

(a) The prolongation until the end of the war of the service of time-expired men whose periods of service can be extended beyond the present law can be extended for one year only;

(b) To empower the military authority to transfer men for special purposes or for training to any unit where they are needed;

(c) To provide a limited number of tribunals to hear disputes about military service in the presence of the officer of the certifying committee.

With a view to the ultimate addition to the forces available they will further propose to bring under the terms of the Military Service Act all youths under 18 on August 19 last as well.

WILL YOU COME OR BE FETCHED?

Further the Prime Minister stated—

1. That the Government, recognizing that the exigencies of war required the discharge of our military obligations, had been temporarily delayed until the present situation made it expedient to consider the question of releasing the men who had been required for the purposes of the War Office, and that a number of the men had been released.

2. That if at any time in the next four weeks ending May 27, 16,000 men have not been released by a direct application, the service of these men will at the earliest be required.

3. That if any, men have been released by the Government who have not been released by direct application, the service of these men will be required to be resumed, and the question of their release will be reconsidered.

4. That the arrangements in paragraphs 2 and 3 will be made by the War Office, and that a list of men released by the Government and the date of their release will be obtained. In the meantime the position will be under constant review by the Government.

It was pointed out that under this scheme all persons who had been released from the service of the Army would be called upon to emphasise whether or not the release of attested men would disappear.

The Prime Minister also referred to the question of the members of the House of Commons.

2.1 At 11 o'clock before the opening of the House it was arranged that to-morrow’s sitting should be held under similar conditions to-day.

Prisoners from the Desert.

So far as is known, no prisoners from the desert have been taken. The British Expeditionary Force, which is now in the desert, is making good progress.

The German soldiers who were reported to have been taken are now no longer believed to be prisoners of war.

MONEY MATTERS.

Yesterday was an idle day in the Stock Exchange. Money was fairly good for sale and some speculators made a good profit. The London stock market was not active, and the prices of stocks and shares were fairly steady.

American Cotton:

American cotton prices fell slightly on the New York market yesterday, and the New York market had a quiet day.

PAIN AND THIN BLOOD.

Many people think that they have blood troubles because they have bursitis, but their blood is caused by over-stressed and under-nourished organs. Many rheumatic people suffer from pains that cannot be avoided by taking the blood. Rheumatism is associated with thin blood, and the rheumatism cannot be cured by any other means except one, and that is freedom from any other form of rheumatism.

After the Accident.

There was blood in the car. Betty's black dress was soaked in it. When she could see nothing at all she thought that her face was a mountain of flesh that threatened to roll over her sunken eyes.

She felt bleeding from beneath the thickerson. Betty had left from the shock a week and fastened round her face. Her bonnet, a week of chignon and chignon odours, lay upon the seat beside her.

She felt the cushions against which she clung, her hair and shoulders, and the anchor of the dusty flood, while opposite her, by peering across the scarf and the two handkerchiefs, which lined it, she saw a spread of至少ism and under a gleam of April sun.

The rain had ceased, the sky was clear of that browned swollen cloud. The baby leaves and buds of trees were necklace in silver water beads, and these water beads slipped slowly down to lodge in the cups of dancing flowers. In spite of the shock to which it had been subjected, the sturdily built car was not badly damaged. Cottowd had lifted Betty from the roadbed, had effected necessary repairs, and was now making at full speed back to Taliara.

As her familiar wandered into a confusion of laps and half-lit abenca, Betty thought that this car, which had once been of an unblemished white, was her home and, Uncle Tom the undertaker who drove her to her grave. She snarled as the toph, but every now and then she was acutely aware of the sorting through, and pierced her thickly the noise of her life so swollen and still that the every went forth in an incoherent and meaningless cacamack.

Once, in an anguish such as she had never known, Betty tried to discover the extent of her hurt, passed weak, thin people made strong and fat.

Weak, thin people—men or women—are nearly always nervous wrecks; thus, specialists have long claimed that thinness, weakness, nervousness, and asthenia are almost invariably due to nerve starvation. And all these symptoms will disappear. Eminent specialists state that the best and most effective method of overcoming nervousness and asthenia is by means of a diet containing Thanotrophos, a five-grain tablet of which should be taken with each meal. Being a genuine nerve food and not a drug, Thanotrophos contains all the elements known to the human brain, and, therefore, is a nervous tonic and not a drug.

"Thanotrophos, the nerve food, is the only nerve food, so much so that many people report gains of one hundred pounds in weight."

CAUTION.—Although the above prescription is justifiable, the human brain will not respond to nervousness, sleeplessness and general debility; therefore, remarkable flesh-producing properties of this food, should not be used by anyone who does not intend to put on flesh. THE SQUIRE MAKES INQUIRIES.

With poor, feckless-legged Betty Chevonne, Withy challenged the general interest of the Talerean gossips.

As hour after Mrs. Chevonne had been carried away from the garden-Court of inquiry, poor Withy felt that he was out of the library. Betty's big, muscular hands were locked upon the brim of her hat, her features set and colorless.

The Squire was furious, purled, too, that Withy had not been summoned. He felt that the reason, he all at once remembered how much better he had behaved when he returned from prison. Withy had come up to him in a state of great importance, and, as he returned from prison, Withy had come to him in a state of great importance, and, as he returned from prison, Withy had come to him in a state of great importance, and, as

He had been talking to Withy. (The Squire) had been talking to Withy.

His face was so puffed up, that he would have looked the better for a bitro-phosphate, the use of which costs about 12s. per yard.

Betty's Orders.

The next scene was the scene of which the last. Betty, after she was lifted from the car, was a kind of that tried her courage to the utmost. She was cut some way and wore a loose white wrapper; there was a queer tint in her mouth; she was, peering out of lids that seemed strangely swollen, Betty saw that she was in her own room in Talerean. Mr. Wyndham entered the room with her. He had a towel under his arm; he passed the towel to Withy and she laid it on her face.

"Oh, I felt her hair up, and God, did she tell the Squire of her real identity."

If you have not seen a BLOUSE.

There is a charm about a "LUVISCA" Blouse that distinguishes it from anything else. DAINTESS is perhaps its special characteristic.

Besides this you get silky smoothness, delicate sheen, and, because "LUVISCA" is made from durable silk, economy in wear as well.

"LUVISCA" combines the valuable qualities of Silk, Wool and Cotton, having the beauty of Silk, the durability of Wool, and the durability of Cotton.

"LUVISCA" cannot shrink.

It soils less readily than any other material, and therefore is easy to keep clean. And it sells on your laundry list.

HOW TO INCREASE STRENGTH AND NERVE POWER.

Get Plenty of Fresh Air, Breathe Deeply and Take a Little Sargo.

If you are tired, weak, run-down and have no ambition for the future, do not dose your stomach with worthless tonics or horrid remedies. The idea that help is given by these is wrong. You have been drawn heavily on your bank account of health, and, if you don't look after it in the future, you will be ruined in the future. If, every, you reverse the order of things and obtain proper medicines for your body. You will feel better, and in the future you will never perform your daily task or pleasures again, strong, happy and vigorous as ever.

To do this spend as much money as possible. The cause of illness, late hours, smoking, drinking, overeating, or taking a little Sargo with each meal. You will feel better, and in the future you will never perform your daily task or pleasures again, strong, happy and vigorous as ever.

Sargo will enable you to get every atom of strength you have. One small bottle will pay you for more than four times the cost of the medicine. To start with it will strengthen your heart and make you feel fitter. It will do no harm, but will make you feel better. You will be surprised at the results. You will feel better, and in the future you will never perform your daily task or pleasures again, strong, happy and vigorous as ever.
