BATTLE FOR NEWSPAPER OFFICE.

From Our Special Correspondent.

KINGSTON, SUNDAY.

The Sinn Fein rebellion, which has culminated in the seizure of the Dublin Post Office and the Free State government offices, is at a standstill. The General Strike is proceeding.

The General Strike is proceeding.

CORDONS OF TROOPS.

To prevent any bursting out on the north side, the health department, having issued an order forbidding the use of firearms in the city, has authorised the use of tear gas. The tear gas has been effective in clearing the streets of most of the rebels.

THREE DAYS WITHOUT FOOD.

Many of the rebels have insufficient food to sustain them. The food supply has been cut off for three days. The food supply is still worse. The rebels have been driven out with small arms, but there is very little food left in the city. The rebels have been driven out with small arms, and the food supply is still worse. AT THE LAW COURTS.

Four Courts, I am glad to say, has suffered only from the destruction of the buildings. The streets are filled with debris, and the interior is burning. Other buildings are damaged, but not so seriously. The fire brigade was in the city, and it is reported that relief is being given in the O'Connell Bridge, which was being freely used by the rebels.

SACKVILLE-STREET.

Sackville-street presents a desolate picture. The buildings are burned, and the interior is burning. Other buildings are damaged, but not so seriously. THE LAST STRONGBOLD.

At the last stronghold, there is still one big building held by the rebels, but their tenure is not going to be long. This is in Merrion Square, where the rebels have held out for several days. The area is divided into two parts, and the rebels have held out for several days. The area is divided into two parts, and the rebels have held out for several days. REVOLVER UNDER HER APRON.

Meanwhile the "war" goes on, but reliable intelligence from London during the past week is that there is absolutely no possibility of an attack. WOMEN OBJECT TO THICK BOOTS.

Postwomen employed at a North-West London post office have been instructed by their manager that they must wear rubber boots instead of the leather boots they have been wearing. They state that they are too thick and heavy for the work they have to do. They are not permitted to wear the boots they have been wearing. HOTELS SHORT OF FOOD.

Dublin, Sunday Evening.

The morning broke clear and fine, and found the back of the rebel resistance practically broken.

Connolly and Pearse, the leaders of the Sinn Feiners, surrendered unconditionally, and the secretary of Liberty Hall is also in safe custody.

Their supporters have been surrendering in batches.

There is still a form of guerrilla warfare going on at different points between the military and the snipers. These have yet to be overcome, and a series of Sidney-street sieges is anticipated.

Smoke is still to be seen coming from the ruins of Sackville-street. Jacob’s factory is standing, a blackened ruin, but there are still a few rebels in a part of it.

The south side of the Liffey, with the exception of a few sniping posts, is quiet.

The South Dublin Union Workhouse surrendered on Saturday, when the rioters hoisted the white flag.

The Post Office has been burned, but the charred walls are still standing. The Four Courts are again in possession of the military.

The quays are completely under military control, from the Metal Bridge westwards.

The O'Connell Bridge is intact.

Three large buildings in Sackville-street—the Imperial Hotel, the Dublin Bread Co.'s premises, and Hopkins's jewellery shop—are practically in ruins.

The private houses between these three places are in a ricketty condition.

College Green is now quite clear. There is a constant sniping in the region of Balls Bridge and Merrion-square.

Some of the poorer people are experiencing difficulty in obtaining food, while the hotels are practising economy in bread and other necessities.

From what I can gather the military operations resulted in a wedge being driven in between the parts occupied by the Sinn Feiners.

All is quiet in Cork, but there has been some trouble in Ennis-Corby, although the details of the latter are lacking here.

The railboat service to and from Holyhead and Kingstown is running regularly every night, and this morning Dublin received its first supply of newspapers since Easter Monday. These were eagerly bought up in the few shops open.

The news of the fall of Kut is being discussed.

SPEAKING FAIRIES.

These little girls are taking the parts of the speaking fairies in the Centenary production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."
Prince Albert, Prince Albert is a happy young man to-day, for the cruel rumours as to his health have reached the here-today, gone-tomorrow. This battle, and after it has passed the final ‘voting’ and will shortly he back again with the First. He is always a fighter, and you can see that he is his old self again. How pleased he is that nothing has happened in the way of a general engagement when he has been recruiting? He will be in at the death.

Young Peer Joins the Lion.

The Earl of Wilson, who succeeded his father exactly a year ago, has just joined the Lion, the famous battle-crier upon which Sir David Brown hurls his flag, as an acting sub-lieutenant. The young peer, who will be next August, has spent a few months before war broke out, and among the ships upon which he has been at home, Blackmore, his only brother of their, the Hon. G. A. Egerton, is also a midshipman, his seniority dating from the very eve of the outbreak of hostilities.

Mr. Asquith and His Pledge.

It seems to be agreed pretty generally that there are to be any resignations of note on the introduction of general compulsion. It is the surest way of getting out of difficulties, and such was measure was Mr. Asquith himself, and if, with the general approval of the nation, he can get the people to say ‘I can do this,’ and once more with what Gladstone used to call ‘some Jack Jetty letters,’ and construct on a basis more likely to have the approval of the public.

The Whole Hog.

Talking of Irish affairs, there is the story of Mr. Balfour’s regime of the pigsty and the boy who cried ‘wot! how fond he was of the beasts! And as for the pigsty’s running away—" Arthur James was the animal’s pet name.

Welsh-speaking General.

Two is General Owen Thomas, in command of the Welsh Army at Kinmel Park, and a most popular, general, too. He has this distinction, too, I am assured: ‘He is the only Welsh-speaking general in the Army.’ I suppose a language like that would be useful at a certain season—and only as a form of ‘friglifulness.’ Since the outbreak of war the general has him-self raised ten battalions for Welsh Fusiliers, and the implication most plausibly reposed in him generally throughout the Principality (bellowed journalistic phrase) has proved an important factor in General War, the war-time demands of military service. The Welsh people, I gather, are expressing the hope that no change in military commands will involve the departure of ‘his own general’ from among them.

A Club Tite.

I wondered how long it would be before it occurred, and now it has. An obviously temporary substitute for the end of each cuff, has been seen wearing a club tie as far as I know he hasn’t yet been lynched.

Waist and Economy.

A West End tailor was saying that for a considerable time he was getting for his middle-aged clients has been growing business. The last year has seen a vast increase of men over Army age now taking regular exercise in Volunteer corps or as ‘specials.’ The waist of a man used to be 44 inches; now it is only 42 inches.

No Harm Now.

I was asking one of the busies flower-sellers at Piccadilly Circus if the succession of flag days was harming his trade. ‘No, it ain’t,” she said. ‘But now we gals don’t care a cuss about one. There’s plenty o’ ladies for them!

Tercentenary in Bohemia.

They celebrated the Shakespeare Tercentenary in a way that Shakespeare himself would have approved of as the most magnificent of all other nights. It was a simple but ample dinner of all the talents, and the special stunt irresponsible Shakespeare himself would have approved. What more appropriate chairman could you want than Countess Pountz? What guest of honour more worthy of the name than F. E. Benson?

Shakespeare For The Smoking Room.

Charles Pounds himself sang "Oh, Mistress Minnow," a bit of a morose period, as he can sing same. Forer Foster came along with Roger Quill’s fine setting of ‘Blow, blow, Thou Winter Wind,’ and the Greshams sang tam-uncompanied four-part songs excellently. Then we had "Under the Greenwood Tree," a most perfect and a recitation of recitative humor from ‘Two Gentlemen of Verona’ by a famous victor, and the question of Shakespeare’s work was raised. What other possible worlds were Herman Finley, Harold Samuel, the pianist, and Captain Macbeth, Miss Beryl Harris and G. L. Stampa draw a lighted cigarette, and poets, artists, novellists, so that they should know, with our magnificas! in May. Which reminds me that we ended up by singing Gilbert and Sullivan in choral.

From Shakespeare To Sullivan.

Edward German, composer of the charm and refinement, was an interested listener. This is his piece of work. Some. Some of his "truly "Helvetica" happy "Henry VIII," music will be performed at the English Opera of the week, and here is the piece. Musical hood was represented, and other prominent for that even. Shakespeare’s possible worlds were Herman Finley, Harold Samuel, the pianist, and Captain Macbeth, Miss Beryl Harris and G. L. Stampa draw a lighted cigarette, and poets, artists, novellists, so that they should know, with our magnificas! in May. Which reminds me that we ended up by singing Gilbert and Sullivan in choral.

Captain Regan Back From The Front.

Captain Regan, who has just returned from his trip to France with his Guards Band, was in London, and told me he felt twenty years younger as the result of the glimpse of the End. You see, he happens to be an old campaigner (he was active on the Somme and years and years ago as well as a musician. He also told me that at the big concert in Paris last week, Sir Alexander Macdonald’s piece was played. The critic said that the men of the famous French Republican Guards Band and of the Italian Carabiniers, who were playing side by side with his own Cornishmen, were particularly enthusiastic about it.

Forbes-Robertson's Return.

A very nice return. Forbes-Robertson couldn’t have turned up in time for to-day’s beast at Drury Lane, since he is incomparably the best of England actors. He will miss it, too, only a few days. He sailed on the St. Louis after one of his final farewell American tours on Saturday last.

Vive L’Entente.

I saw three Frenchmen, with those queer little red caps on their caps, flitting gaily with a trio of women. It was a magnificent moment, but, of course, we were not left alone, but they were thoroughly in sympathy.

At the Sergeants’ Hall.

The dinner was given up a programme in which the lancers, and the barn dance, and the veleta, and the schotische, and the etcetera, were represented, and so it went on, sitting out a few, went up to the M.C. and said, ‘Oh, we can’t be bothered. Don’t know a thing about all these old-fashioned dances of yours.’ The sergeant looked at him, and said, ‘By Jove, sir, I think you’re missing a thing more truly.

Testing Him.

The dinner was given out when the shell officer came round, and the newest sort of air had got something very awful up his nose when he came round. ‘Of course,’ said the other, ‘where are your army groups?’ asked the authority. ‘That’s all,’ said the one temporary, serenely, ‘is for you to find out yourself. We’ve no answer to the question.’

100%, longer wear and greater comfort all the time.

That is what you secure by insisting on Paton Laces instead of being content with any laces that are offered you.

Three hundred of the highest grade mercerised threads are plaited together to make a Paton Lace.

That is why it gives such lasting wear, yet at the same time is sufficiently elastic to give the greatest comfort. The ordinary lace is anything but elastic and necessitates the boot being slightly laced to avoid discomfort, thus giving an unedifying appearance to the boots. Paton Laces are fast dyed and the tags cannot come off.

Your dealer can supply them if you will ask for them by name—PATON’S.

DAILY SKETCH.

What Women Are Doing.

TO-DAY the King and Queen will be present at Drury Lane to witness the performance of one of Shakespeare's greatest historical plays, "Julius Cesar."

The Princess Mary, Princess Christian, Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll, the Princess Royal and Princess Maud of Fife will also be present.

Already over £2,000 worth of tickets have been sold, and there are only a few few and three guineas left.

Tudor Costumes.

Lady Alexander has charge of the programmer-selling, with 50 lady helpers. They will wear charming Elizabethan costumes in two shades of grey, with large flat muslin collars and caps, tied with orange ribbons.

Lady Katharine Pilkington, Lady Price, Lady Diana Manvers, Princess Katharine of Saxe-Coburg, Lady Newnes, Miss Elizabeth, Miss Lady Elsie and Lady Wyndham will be selling.

I hear their dresses, which are designed by Mr. Percy Maquin, will be quite one of the attractions of the afternoon.

Our Beautiful Thames.

I was one of those fortunate beings who were able to be out of town during the early part of the week-end.

I spent it on the River Thames, which never to my mind has looked more beautiful than it did on Saturday.

The vivid green of the leaves, with the fruit trees in full bloom, the tender grass on the river banks, bespoke with cowslips and daisies, the bright blue overhead and its reflection beneath—was perfectly lovely.

Thousands of people were here and there between Hampton Court and Richmond. Motor launches, steamboats, punts, and small sailing boats abounded.

Picnics were in progress on the riverside, as if it were the height of summer. White costumes and flannels were everywhere to be seen, but khaki-clad soldiers won the affections of the river banks. There was hardly a boat that did not hold one or more.

There were also a great number of our wounded heroes enjoying the sunshine and the beauties of the Thames.

An Impostion.

One of the most amusing of this was in the gardens at Hampton Court, where the rose arches were charmingly decorated with boughs of green and blossoming flowers. It was a delightful sight to see the faces of the women who were enjoying the sunshine and the beauty of the place.

Sunday's Matinee.

Miss Madge Titheradge's concert on Sunday afternoon at the Palladium was a great success. She received herself, in a delightful gown of pink silk and white, very beautifully cut, and afterwards made a little speech of gratitude to the many friends before and behind the curtain.

Miss Marie Lahr, in Wedgwood blue taffeta and a small flowered hat, also received, and was encored. Nelson Rees came to help, as did Leslie Henson.

Miss Hilda Frew and Miss Amy Evans received a great ovation, and helped to make the matinée for the Arts Fund the success it was.

Bad Manners.

There is just one thing I would like to say. It is surprising how many people forget to be commonly civil to amateur programme-sellers.

Ladies who go and get their tickets, in several instances, miss a midday meal to come and do their bit on September 29th at charity matinées are politely, for 6d. they don't even trouble to say, "No, thank you."

The Bride Of The Week.

The bride of the week is Lady Meriel Bathurst, the only daughter of Earl and Countess Bathurst, who is marrying Lieutenant-Commander Lord Alastair Graham on Thursday at St. Paul's, Knightsbridge.

Many of my readers will remember how Lady Bathurst and Lady Meriel helped in our Needlework Competition Sale last November, selling at a stall which had as its central object an exquisite altar-cloth worked by Lady Bathurst herself.

Since the war began the Bathurst seat in Gloucestershire has been made into a hospital, and here Lady Meriel has worked enthusiastically.

She is a pretty girl, with soft, wild rose-colouring, and Lord Alastair will make a handsome bridegroom, for all the Graham's are good-looking.

Lord Alastair's elder brother, the Marquis of Graham, is heir to the Montrose earldom, married Lady Mary Hamilton, who is one of the Duchess women in the kingdom.

Bridge For Charity.

The date for the bridge tournament in aid of the Milk Hotels that I told you about some time ago has now been fixed for the 25th.

Mr. Vandyci has most generously let his studios in Buckingham Palace-road for the tournament, which will be held in the afternoon and evening of that date.

This should be a very interesting event and for a splendid cause to be made. Many other attractions apart from bridge. I hear whippers of an orchestra, refreshments, and other surprises, so that there will be plenty to do for those who are sitting out and do not play bridge.

A Lovely Banner.

The Marchioness of Bute will present a new banner to the Butes Boy Scouts at the coming garden party she is giving in aid of the Red Cross Fund at Mount-street, Rottenhit.

The banner bears the Butes scout wreath with Scout stars. The judging and motto are on a blue background.

Take Tickets, Please.

Miss Lilian Brathwaite, whose whole heart and soul is in the work of the Star and Garter Building Fund, is organising a concert for this charity, and it takes place next Monday at 70, Kensington-gardens. Miss Ernestine Roberts has lent her house.

There is not an excellent programme. Miss Brathwaite herself will help, as will also Miss Gladys Cooper—Lady Forbes Robertson—Miss Alice Lohr, and Miss Marie Novello.

Henry Aylen, Haydon Coffee, Owen Nares, and Arthur Womter are a few of the artistes who have promised to appear.

In Ireland.

There have been anxious moments for those having relatives in the afflicted districts in Ireland, and many landowners who went to spend Easter on their estates have been unable to get home to England. Lord Alastair and Lady Dunmore left their children at Chelwood Beacon, their place near Tunbridge, and ran over to Knockderry, Clonmel, for Easter, intending to return last week. They have not been heard of for several days, after being turned back en route from Knockderry to Dublin, and fears are entertained as to their safety. All sorts of sinister rumours are rife.

Lady Dunmore is one of the daughters of Mr. Michael P. Grace, of New York, who has a town and country house here; here, the historic Battle Abbey being in his occupation, and another daughter is married to Lord Falmouth's brother, Mr. Hubert Beaumont.

Gertie In Kilts.

There are to be great surprises in the revised version of "Bric-a-Brac," which is due at the Palace some time next month.

Miss Teddy Gerard will have new frocks and another catchy song, which she certainly deserves. Both the present rehearsal she sings with much more personality.

Miss Gertie Millar will sing one of her songs in Kilts—a Scotch costume should suit her admirably. She will also have some more dancing to do. I'm glad to hear it. Miss Millar dances delightfully.

BERLIN SCHOOL HOLIDAYS FOR FALL OF KUT

Caustic Dutch Comment On Premature Enemy Rejoicing

FORTHCOMING BIG BATTLE

Berlin and Constantinople are rejoicing at the fall of Kut and the surrender of General Townshend. The British in other parts of Asia Minor have already reduced the prospect of any important German and Turkish campaign in the East. The Russians have regained an attempted Turkish advance near Diarbekr, north of the Bagdad route from Europe.

The Germans report that the Turks have killed and taken a number of Russian prisoners. The fall of Kut and the surrender of General Townshend has caused Osnabruck to issue a statement which is reported in Rome to have passed through Belgrade.

The Turks are concentrating their forces on the British and the following are my deductions. The fall will have a deep effect on England. The French newspapers say that the fall makes up for the defeats at Jerusalem and Constantinople. The news of General Townshend's surrender has been a deep regret to Marshal von der Goltz who could not live to witness this victory. The London Daily News says the fall is of great military and political significance. The Russian People's Gazette says that the fall will have a deep effect on England.

WHY THE ENEMY REJOICES

The Amsterdam Sun remarks that the fall of Kut and the surrender of General Townshend is an important strategic victory for the British and Russian armies. Any favourable deduction is welcome, the attacks are formidable and the fall remained an American problem not yet being solved. The London Daily News says that the defeat will be felt not so much in respect to the fall of Kut as to the strategic value of the place in regard to the loss of British prestige.

RUSSIA'S MOVING SHIPS

Big Battle With Turks' Egyptian And Bagdad Armies

The newspapers report for a big battle to bar the Russian advance from Armenia towards Constantinople. The Daily Express, in the Caucasus, to the Paris Journal, states that after the fall of Trebizond the Russians are moving their operations in that direction. The Turks are concentrating important forces round Erzurum (200 miles south of Trebizond and 120 miles west of Erzincan), a city which divides the front for purposes of confidence and where the line is presented with the route to Angora and Constantinople. The London Daily News says that the British are about to make an attack on Egypt and Morocco, and a big battle is expected to take place near Angora.

The Russians have completed fortifications and deployments of strategic importance which were in possession on this side of the region for a long time. Russian troops are now advancing towards Trebizond and other places.

RUSSIA'S MILLION PRISONERS

Since the beginning of the war nearly a million Austrian and German prisoners have passed through the hands of the Tsar's army. The main bodies of these prisoners have been transported to central Russia from Petrograd.

VISSCENT FINED UNDER RESERVE FORCES ACT

Plea That He Did Not Think He Was Liable To Serve.

TO TWO ESCORTS SENT

Viscount Cantebury, whose name appears in the Court documents as Henry Sutton, aged 23, in the Register of the Royal Artillery, Putneyham, Surrey, was charged at Marlborough-street yesterday for absence without leave of two escort services.

Viscount Cantebury, a tall, pale-faced man, rather bald, were a black frock coat with silk facings, and carried a bowler hat.

Mr. Bury, his solicitor, said he was afraid that there had been a misunderstanding. He had been informed that the War Office had consented to the adjournment, and had come down to the court, having had an interview with the local recruiting authority. For that reason he had not communicated with the Magistrate.

PRAGMATIC'S CAUSATIVE COMMENT.

Coming to the facts, he said that Viscount Cantebury had been doing work for the Government office, and was under the impression that he would not be liable to serve. He had no desire to evade service, and was willing to place himself unrestrained to the hands of the authorities.

The magistrate said that there were difficulties in the way of the Police, and had to refer the matter to the Police. There were no negotiations pending in Government.

A GENUINE MISUNDERSTANDING.

Capt. Boulding, recruiting officer for the Wrexham district, informed the Police that Viscount Cantebury had been doing work for the Government office, and had not been under the impression that he would not be liable to serve. He had no desire to evade service, and was willing to place himself unrestrained to the hands of the authorities.

Mr. Bury replied that he had come from the Wrexham district, and had the Police to go to the War Office, to whom he would explain the case, and would ask for the release of his client.

To get rid of ACIDITY

VISCONTI SHAMPOO

A REMARKABLE STIMULANT TO HAIR GROWTH.

Hair falls out because the roots shrivel and loosen; thicker locks from lack of nourishment are destroyed by the dandruff germ. The dandruff germ also attacks the pores of the scalp, causing them to close, and dry, and the dandruff itself, distends the delicate blood vessels beneath, thus shutting off the blood supply to the hair roots and starving them. The same time restore the blood circulation and food supply to the roots, a growth of thick hair will result. A shampoo prepared by mixing 3 oz. bay rum with 1 oz. Lavona de Composee and 4 dram menthol, and an ounce of a mixture of 2 oz. castor oil and 1 oz. lavender oil, applied to the scalp three times a week, will vigorously massaged into the hair roots and pores and exercise a beneficial movement of the blood.

The best way to manage the scalp is to first apply an ounce of a mixture of 2 oz. castor oil and 1 oz. lavender oil, and then massage well the scalp and the hair. The tonic quickly destroys the dandruff germs and the food properties of the tonic are absorbed through the porous, and in a few days a wonderful improvement is noticed. Dull, brittle hair becomes bright, long and glossy, the hair stops falling out, and in a few weeks a new growth of fine silky hair will be noticeable on bald spots. Owing to the astonishing results following massaging with this lotion most chemists and barbers keep it prepared ready for use under the name of Lavona Hair Tonic, with the usual guarantee, and every bottle will have with every bottle of satisfaction or money back.
