WOUNDED HEROES COME HOME FROM GERMANY.

They were given a hearty welcome home.

Glad to get back.

Tommy's home-coming smile.

Some of the returned.

After many weary months in Germany as prisoners of war 400 British soldiers arrived home yesterday. Most of them were men who have been broken in the war, the remainder were men of the R.A.M.C. They were given a great reception both at Tilbury and at St. Pancras. The men complain bitterly of their harsh treatment while in the hands of the Germans.
To Skilled Workmen in Engineering & Kindred Trades

When you see a casualty list; when you hear a pal has been killed or wounded, don't you wish you could help? Every skilled man can save the life of a fellow-countryman by making shot and shell, guns, rifles, ships, as only Britishers can.

When you see a soldier of the King—the man in khaki—your pals, your fellow-countrymen, remember they risk their lives, they give up their jobs, they heroically endure in the trenches, they suffer for country, for King, for you.

Every shell made shortens the war; every hour you work shortens the war.

Every man capable should become a war worker, a life saver.

Millwrights, Toolfitters, Turners, Tool Makers, Fitters, Boilermakers, Shipwrights and other Skilled Workers in Engineering and Shipbuilding, all are wanted.

Our Factories and Workshops were organized for peace. You helped to fill the world with the products of Britain. German Factories were organized for war. They can make shells—all munitions of war in abundance.

The workmen of Germany under the "iron heel" have been for long the enemy of the British. They have been making munitions of war secretly, preparing to conquer you—to gain our trade—to take your work away.

If you are not engaged on War Work, Enrol to-day at the Munitions Work Bureau. If you don't know where it is they will tell you at any Labour Exchange. No one engaged on War contracts need offer.

All Munition Work Bureaux are open every evening (except Saturday and Sunday) from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday 4 p.m. to 6 p.m., Sunday 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The wages given to War Munition Volunteers will be the same they are receiving or higher. Their fares will be paid. Travelling time and lodging money will be allowed when necessary. Skilled workers, your duty to your country is clear, the need for you is urgent.

Become War Munition Volunteers.

The King And The Royal Show.

The King much regretted his enforced absence from the Agricultural Show, which opened at Wollongong, Bathurst, yesterday. But not only does the King believe that it is his duty to attend the show year by year, he also feels that his presence is very beneficial in different ways, and particularly so to various reasons of public sympathy. The King on his Majesty's visit was accompanied by several distinguished persons, among whom are Lord Llandilo, who possesses the Order of the Crown of Prussia. First Class, could read the way.

For Belgium.

It will be a very Belgian evening at the ballet for the East Londoners' Unions Hall, near the Portico, this evening. The King has promised to be present, and a distinguishing feature of the performance is the presence of the Duke of Wellington, with whom M. Emile Vandervelde, the present governor of Belgium, will be in the chariot. The most important point of the performance is the presence of Lord Lloyd, General Lloyd, the great master-mind of the battle of Mons, and Lege de l'Orbe, the famous lessepsian, whose picture this is, will also take part.

Who is it ?

"Herbert George Wells, Esq.," who figures last in the list of patrons for the above benefit, I suppose must be—"he is," but I don't know whether he is the familiar substitute for the famous "H. G."

A Dusty Day.

To-day is simply crowded with engagements. Princess Louise Duchess of Argyll makes a rather rare appearance at Adelina Duruch of Bedford's cabaret for the East Londoners' Unions Hall on South Audley Street. There are about a thousand members of the audience, and all are making preparations for being entertained by the Misses Millie and Gorgeous, the famous nudes, whose picture this is, will also take part.

Still More.

Now take a long breath and begin again. The Kildare, the High Commissioners, Lord Glodstone, Lord Selborne, and others are speaking at a meeting in the United States. There is a magnificent display of the Union Jack at the Crystal Palace, where there are thousands of people present. THE V.C. FOR TEN MORE HEROES.

Indian Soldier Who Carried Eight Wounded Officers To Safety

THE sixteenth of October was the day on which the war's 16th anniversary was to be observed in the Indian Army. On that date, a great Indian soldier, Lance-Corporal Upton, was posthumously awarded the Victoria Cross for his brave and selfless act of carrying eight wounded officers to safety.

Lance-Corporal Upton's heroic deed occurred during the Battle of Cambrai, on November 19, 1917. The battle was part of the British offensive that aimed to break through the German lines and capture the important town of Cambrai. The battle was one of the bloodiest of the war, with both sides suffering heavy casualties.

At the height of the battle, Upton, a member of the Middlesex Regiment, found himself in the thick of the fighting. He was wounded several times but continued to fight, even when his limbs were no longer usable.

The battle was fierce and Upton was soon surrounded by Germans. Despite the danger, he remained calm and continued to inspire his comrades. With his legs shattered, he crawled on his hands and knees, using his strong arms to pull himself forward.

At one point, he was faced with the task of carrying eight wounded officers from the front line to safety. Upton, using his remaining strength, picked up the first officer and carried him to safety. He then returned to retrieve the second and continued until all eight were safely transported to a more secure location.

Upton's act of courage and devotion to duty played a crucial role in the outcome of the Battle of Cambrai. His heroism was not only an inspiration to his fellow soldiers but also to the British and Indian public, who were eagerly awaiting news of their heroes.

The Victoria Cross, the highest military honor, was awarded posthumously to Lance-Corporal Upton on November 20, 1917. His bravery and selflessness have become legendary, and his story continues to inspire soldiers and civilians alike.

"Warwicks" Medals For His Fellow Villagers At The War.

TO honour the memory of Lieut. Warfield, of the Royal Warwickshire Regiment, who was killed in action on May 10, 1915, his mother, who is a widow, received a Memorial Medal from the Warwickshire Regimental Association on behalf of her son.

The medal was presented to the mother of the late Lieut. Warfield by Lieut.-Col. J. H. O. H. H. Crofts, the Commanding Officer of the regiment.

Mr. Warfield, who was killed in action, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warfield, of 10, Warwick Road, Leamington Spa.

Mr. Warfield joined the Territorial Force in 1914 and was called up for active service in April, 1915.

I have Done No Murder.

Smith's Dramatic Challenge From Old Bailey Dock.

Prisoner In Tears As Long Case Draws To Its Close.

Phyllis Le Quellec.

For six years Phyllis Le Quellec, the central figure in the tragedy of the three brides, has been on trial for her life at the Old Bailey.

On May 9, 1947, the court returned a verdict of not guilty on the charge of murder, and the case was adjourned until May 15, when the jury retired to consider the verdict on the charge of attempted murder.

After Miss Pegler, the Bristol woman who was charged with the murder of her two sisters, and told the jury that she was the victim of conjugal and personal experiences, police witnesses took up the story. Then the climax came.

"I can't sentence my conscience to death. My conscience is clear!

There were exclamations of joy that the case was at last terminated as it had been for the past week.

And the Crown quickly jumped up into the dock. I noticed certain hardly perceptible but unmistakable changes in the body language of Miss Le Quellec. He fingered the buttons of his jacket, and then the sleeves, though he put on air of bravado, his heavy eyebrows twitched and his hands, as if in an effort to stifle the inevitable tears."

Drowning Accident.

After Mr. Justice Sarrafforn had taken his seat, attention was turned to the question—how can a woman drown in a bath?

By reducing all the resources, and the quantity would be left for export, and capital would be invested in other countries. Every saving would tend to reduce the possibilities, and the most conspicuous bravery nearhistory.

To AVOID THE TRENCH TRAP.

By keeping close watch on the enemy, and checking their lines, the most conspicuous bravery near Grenouille was: the Indian soldier, Upton, who carried eight wounded officers to safety. In the same battle, the Indian soldier, Upton, was posthumously awarded the Victoria Cross for his brave and selfless act of carrying eight wounded officers to safety.

WHAT CAN YOU DO FOR THE WAR? QUESTIONS FOR ALL.

REGISTRATION FOR ALL MEN AND WOMEN.

Everyone between 15 and 65 to be enrolled compulsorily.

VOLUNTEER WORK ARMY.

Age, Employment, and What Work You Can Do.

Compulsory registration of all persons, male and female, between 15 and 65.

Local authorities to take the census.

If able-bodied men can be available for use by the Government. Particulars to be asked—

Name, Age, Residence.

NO COMPAULSIOIV Yet.

This is the general outline of the Bill introduced by Mr. Walter Long, President of the Local Government Board, in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon.

The Bill was read a first time. Nothing is said about military service. It is understood when the Bill is in Committee it will be possible that certain Voluntary services, if compulsory later becomes necessary for the Army, will be introduced without fear or favour; and nobody will be placed in a difficult position by being asked to say whether he is "willing" to serve without compensation.

WILL BE LAW NEXT WEEK.

Arrangements have been made for the local authorities, acting under the Registrar-General, to commence the registration as soon as the Bill becomes law.

The Bill will probably receive the Royal assent next week.

SUPPORT THE MEN AT THE FRONT

Mr. Long said the object of the Bill was not to coerce labour, but to secure a complete and satisfactory organisation.

Our Empire was now an army camp, and the men were covered by our salutary law.

In the face of a force by far the superior in force—by far the superior in numbers—if compulsion later becomes necessary for the Army, it will be introduced without fear or favour; and nobody will be placed in a difficult position by being asked to say whether he is "willing" to serve without compensation. THE Right Hon. R. McKenna, Chancellor of the Exchequer:

"Nothing but a great appeal to our financial resources, stimulated by the most earnest sense of patriotism, will enable us to obtain the money. I would urge upon those who have the means of subscribing, and those who can obtain the means of subscribing by curtailing a part of their customary expenditure, that every effort they make now is an effort which is not only necessary to enable us to carry on the war, but will bear very great fruit in enabling us to maintain our financial pre-eminence after the war is over."

REVIEWS FOR MY RONALD AND ROI D'ECOSSE.

Figaro Justifies Favouritism In July Stakes.

DUKE OF CAMBRIDGE HANDICAP.

The First July Meeting at Newmarket was a blaze of gold in fine trim, and with plenty of runners on the spot there was plenty of betting as well, though not quite as much as at the "Fifth".

My Ronald was regarded as the best of the Duke of Cambridge Handicaps, and though the colt has a very big nose, he was at the start 5:1 on his only previous run at Newmarket.

It was an open betting race, but though quite a few owners were getting money over 100 to 1, a 100 to 1 man who was seen to be the only ones to carry good money.

For six furlongs there was promise of a thrilling struggle, but My Ronald was always in front, and he ran away with the race.

LIVERPOOL.

Sir John G. Vicary-Conyngham, M.P., chairman of the Committee on the Liverpool Armes' Regulation Bill, said that the question was one of the most important in the British Parliamentary calendar, and that the proposed legislation would have a direct effect on the Empire.

The Committee, however, did not think it would be advisable to proceed with the Bill until further consultation had taken place with the Government.

The meeting was attended by a large number of supporters of the Bill, who expressed their hopes that the Government would give it a fair hearing.

The chairman promised to keep the House informed of the progress of the Bill, and said that he hoped it would be possible to have it on the Order Paper by the end of the Session.

July Hats and Gowns.

SOME ADVANCE MODELS TO BE SHOWN AT A CHARITY FETE.

"It looks as though you tied a silk bathing 'hanky' round your head, gipsy fashion, and then jumped into the river, much like the derelict off bm of a bowler hat," was a comment on a model of a bathing cap at the MacMillan's fete at the Kassam, Hampton Court, on an Saturday, in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund. Another feature, however, was the affair of the dry-clove with no trimming but an edging of very tiny pink rose-buds. A striking head-dress which had neither crown and is designed to be worn with an evening gown, also is to be noted. It consists of a wide rim and a headdress of black lace. Across the wearer's hair passes a wide band of black velvet, which ties underneath the chin at the back and falls in long streamers.

WORTH'S WAY WITH STRIPES.

Some exquisite gowns are being supplied for the parades by Worth. One is an afternoon gown of black-striped white silk, the stripes rather far apart. The silk is stiff enough to give a charmin-girl something to fill in the gown in spite of the unmaform of its cut. Above the Sumptured cover a very wide and loose tie of black velvet. Another of this kind is simplicity itself, yet bears the stamp of distinction. It has a knife-plated skirt of white lawn with a plaited edging worn and shown, and, over all, arranged almost with the simplicity of feminine put on backwards, comes a bodice and over-skirt of plaited blue and white striped veiling.

Two afternoon dresses from Reber's are of a different type and designed more for indoor wear on important occasions. One of them is especially suitable to be shown at Saturday's finish, for it is inspired by the Belgian peasant dress, but what an ethereal peasant the wearer of this gown will seem! Black with the material used. Three bands of black velvet encircle the wide skirt, and an apron of delicate white lace falls from the front. The little bodice, short-sleeved and adds the shoulder a little, the peep-sleeving being edged with uprising gold embroidery.

A NIGGER-BROWN SCHEME.

A second Reber's frock was of nigger-brown taffeta with an over-dress of gold-coloured tulle of the same shade. The net over-skirt had "spade down" trimmings, culled by the holding of its fringes, and had a narrow lace edging round the hem, which made it stand out from the underskirt. A flat brown velvet collar turned down the back, and from this hung a deep front of brown tulle.

Black velvet was the material of a third gown, charmingly arranged in its up-stairs plaited collar of Nattier blue and black-striped silk, which partially covered the wearer's face when seen from the side. The silk was also used in the bodice, which was rather pouched in front, but hung straight and centre-aligned. This velvet gown was appropriately less full in the skirt than those of the lighter material.

MAGNESIA FOR DYSPEPSIA.

SPECIALIST RECOMMENDS IT INSTEAD OF DRUGS.

"Only those in constant touch with sufferers from indigestion and dyspepsia can fully realize the harm done by the improper use of drugs and ailments, especially to young girls, as well as to the specialist recently. Personally I rarely advocate the use of medicines in any form of digestion trouble, for in practically every instance I have found that the usual treatment causes the acidity of the stomach and consequently fermentation of the bowels. The use of the widely used drugs I invariably recommend the use of a simple cereal diet, and a little food, and the wonderful results I have obtained have been remarkable. It is a fact that there is no finer treatment for digestion disturbance than a well-balanced diet, understood that I do not employ or advise the use of drugs or medicines, even in the slightest form prescribed by physicians—should ever be used. I have found it to be a very difficult thing to do. In fact, I find that most patients are so used to the unpleasant rotten taste of the medicine and the powder, etc., which would often do more harm than good. I have a good deal of experience in the treatment of dyspepsia and I have been able to show that a simple diet is far better than any medicine.

BETTER HARMONY. MAGNESIA can be obtained at all drugstores and druggists' chemists' and apothecaries' stores. It is a very mild and pleasant medicine, and I have found it to be a very good remedy for indigestion, especially in cases of constipation.
WHEN JOHN BULL REALLY GETS TO WORK.

DON'T OVERCOME THE DANGER OF POISONED WATER.

Wrigley's Spearmint overcomes the danger of poisoned water.

Now that the Hun's have taken to poisoning the water in Flanders a box of Wrigley's Spearmint is doubly welcomed by our brave boys in khaki. It relieves thirst, and saves Tommy from being forced to drink water which may be poisoned.

You can get a mammoth box of 40 bars for 1/6 sufficient to keep your soldiers well supplied for several weeks.

Every soldier appreciates Wrigley's Spearmint. Chewing the delicious mint gives the somber soldier something to think about, and all the more reason for buying Wrigley's and keeping up the moral of our troops.

FIRST WITH THE NEWS ON SUNDAY.

Best Pictorial Sidelights On War and Peace.

THE PAPER FOR THE HOME.

The Sunday Herald is still on the up-bound, showing conclusively that there is a national demand for a well-edited paper which gives all the news and all the news pictures of the week-end.

There is no stagnation in either its news or its picture pages, and its special articles, written by men and women of the highest standing, in the political and social world, invariably deal with the subjects that are on everybody's lips at the moment.

Its resources are world-wide, but it does not neglect the interesting events that are happening all about us at home.

Instead it has its own edition of the Sunday Herald on Sunday, with two pages of exclusive Irish photographs. In other sections Sunday Herald readers get other parts of the British Isles, and special interest to themselves, and on Sunday Herald London had page of photos taken in the heart of the Empire only a few hours before.

SERGEANT'S SPEECH TO HIS MEN

Reported On The Spot By A Soldier Journalist.

From Our Own Correspondent.

A moving speech, delivered by a sergeant to his men, has been sent to one of the papers by a soldier journalist.

The men were proceeding to the trenches, and in passing through a cemetery, where a number of soldiers who had died for the country were buried, the sergeant stopped them, gave the order to present arms, and addressed them thus:

My dear comrades—I have brought you here so that you can see the example of duty. Those who sleep under this earth are content to have accomplished their task. Soldiers, bow before these sacred graves and promise your comrades to emulate their bravery. Tell them that you are here to avenge them, to continue the task which they undertook, and to pursue it to the end of victory. Honours to them! Advancer!

A year ago the sergeant, whose speech is described as splendid in its simplicity, was a humble workman in a Potts suburb.

HOW TO GET RID OF DANDRUFF.

This Home Made Mixture Removes Dandruff and Stops the Hair from Falling out.

The following dandruff recipe, which can be mixed at home or put up by any chemist, will quickly remove dandruff and stop the hair from falling out.

Bad weather and the fact that the railway companies did not run special trains at reduced rates greatly affected the attendance at the opening of the Royal Show at Nottingham yesterday. The King was an exhibitor in many classes, and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales for the first time appeared as a competitor.—(Daily Sketch Photos.)
MORE GLORIOUS DEEDS OF V.C. HEROES.

Private John Lynn, V.C., as a band boy.

Four men who volunteered their help. Sergeant-Major F. Barter, 1st Royal Welsh Fusiliers, attacked the German position at Festubert with bombs. He captured three officers and 192 men and 300 yards of the enemy's trenches. Private Lynn, a Forest Hill hero, who did not live to wear the V.C. he nobly earned, drove back the Germans with his machine-gun while being suffocated with poison-gas.

STORY OF OPENING CHAPTERS.

MISS MILLION’S MAID.

DOLL MILLION, the maid-of-work at a Southern hotel in Labrador, had flatly refused to be interviewed by any of the London correspondents who called at her home. She would not make a scene, she said, for she was not a show-people sort of girl, and she had no wish to make a public spectacle of herself. She would not even allow her name to be mentioned, she said, except in the most carefully guarded whispers.

The maid-of-work at the Southern hotel in Labrador, Miss Million, was a remarkable figure. She had come from the Middle East, where she had been a maid-of-work in some of the most luxurious hotels in the world. She had a unique ability to make people feel comfortable and at ease, and she was able to do this with a grace and a charm that were a mystery to everyone who knew her.

Her looks were not remarkable, but her personality was. She had a sweet, gentle manner, and a smile that could light up a room. She had a way of putting people at ease, and she was able to do this with a grace and a charm that were a mystery to everyone who knew her.

She had come to the Southern hotel in Labrador with a great deal of money, and she had come to stay. She was staying there for the rest of her life, she said, and she was not going to leave it for anything.
