well powder'd with Buchu, and twifted like a Rope, is put, Collar-wife, about his Neck: And there he is to wear it Day and Night, till it rots off, or till the Infect, at another Vifit, alights upon another Inhabitant of the Kraal; when he is at Liberty to remove it. If this happens not, he muft wear it through all the Stages of Putrefaction, and while a Bit remains. He feafts alone on the Entrails, which are boil'd; while the Men devour the Meat, prepar'd the fame Way; and the Women are regal'd with the Broth. Of the Fat he is oblig'd to be very careful; and to anoint his Body and Apparel with That only, while any of it remains, without rejecting the leaft Bit of it.

The Cafe, in every Refpect, is the fame, if the Infect alights upon a Woman. She commences a Saint, with the fame Solemnities; only here the Women feaft upon the Meat, while the Men are regal'd with the Broth.

This Infect I have often feen, and beheld the Hottentots more than once at these Solemnities.

The Hottentots will run every Hazard to procure the Safety of this Animal; and are cautious to the laft Degree of giving it the leaft Annoyance. A German, who had a Country-Seat, about Six Miles from the Fort, having given Leave to fome Hottentots to turn their Cattle for a While upon his Land there, they remov'd to the Place with their Kraal. A Son of this German, a brisk young Fellow, was amufing himfelf in this Kraal, when the deified Infect appear'd. The Hottentots, upon Sight, ran tumultuoufly to adore it; while the young Fellow Iow ran to catch it, in order to fee the Effect fuch a Capture would produce among 'em. He seiz'd it in the Midst of 'em. But how great was the general Cry and Agony, when they faw it in his Hands! They star'd, with Distraction in their Eyes, at him, and at one another. " See, See, See, faid they, Ah! "What is he going to do? Will he kill it? Will " he kill it ?" every Limb of 'em shaking through Apprehensions for its Fate. "Why" faid the young Fellow, who very well underftood 'em, " do you " make fuch a hideous Noife? And Why fuch Ago-" nies for this paltry Animal ? "Ah, Sir," they replied, with the utmost Concern "'Tis a Divinity. " 'Tis come from Heaven. 'Tis come for a Gracious " End? Ah! Do not hurt it : Do not offend it. We " are the most miserable Wretches upon Earth if " you do. This Ground will lie under an eternal " Curfe; and the Crime will never be forgiven." This was not enough for the young German. He had a Mind to carry the Experiment a little farther. He feem'd not therefore to be mov'd with their Petitions and Remonstrances, but made as if he intended to maim or deftroy it. On this Appearance of Cruelty they started, and ran to and again like People frantick; ask'd him Where and What his Confcience was? And how he durft think of perpetrating a Crime, which would bring upon his Head all the Curfes and Thunders of Heaven. But this not prevailing, they fell all proftrate on the Ground before the young Fellow, and, with ftreaming Eyes and the most moving Cries, befought him to spare the Creature and give it its Liberty. The young German now yielded ; and having let the Infect fly, the Hottentots jump'd and caper'd and fhouted in all the Transports of Joy; and running after the A-Gg nimal.

nimal, render'd the customary Divine Honours. But the Creature settling upon none of 'em, there was not One fainted upon this Occasion.

Difcourfing upon this Matter my felf with the Hottentots of this very Kraal, they declar'd to me, that if this deified Infect had been kill'd, all their Cattle would certainly have been deftroy'd by Wild Beafts; and they themfelves, every Man, Woman and Child of 'em, brought to a miferable End. They believe the Kraal to be of evil Deftiny, where this Infect is rarely feen. And to reafon with 'em against these Infatuations, is to talk to the Wind. They would fooner give up their Lives than renounce the least of 'em.

V. The Hottentots likewife pay a Religious Veneration to their Saints and Men of Renown departed. They honour 'em not with Tombs, Statues or Inferiptions; but confecrate Woods, Mountains, Fields and Rivers to their Memory. When they are paffing by one of those Places, they ftop to contemplate the Vertues of the Deceased, to whose Memory it is dedicated, and to implore his Protection for them and their Cattle. In this Meditation and Worship they stand with their Heads mussiled up in their Mantles. Sometimes they dance round those Places, finging and clapping their Hands.

If you find 'em at this Devotion, and ask the Meaning of it, they only laugh, with an Air that informs you, You are to guefs it, and not ask them. And if you urge them to an Explanation, they grow angry, and anfwer very fhort, "Why, this is "the Cuftom of the Hostentots." But for a Pipe of of Tobacco, or a Dram of Brandy, you will now and then find One who will give you an Account of the Matter, and tell you a long Story of the Virtues and Atchievements of those Ancestors of the Hottentots to whom those Dedications are made; concluding with Eulogies on the Worship and Gratitude that are paid to those excellent Perfons.

I once found a Hottentot finging and dancing upon a Hillock with a great Deal of Fervency in this Sort of Devotion. And having entitled my felf to his Favour by a Prefent of Tobacco, I ask'd him for Something of the Hiftory of the Saint to whom he paid those religious Devoirs. He answer'd, that he had never heard that the Hillock he was on was dedicated to any Saint; but he did not queftion but fome Great Saint dwelt there. For that once upon a Time, as he was travelling this Way, being feiz'd with a ftrong Inclination to fleep, and having a great Way home, he laid himfelf down upon this Hillock, and enjoy'd himfelf all Night in the fweetest Slumbers he ever knew. In the Morning, when he was getting up to proceed on his Way, he discover'd a great Lion, within Twenty Paces of him; which let him pais without taking any Notice of him; but which, he faid, would have certainly devour'd him, if fome Saint, inhabiting the Hillock, had not protected him,

I endeavour'd to root out this foolish Concert, and to implant in him proper Notions of God and his Providence; but in vain. He grew weary of my Instructions; rose on a Sudden, and shaking his Head, said, "I can understand Nothing of G 4 " all " all you have faid to me, " and departed out of Humour

VI. I have now gone through all the Idolatries of the Hottentots on the Gracious Side of their Faith. They have but one upon the Reverfe; and that is the Worthip of an Evil Deity, whom they look upon as the Father of Mifchief, and the Source of all their Plagues. They call him Touquoa; and fay, He is a little, crabb'd, inferiour Captain, whofe Malice against the Hottentots will feldom let him reft; and who never did, nor has it in his Nature to do, any Good to Any body. They worthip him therefore, fay they, in order to fweeten him and avert his Malice.

'Tis this Touquoa, fay they, who ftirs up Enemies againft them. 'Tis He who fruftrates all their Good Defigns. 'Tis He who fends all Pain and Vexation. 'Tis He who afflicts them and their Cattle with Difeafes, and fets on the Wild Beafts to devour 'em. 'Tis He who is the Author of all Ill Luck. And 'tis He, fay they, who teaches the Wicked Hottentots the curfed Art of Witchcraft; by which, they believe, innumerable Mifchiefs are done to the Perfors and Cattle of the Good. They therefore coaks him, upon any Apprehension of Danger or Misfortune, with the Offering of an Ox, or a Sheep; and, at other Times, perform divers Ceremonies of Worship, to wheedle and keep him quiet.

Boeving fays, he heard fome Hottentots folemnly declare, They had often feen this Touquoa; and that they defcrib'd him as an ugly, deform'd, rough, hairy hairy, frightful Monster, with Head and Feet refembling a Horse, and dress'd in White.

I took a World of Pains among the Hottentots to difcover whether any of 'em had pretended to have feen this Touquoa, but could never be inform'd among them, that any of 'em had. 'I am perfuaded, therefore, Boeving forgot himfelf, and receiv'd this Account of the Devil of the Hottentots only from Europeans.

VII. I have now given the Whole System of the Hottentot Religion; every Tenet of which, tho' labouring with the wildest Absurdities, they embrace fo heartily, and hold fo dear, that I look upon it, with a great many others, as next to an Impoffibility to ravish one of 'em out of a Hottentot's Bofom. Reafon against them, and they wrap themfelves up in a fullen Silence, or run away. And 'tis very rare that you can get them to hear you upon any religious Topick. Never certainly were there, in Matters of Religion, fo obstinate and fo infatuated a People. Stiff as are the Fews, many of 'em have fubmitted to the Yoke of Christ and died under it : But I never heard of a Hottentot that died a Christian. Some Hottentots, in the Hands of Europeans, have diffembled a Profession of Chriflianity for a While; but have ever renounc'd it for their native Idolatries, as foon as they could get out of their Hands.

The Dutch East-India Company has shewn a noble Zeal for the Honour of Christ, and the tenderest Compassion and Sollicitude for the Hottentots, in their Endeavours to procure the Planting of the ChristChriftian Faith in the Hottentot-Nations. In this Glorious Work they have fpar'd neither Pains nor Expence. Many learned and pious Miffionaries, fent by them to the Cape, have undergone numberlefs Dangers and Fatigues, and taken the greateft Pains to make Profelytes among the Hottentots, but without any Effect. Neither the Force of their Reafonings, nor the Charms of their Addrefs, made any Imprefion. They were compell'd, with Sorrow, to abandon the generous Defign, without leaving the leaft Trace of it on the Minds of the Hottentots. And I'll venture to prophefie, that, for this Age at leaft, it will not be attended with better Succefs.

M. van der Stel, Governour of the Cape, took a Hottentot in his Infancy, and bred him up in the Chriftian Religion, and in all the proper and genteel Manners, Fashions and Customs of the Europeans about him; allowing him little or no Conversation or Intercourfe with Hottentots. He became well skill'd in the Mysteries of the Faith, and in feveral Languages; was always fumptuoufly clad; and his Manners were very justly form'd after the best European Models at the Cape. The Governour, feeing him so qualified, entertain'd great Hopes of him; and defign'd very noble Things in his Favour. He fent him, with a Commissary General, to the Indies; where he remain'd, employ'd in the Commissary's Affairs, till the Death of that Gentleman; when he return'd to the Cape. A few Days after, at a Visit among his Relations, he stript himfelf of his European Apparel, and equipp'd himfelf, à la Mode de son Païs, in a Sheep-Skin. This done, he pack'd up his Cast off-Cloaths; and ran with 'em tQ.

to the Governour's; and prefenting himfelf before His Patron, he lay the Bundle at his Feet, and addrefs'd His Excellency to the following Effect. "Be pleas'd, Sir, to take Notice, that I for ever "renounce this Apparel. I do likewife for ever re-"nounce the Chriftian Religion. It is my Defign "to live and die in the Religion, Manners and Cuftoms of my Anceftors." I fhall only beg you "will grant me (and I am perfuaded you will "grant me) the Collar and the Hanger I wear. I "will keep 'em for your Sake". He added not; but turning his Back at once, fled fwiftly away, and was never feen in that Qnarter again.

I met with this Spark feveral Times up in the Country, and had a great deal of Talk with him. I was furpris'd to find him Master of fuch a Stock of Christian Knowledge. He went through, upon my Request, the whole System of Faith, in which he had been bred, with furprifing Facility, Clearnefs and Connection. Why, how can you, fays I, abandon the Christian Faith, who, with fuch a Number of Lights, must needs behold it in all its Reafonablene's and Beauty? His Reply was, that it was impossible for him, and, he believ'd too, for any one of his Nation, to obferve exactly the Chriftian Precepts. I reprefented to him the tender Mercies of God, and his Compafion and Forbearance for Sins of Infirmity. I represented to him likewife, in the warmest Terms I could summon together, the terrible Guilt of his Apostacy; and call'd him back into the Fold of Chrift with every Endearment I could think of. But he was, in a Manner, deaf to all my Reafonings and Remonstrances, and insensible to all my Careffes, for his Return: And fo he remain'd till I faw him no more. A

A German Divine, fometime a Preacher at the Cape, took with him, in his Return to Germany, a Hottentot, whom he inftructed in the Principles and Duties of Christianity, and there baptiz'd. This Hottentot, being return'd to the Cape, became the greatest Reprobate in all the Country; and was upon the Point of returning to his native Residence and Idolatries, when he was sent away to the Rob ben Island, where he died an Infidel.

Boeving fays, " These Infidels (meaning the Hot-" tentots) fhew the utmost Reluctance when they " are call'd upon to reafon on Matters of Religion. "How often, fays he, have I admonish'd them to " adore Gounja Gounja, as they call Almighty God, " and to give him Thanks for the Benefits they " daily receive at his Hands ! They neglected not " among Themfelves to return one Prefent or kind " Office for another; and bow'd their Bodies when " they receiv'd a Gift from a Parent, Friend or " Stranger. How therefore, I ask'd them, could " they neglect to pay the Gratitude that was due " to God, the Father of all Mercies, and the Giver " of every Good Thing? They replied, They did " thank Gounja Gounja. But how, demanded I? " Pray let me have the Particulars. But they " not being able or willing to proceed, I went on, " and endeavour'd to inftruct them After what "Manner they ought to pay their Acknowledge-" ments to the God of Gods, and to make 'em " fenfible of the Homage and Veneration that " were due to Him who is the Faithful Rewarder " of all that diligently feek him. But, alas! they " grew uneafie before I had enter'd far into thefe " Matters; and, at Length, had not Patience to heir

⁶⁶ hear me, but retir'd, fome frowning, others laugh⁶⁶ ing and flouting at me; fo that I could not fo
⁶⁶ much as pave a Way towards inftructing them
⁶⁶ in the great Points of Christianity.

I wonder not at the fruitles Endeavours of this pious learned and laborious Missionary. I have experienc'd enough of the Obstinacy of the Hottentots. They feem born with a mortal Antipathy to every Religion but their own.

Many a Time have I allur'd them in fmall Companies, with Tobacco, Wine, Brandy, and other Things, to Places of Retirement, in order to eradicate their nonfenfical idolatrous Whimfies, and inftruct 'em in the pure Worfhip of God. As long as my Store lafted, I had myCompany, who feem'd to attend with a Defign to learn, but only liften'd as Spungers, in order to be treated with the other Bottle, and laugh at me when I was gone. At this Bite they are as arch as other People. When my Store was fpent, they immediately call'd out for more Hire; and, without it, would not ftay to hear a Word more.

But the loofe immoral Lives of Multitudes of Europeans at the Cape, I apprehend, do not a little contribute to the Rendring the Hottentots fuch Haters of Inftruction and Admonition in Matters of Religion. This Contradiction between Profession and Practice has been fatal to most Designs of propagating the Faith. The Hottentots see when Principles and Practices are diffimilar as well as other People And as they discover so many and so wide Differences between 'em at the Cape, it is not to be doubdoubted but that they, with other Infidel Nations, make this a mighty Prejudice against every Attempt to convert or enlighten them.

How have I labour'd to bring 'em to a Senfe of their Duty to Almighty God ! How have I plied 'em upon the Abfurdity of acknowledging his Superiority to all other Gods, and yet refufing him any Act of Worship. And how disappointed were all my Endeavours ! I was still answer'd (when I could get an Answer) with the Tradition of the Offence of their First Parents, and the Blindness and Hardnefs of Heart with which they were all curs'd for it. From which when I had taken all the Advantages I could to inform and awaken them, and prefs'd them hard upon the Matter, their Refuge was in this Contradiction, that Gounia Gounia, or the God of Gods, was a Good Man, who neither did, nor had it in his Power to do any one any Hurt. When we had got fo far, and I had follow'd my Blow upon their Abfurdities and Contradictions, they would often in a Rage deny all they had own'd; and, flying from me, fay, they neither believ'd in God, nor would hear a Word more about him.

I must not omit the Account they fometimes give themselves of the Worship of their Touquoa, or Devil.' Father Tachart has deliver'd it very well in the following Words. "We honour Touquoa at "Times, fay the Hottentots, by killing a fat Ox "or a Sheep, according to our Apprehensions of "his Designs to plague us. With the Fat we "anoint our Bodies, and with the Fless we regale "one another; this being the Way to please or re-"concile him to us if we have offended; tho' we "know know not how we have offended. He reckons what he pleafes an Offence, and plagues us when he pleafes. And it has been always a Cuftom among us thus to appeale him.

It is a Cuftom of the Hottentots, of a religious Kind without Doubt, that when they are to pafs over a rapid River, they first fprinkle fome of the Water upon their Bodies, and daub their Foreheads with a little of the Mud. This Ceremony they perform with great Sedateness and Composure of Mind, fighing now and then, and muttering Something to themselves. At this I have seen them many a Time. But whatever Pains I took to know the Reason of it, I could never draw any Thing from them but this, "Do not you see the Cur-" rent is ftrong and dangerous?

CHAP. IX.

- Certain Principal Customs of the Hottentots, and the Ceremonies with which they are observ'd.
- I. Of their adopting a Dutch Term as a common Appellation for all their Solemnities. II. Of the Custom'of Depriving the Males of one Testicle. III. Reasons for this Custom. IV. Of a strange Excression for the Pudenda of the Hottentot Women. V. Of the Custom of Confining their Children, till they arrive at Maturity, to the Care and Conversation of the Women, and the Ceremonies with which the young Males are receiv'd into the Society of the Men. VI. Of their Publick Rejoicings.

joicings. VII. Of their Cuftom of Removing their Kraals. VIII. Of their Offerings on Occasion of Diseases among their Cattle. IX. Of the Custom of Driving their Cattle through the Fire. X. Reasons for this Custom.

Very Change of Abode and Condition, and every fignal Event of Life, the Hottentots accompany with Offerings or Feftivities; and never undertake any Thing they conceive to be of Importance without the previous Celebration of certain Solemnities. For these Ceremonious Acts. all of which I take to be of a religious Nature, the Hottentots, foon after the Settling of the Dutch among them, adopted the Dutch Term, Andersmaken, i. e. To alter for the better; and have ever fince call'd 'em all by that Name. They either cannot, or will not, give you any Terms they affix'd to those Acts antiently, or still retain for 'em privately. Every Solemnity, they tell you, is Andersmaken; and if you are not content with that, you may, for them, remain diffatisfied for ever. They feem to intimate a Change of Life by it; or, as we fay, the Turning over a new Leaf.

II. It is a Cuftom among the Hottentots to deprive the Males of one Tefticle. This, which they tell you is Anderfmaken, is most religiously observed throughout all the Hottentot Nations, and with a great Deal of Ceremony. This Operation is generally made at Eight or Nine Years of Age: And if it is deferred beyond that Time, it is always on Account of extreme Poverty, the Matter being a little expensive. I have seen it performed upon One of near Eighteen Years of Age. I will deforibe it with all its Ceremony. The

The Patient being first befmear'd all over with the Fat of the Entrails of a Sheep newly kill'd, lies on his Back, at full Length, on the Ground. His Hands are tied together; as are his Feet. On each Leg and Arm kneels a Friend, and on his Breaft lies another, to keep him down and deprive him of all Motion. Then advances the Operator, with a common Cafe- or Table-Knife, well fharpen'd, (They have no better Instrument,) and laying Hold of the left Tefticle, makes an Orifice in the Scrotum of an Inch and a Half long, and fqueezes out the Tefficle and cuts and ties up the Veffels in a Trice. This he performs, notwithstanding the Clumfinefs of the Inftrument, with fuch Dexterity, as would amaze the ableft Artift in Europe. Then taking a little Ball, which he has at Hand, of Sheep's Fat, mix'd with the Powders of falutary Herbs, particularly of Buchu, and of the Bignefs of the outed Tefficle, he crams it into the Scrotum to fill This Fat must be of the Sheep, up the Vacancy. kill'd by the Parents for this Occasion. And they are oblig'd to kill the fatteft one of their Flock. He then fews up the Wound; in which Work he uses a certain Bone belonging to a fmall Bird, as an Awl; and his Thread is a fine Slip of a Sheep's Sinew. The Bone is fhap'd like an Awl, and grinded to a Point. At this too he is furprifingly dexterous. And I cannot help thinking that this Needle and Thread are preferable, for the Sewing up of a Wound, to any Materials we make use of for the like Purpose. For this Sort of Stitching was never known to be attended with any ill Confequence; and the Wound heals quickly with little more Ado.

The Wound being few'd up, the Friends of th H Patient^e

Patient, who were feverally planted on his Legs, his Arms, and his Breaft, rife; and his Bands are loos'd. But before he offers to crawl away, Mr. Operator, with the ftill warm and imoaking Fat of the Kidneys and Entrails of the Sheep, kill'd on this Occafion, anoints him again all over, turning him, now on his Back, now on his Belly, and rubbing him on every Part, with a very rude regardlefs Hand; by this rough Action, without Doubt, adding frefh Flame to the already raging Torments of his Patient, who drops and imoaks under it like a Pig a roafting.

But we have not done yet. The Glory of the Ceremony is still behind. When the Patient is fufficiently befmear'd at this Second Unction, the Operator makes Furrows with his long Nails in the Fat upon him, and administers the last Comfort by Piffing all over him. This he does with a plentiful Stream. He lays up for the Occasion. When he has dribbled the last Drop, he rubs his Patient again all over with his Hand, clofing the Furrows in the The Ceremony being now at an End, the Fat. Patient, trembling and fprawling on the Ground, as in the Agony, is abandon'd of every one, and left, without farther Remedy, to perifh or recover by himfelf. Near the Place where the Operation is perform'd they previously erect a little Hut, as a Sort of Infirmary. Into this he crawls as foon as he can; and There remains for a Couple of Days or fo; all the while alone, and without any Refreshment befides the Fat upon his Body, which he may lick if he pleafes. In fome fuch Time, without any fresh Application, the Wound is finely heal'd, and his Vigour return'd; when he fullies out, and runs, with

with the Speed of the Wing, o'er the neighbouring Plains, in Teftimony of his Recovery.

The Patience of a Hottentot under this Operation is wonderful. He ftruggles but little; and but rarely groans. I have been a Witnefs to the Performance many a Time; and can never enough admire the Refolution with which I faw it conftantly endur'd. The younger Fry, who have not yet been under the Knife, are never permitted to fee the Operation.

When the Operator and Affiftants abandon the Patient, they repair to the House of his Parents, where affemble immediately all the Men of the Kraal, to felicitate the Parents, and to feast with 'em on the Sheep that was kill'd on this Occafion. They boil and devour the Meat, and fend the Broth to their Wives. Nor Bit nor Drop is fent to the Infirmary. The Remainder of the Day and all the next Night are fpent in Smoaking, Singing and Dancing; and the Kraal shakes and rings through the Impetuolity of their Mirth and Rejoicings.

The next Morning they dust their Heads with powder'd Buchu, and anoint their Bodies with the remaining Fat of the Sheep; and then depart to their feveral Homes; the Operator then receiving a Prefent of a Calf or Lamb for his Trouble, it the Parents of the Patient are able and willing to make him one.

I have frequently examin'd the Scrota of the Hottentots after the Exection of a Tefticle, and always found the Performance wonderfully exact. It would would furprife any Man living to fee how nicely the Wound is fow'd up. If the Exection is made at Eight or Nine Years of Age, the Seam vanifhes by the Time they come to Maturity, and you fee no Trace of the Operation.

III. The Hottentots vary themfelves in affigning the Reafons of this Cuftom of depriving the Males of one Tefficle. No Wonder, therefore, Authors vary upon the Matter.

Saar is of Opinion, they do it to acquire a greater Swiftnefs of Foot; a Faculty the Men enjoy in Common in fo high a Degree, that they have ran, fays he, many of 'em, with nimble Horfes, mounted by Europeans, and out ftript 'em.

Vogel, Tachart, and feveral others were led into the fame Opinion by the Declarations of many Hottentots, who affirm'd to 'em, fay they, that this Cuftom of depriving the Males of one Tefticle was obferv'd for no other End than to make 'em run the fwifter.

Boeving refers the wonderful Agility of the Men to Three Caufes. The principal one, fays he, is the Exection of a Tefticle. The next, the Anointing their Bodies. And the laft, the Freedom of their Limbs from every Incumbrance of Apparel.

All Writers, I think, agree, that the Agility of the Men is principally owing to the Lofs of a Tefticle. 'Tis certain, many Hottentots afcribe it to the fame Caufe; and fome of 'em affirm, the Cuftom of Cutting out a Tefticle is obferv'd on that that Account only. And 'tis certain too, however ftrange it may feem, that many fwift Horfes, under expert Riders, have been diftanc'd again and again by Hottentots.

But how far foever the Exection of a Tefticle may contribute to the Agility of the Body, this Cuftom owes not its Original to any fuch Matter; nor is it observ'd now a days on fuch Account only. For the intelligent Hottentots, when they are earneftly queftion'd upon the Point, will be plain, and tell you, that it is a Law, which has prevail'd through all the Generations of 'em, *That no Man fall bave Carnal Knowledge of a Wo*man before be is deprived of bis left Tefticle.

To fecure the Obfervance of this' Law, the Time of Exection is fix'd, as I have faid, to about Eight or Nine Years of Age. 'Tis very rare that it is delay'd beyond; and 'tis ever delay'd through Indulgence, on the Score, as has been faid, of Poverty. The poor Hottentots confider, that their Sons may die before they arrive at the Age of Eighteen Years, which is the ufual Time of Marriage. They have a Chance then by this Delay to fave Charges: And by this they are wholly govern'd in the Matter.

They have no Memory of the Breach of this Law. But if a Marriage fhould be confummated without the Exection of a Tefticle, both Man and Woman would lie at the Mercy of the Rulers, and the Woman perhaps be torn to Pieces by her own Sex.

But these are not all the Securities of this H_3 Law.

Law. It is ftrongly guarded too by a prevailing Opinion among the Women, That a Man with two Testicles constantly begets Twins. They therefore, upon Treaties of Marriage, generally call upon the Friends of the Party to aver the Exection, Modesty forbidding them to examine the Parts previously themselves. Yet do the Women fometimes bear Twins.

The Origin of this Cuftom I am not able to trace. There is Nothing like it that I know of in any other Part of the known World. May one fuppofe, that the Original Practice was the Jewifh Circumcifion; and that in fome Popular Revolution the Thing was laid afide and forgot, and the Exection of a Tefficle afterwards miftaken for the Cutting off the Fore Skin? Derive it how they will, it is apparently of a Religious Nature.

IV. I must here mention (what I omitted under the General Description of the Hottentots, where it would have stood much better) a strange Excrefcence upon all the Hottentot Women. This is a broad callous Part, growing just above the Pudenda, and stapping over and hiding them. It seems intended by Nature for the Concealment of those Parts; and is, in some, so large that it can hardly be cover'd by the Kutt Krosse, as they call it, (a Piece of Sheep-Skin the Women wear for the Concealment of those Parts) but is often seen below it.

Whatever the Reader may think of this Excrefcence upon the Hottentot Women as a Deformity, the

the Hottentots, nor Men nor Women, regard it as any. But, through their Naftinefs and Anointings, it is always in fuch a Pickle as to make an European loath the Sight of it. They will let you, for a little Tobacco or fo, handle and examine it.

Thevenot, in his Account of his East India Voyage, fays, the Negro- and Egyptian Women, and the Women of other Nations, were fubject to the like Excression it that they ftopt the Growth of it very early by Searing it. This he looks upon as an Act of the Superstition of those Nations; I, only as a Fashion to root out what they look'd upon as a Deformity

V. The Exection of a Tefficle is one Act of Legitimation for the Marriage of the Males. But before they marry, there is another Thing to be done, as a fecond Act of Legitimation for the fame Purpofe. This, which they likewife call Anderfmaken, is the Receiving them, with a great Deal of odd Ceremony, into the Society of the Men.

The Boobies, from their Infancy up to the Time when this Ceremony is perform'd, which is generally about the Eighteenth Year, are confin'd to the Tuition of their Mothers, and live and ramble about conftantly with 'em. Before this fecond Act of Legitimation they are not allow'd to fet up for Men. Nor dare they offer to converfe with fuch as are call'd Men, not even with their own Fathers. But upon this Act they are difcharg'd from their Mothers, and banish'd their Conversation for ever.

When

When a Father, or the Generality of the Men of a Kraal, refolves to call a young Fellow into the Society of Men, all the Inhabitants affemble in the Middle of the Kraal; * and all the Men fit down on The young Fellow to the Ground in a Circle. be admitted, being without the Circle, is order'd to fquat down upon his Hams or Heels, fo as not touch the Ground by at least Three Inches. This done, the oldeft Man, whether he be the Captain of the Kraal or not, rifes, and asks the Pleafure of the Circle, "Whether the Youth without " fhall be admitted into their Society and made a " Man." To this All answering jo jo i. c. Yes, Yes, he leaves the Circle; and ftepping up to the Youth, informs him, " That the Men having " thought him worthy to be admitted into their "Society, he was now to take an eternal Farewel " of his Mother and the Nurfery, and of all his " Boy's Tricks and Gewgaws. That if he is but " once feen again to chat with his Mother, and does " not always carefully avoid her Company, he will " be look'd upon as a Babe, and as altogether un-" worthy of the Conversation of the Men, and will " be banish'd the fame, and must again undergo the " Ander maken to reposses himself of that Honour. " That all his Thoughts, Words and Actions are " from that Time forward to be Manly; and " that he is never to admit the leaft Effeminacy or " Tarnish of the Nursery into any of 'em ". Over this the Old Sage goes again and again, and ceafes not till, by frequent Repetitions, he judges he has fasten'd upon him the whole Matter of his Admonition.

The Youth beforehand being roundly bedaub'd with Fat and Soot, the old Declaimer has no fooner finish'd his Harangue, than he draws out his T-, and piffes with great Vigour all over him. He ftops his Waters for fome Time before, in order to provide him with a plentiful Stream. The Youth, who can hardly be feen under the fmoaking Inundation, receives the Stream with an eager Care ; and making Furrows, with his long Nails, in the Fat upon his Body, rubs and mixes the Pifs with the Fat with the quickeft Action. The Old Fellow puts not up his T— till he has carefully dribbled upon him to the laft Drop; when he felicitates him upon the Honour that is done him; and crowns him with the following Benedictions; which he utters aloud: t'kamma. Good Fortune attend Thee. Dida Atze. Live to Old Age. Quoa qua. Encrease and multiply. t'Kumi. May thy Beard grow foon. Then is the young Fellow folemnly proclaim'd a Man.

This done, the Men go all to Feafting upon a Sheep, Part roafted and Part boil'd, prepar'd by the Friends of the young Fellow, now admitted a Man. But the young Fellow himfelf is not permitted to join the Company till near the End of the Feaft; when he comes in for Scraps, and is confirm'd in the Privileges of Affociating, Eating and Drinking with the Men, provided he avoids Eating and Drinking with the Women and Joining in any of their Entertainments.

I may observe here, that the Words t'Kamma and Dida Atze, made Use of in this Ceremony, are us'd also among the Hottentots, by Way of Salutation, tion, when they fneeze; just as the Salutation, God blefs you, is us'd on the like Occasion by many among Our felves.

A young Fellow, remaining in the Tuition of his Mother after having arriv'd at the Age of Admiffion into the Society of the Men, the young Fellows already admitted, call in Derifion, Kutfire i. e. Milk-Sop; and employ all their Wit in his Ridicule and Mortification.

This Word Kutfire is, in all the Nations, a dreadful Term of Reproach. When it falls on a Hottentot with any Manner of Juffice, it ftrikes his Name with the Fury of a Thunderbolt, and lays all his Trophies and Honours even with the Ground. It fweeps down his Years, be the Number as great as it may; unmans him at once; and makes an arrant Boy of him. He is banish'd the Society of the Men, as a filly raw young Puppy, unworthy of their Company. All his old Friends laugh at and avoid him: And he is the common Butt of all the Wits of the Kraal. In fhort, he is treated by all that know him as little better than an Ideot till he undergoes the Ander (maken afresh; which repairs the Damage at once; reftores him to his Years and Difcretion, and again makes a Man of him.

When this reproachful dreaded Term is fasten'd upon a Hottentot, 'tis examin'd in a Circle of the Men of his Kraal, Whether he has deferv'd it. The Matter is foon decided, but rarely with Impartiality, for the Appetites of his Judges give'em a strong Bias against him. Their Mouths water for the Feast Feast at a new Anderfmaken; and the Feast is all that is requir'd on fuch an Occasion, besides the folemn Anointing of him that makes it; the pissing and every other Ceremony of the first Anderfmaken being constantly dispens'd with. The Hottentot once admitted a Man, and afterwards reduc'd to the Condition of a Boy by the Word Kutfire, must treat all the Men of his Kraal with a Sheep, as at his first Anderfmaken, in order to be readmitted a Man. He is not to fit down with the Company, nor touch a Bit of the Carcase; but must plant himself at a Distance, and feast himself, if he pleases, upon the Entrails; with the Fat of which he is folemnly anointed, and, by that Ceremony, made a Managain.

But no Penalty is laid on the Hottentot that fhall call Another Kutfire unjuitly; which fhews this whole Matter to be moftly fet up in order to promote the Common Entertainment and Diversion of the Men.

I must not dismiss the Ceremony of Andersmaken for admitting young Fellows into the Society of Men, without fome Account of its Confequences as they regard the Women. A Hottentot, thus difcharg'd from the Tuition of his Mother, may infult her when he will with Impunity. He may cudgel her, if he pleafes, only for his Humour, without any Danger of being call'd to an Account for it. And these Things I have often known done. Nor are those unnatural Extravagancies attended with the least Scandal. On the Contrary, they are effeem'd as Tokens of a Manly Temper and Bravery; and the Authors of 'em mils not now and then of Applaule, Immediately after the Induction of a young young Fellow into the Society of the Men, it is an ordinary Thing for him to go and abufe his Mother, and make a reproachful Triumph upon his being difcharg'd from her Tuition, in Testimony of the Sincerity of his Intentions to follow the Admonitions of the Declaimer at his Induction.

When the Old Fellows are admonished (and very often have I admonished them) against this horridly unnatural Practice of leading their Sons into Cruelty and Neglect for their Mothers, not a Word will they hear with Patience; nor can any Answer be obtained from em besides the darling One of the Hottentots, whenever they are heated and confused by any Enquiry into their own Matters, 'Tis Hottentot Custom, and ever was fo. And with this, they think, you ought to be fatisfied.

Nay, even the Women, who have fuffer'd by the Infolence of their Children, will, when the Pain of the Blows, or their first Resentment, is vanish'd, excuse 'em, and apologize for the wild Impiety with the fame Answer as the Men, when an European shall represent to 'em the Barbarity of the Custom under which they suffer. Hottentot Custom is a Salve for all their Sores. This is extremely unaccountable.

VI. I have gone through fuch Anderfinakens as are of a Private Nature. I now come to fuch as are of a Publick one. And thefe are obferv'd upon various Occasions; particularly upon the Overthrow of an Enemy; fome great Deftruction of Wild Beasts that devour their Cattle; the Recovery of fome eminent Hottentot from a dangerous Fit of SickSicknefs, and the like. On fuch Occafions they make Publick Entertainments and Rejoicings, in which every Inhabitant of a Kraal has a Share.

The Cots or Dwellings in a Kraal are rang'd in a Circle, the Area of which is quite open. When they defign a publick Entertainment, they erect in the Center of the Kraal a Sort of Booth or Arbour, large enough to entertain commodioufly all the Men. *This Booth is made of Materials quite new, alluding to their Defign of beginning on fuch Occafions a New Life. The Morning of the Day de-Itin'd for the Solemnity, the Women and Children of the Kraal go all into the Valleys to gather feveralSorts of odoriferous Herbs and beautiful Flowers. with fmall Branches of gay Trees, with which they adorn and perfume the Booth very charmingly. The Men take the fatteft Ox, fometimes the fatteft Bullock ; and fastening four Ropes, made of small Weeds very nicely twifted, feverally to his Feet, fome feize him by the Horns and ftruggle with him that Way, while others, on one Side, pull with the Ropes, till down they throw him on the Ground; when they extend him to his full Stretch on his Back, and fasten the Ropes to Stakes driven into the Ground. + They then kill him, but after fuch a Method that he is half an Hour a dying. This Method, which shall be describ'd hereafter, is a very peculiar one, and wholly unknown in Europe. Part of him they roaft, and Part they boil. The Men fit down in the Booth to the Whole, and devour it with a great Deal of Mirth. The Women are put off, as ufual, with the Broth only. The Men in a Kraal are generally fufficient to devour an Ox at one Entertainment. But they are generally a good While about it. They then go to Smoaking and Drinking. There is among them a Band of Mufick, which ftrikes up between Whiles, and awakens the Dancers. Some fing; others crack Jokes and tell merry Tales. Mirth triumphs in Storms of Laughter; and the whole Company is diffolv'd in Pleafure. In these Diversions they continue the Remainder of the Day and all the next Night.

Tho' they love fitrong Liquors immoderately, and purchafe them whenever they conveniently can, yet little or none of any Sort is feen in thefe Solemnities. They never pollute them with Drunkennefs, or any Degree of Intoxication but what arifes from Tobacco or Dacba, and from the Transports of Mirth. They can fing and dance and confabulate with all imaginable Gaiety for Twenty Hours together by the Help only of their ordinary Beverage, Water and Cows-Milk; Vivacities in which, spite of all the Sarcafins with which they have been pelted for Stupidity, they excel the Europeans; who cannot, forfooth, maintain their Mirth for an Hour without the Help of strong Liquors.

VII. The Hottentots observe an Andersmaken, when they remove their Kraals. And they remove a Kraal, for the most Part, on one of the following Accounts: Either when the Pasture about it becomes too bare for the Subsistence of their Cattle; or when an Inhabitant dies in it, whether violently or naturally. When

When they have refolv'd to remove a Kraal on Account of the Barrenness of the Pasture, they kill a fat Sheep. Part they roaft, and Part they boil. Upon this the Men of the Kraal feast with a great Deal of Mirth and Good Humour, fending to the Women the usual Regale of Broth. With the Fat they anoint their Kroffes (as they call them) or Mantles. This is a Thank-Offering for the Bounties of Nature enjoy'd in that Place. When they have done, they demolifh their Cots, pack up their Furniture, and remove at once, the Men in one Body, the Women and Children in another, to the Place deftin'd for a new Settlement. Where being arriv'd, their first Work is to erect the Kraal and difpose their Furniture. This never costs them much above a Couple of Hours. Then a Sheep is kill'd for the Women. Part they roaft, and Part they boil: And devouring the Whole among themfelves, they fend their Husbands a Regale of Broth; which is all they are to have for that Time. With the Fat the Women anoint their Kroffes, or Mantles. Then powdering their Hair with Buchu, they go to feveral Diverfions among themfelves; in which they continue the Reft of the Day and till pretty far in the Night, their Husbands, in all the Time, not once intruding or coming near them. The Sheep is here a Sacrifice, and the Unctions and Powderings are Religious Formalities, for the Profperity of the Kraal, and the Continuance of Plenty in that Neighbourhood.

VIII. When the Sheep of a Kraal are feiz'd with the Megrims (the Hottentots call the Diftemper by the Dutch Terms, Mall-Koppen i. e. diforder'd in the Head) the Inhabitants make propitiatory tory Sacrifices, and feaft folemnly upon 'em for three Days fucceffively. The Sacrifice on each Day is a found fat Sheep, and the Sacrificer an elderly Hottentot of diffinguish'd Sense and Gravity, who is judg'd the ableft for chufing the beft and fitteft Sheep for those Sacrifices (for they reckon a great Deal upon That) and the best skill'd in the Ordinances relating to the fame. The Old Men affemble by themfelves, and feaft each Day upon the Carcafe of the Sacrifice. The young Men affemble at a Diftance, and devour the Entrails; and the Women and Children are each Day regal'd with the Broth only which is made with the boil'd Parts of the Sacrifice. After the Feaft, they fpend, each Company apart, the Remainder of each Day and the following Night in Singing and Dancing. These are Acts of Attonement for their Offences against Gounja; and which they trust will render Gounja, propitious to them and their Cattle.

If, upon these Offerings, the Distemper ceases among the Sheep, they grow wild with Joy, and there is no End of their Feafts and Rejoicings. 'Tis a Matter certain among 'em, that Gounja is delighted with their Offerings; and the Senfe of having pleas'd him, hurries them out of themfelves, and furnishes such Scenes of Mirth and Extafie as are, perhaps, no where elfe to be met with. But if, upon these Offerings, the Diftemper does not immediately abate, they fuppofe the Offerings were not Good enough; and that the Old Hottentot, appointed for the Election of 'em, did not chufe the Beft. Upon which Suppolition they appoint another ancient experienc'd Perfon to mark out new Sacrifices; and three Days

Days more are spent in the same Solemnities: Or else they imagine, the Sheep have caught their Distemper from some ill Quality of the Pasture. And if this shall be the prevailing Opinion, they forthwith perform the Andersmaken usual on the Removal of a Kraal, and depart with their Cattle to another Quarter.

IX. Another Grand Cuftom of the Hottentots, which they likewife term Andersmaken, * is the Driving their Sheep at certain Times through the Fire. Early in the Day, deftin'd by a Kraal for the Observance of this Custom, the Women milk all their Cows, and fet the whole Produce before their Husbands. 'Tis a strict Ordinance at those Times, that the Women neither tafte, nor fuffer The whole their Children to touch, a Drop of it. Quantity is facred to the Men, who drink it all up before they address themselves to the Business of the Fire. Having confum'd the Mik, fome go and bring the Sheep together to the Place where the Fire is to be lighted, while others repair to the Place to light it. The Fire is made of Chips and dry Twigs, and thinly fpread into the Figure of an Oblong. Upon the Coming up of the Sheep, the Fire, scatter'd into this Figure, is cover'd with green Twigs, to raife a great Smoak; and a Number of Men range themfelves clofely on both Sides of it, making a Lane for the Sheep to pass th ough, and extending themfelves to a good Diftance beyond the Fire on the Side where the Sheep are to enter. Things being in this Posture,

the Sheep are driven into the Lane close up to the Fig., which now fmoaks in the thickeft Clouds. The Foremost boggle; and being forc'd forward by the Prefs behind, feek their Efcape by attempting Breaches in the Ranks. The Men stand close ard firm, and whoop and goad them forward; when a few Hands, planted at the Front of the Fire, catch three or four of the foremost Sheep by the Head, and drag 'emthrough, and bring 'em round into the Sight of the Reft; which fometimes upon this, the Whooping and Goading continuing, follow with a Tantivy, jumping and pouring themfelves through the Fire and Smoak with a mighty Clattering and Fury. At other Times they are not fo tractable, but put the Hottentots to the Trouble of Dragging Numbers of 'em through: And fometimes, in a great Prefs and Fright, fturdily attacking the Ranks, they make a Breach and efcape. This is a very mortifying Event at all Times, the Hottentots, upon whatever Account, looking upon it as a heavy Difgrace, and a very ill Omen into the Bargain.

But when their Labours here are attended with fuch Succefs, that the Sheep pafs readily through or over the Fire, 'tis hardly in the Power of Language to defcribe them in all the Sallies of their Joy. Heavens! What a diftracted Scene! What Shouting, Singing and Screaming! What Bouncing and Scampering! What Laughing, Grinning and Staring! What Stamping, Capering and Tumbling! What Clapping of Hands and Shaking of Heels! What Twiftings and Wrigglings of the Body! What Raptures and Uproars! They are mad (in all Appearance) ftark ftaring mad; and the'r Extravagancies know no End. X. I

• X. I was no fooner acquainted with this Cuftom than I had a mighty Itch to know the Meaning of it; with Regard to which I found the Europeans at the Cape utterly in the Dark. I therefore perfecuted the Hottentots inceffantly with my Enquiries till I had obtain'd fome Satisfaction. But it was a long Time ere I was fo lucky. My Curiofity receiv'd a thousand Bangs with the Flail of Hottentot Custom. A Thouland answer'd me, " Our Ancestors did fo; therefore fo do we," and, either could not, or would not, enter farther into the Matter. I grew tir'd in the Chace of this Mystery; and, despairing of Success, was giving it up for ever; when I ftumbled on a Rottentot, a fenfible good natur'd Fellow, who, for a fmall Gratuity in Brandy and Tobacco, gave me the following Account, as one genuine Branch, at least, of the Matter I was in Purfuit of. The Ideas were, every One of 'em, his: I only vary from him in the Points of Drefs and Modification.

"We know not, fays he, when to date the Introduction of this Cuftom among us. We fuppofe it has prevail'd through all or moft Generations. Nor are we affur'd, any of us, that I know of, of the Solidity of the Reafon upon which it ftands, any otherwife than by the Authority of our Allceftors, who, we conceive, were wife, and fet up Nothing as a Rule to Pofterity but on folid Grounds.

"This Country, as without Doubt You know,
"is infefted in every Part of it with wild Logs;
"which keep together, and four the Fields in
"jarge Troops, and fometimes make terrible H1-I 2 vock vock among our Cattle. We dread those Crea-" tures more among our Sheep, than we do Li-" ons or Tigers, or any other ravenous Beafts in " the whole Region. For when Lions, Tigers, " or any other Wild Beasts about us, but wild " Dogs, invade a Flock, they only flay for pre-" fent Appetite and a Meal or two beyond. "Whereas when Wild Dogs fet upon a Flock, " they make their Appetites no Rules for Slaugh-"ter, but, if they are not prevented, worry the "Whole. Now we have it from our Anceftors, " that if Sheep are driven through the Fire, as we " term it, that is, through a thick Smoak, the "Wild Dogs will not be fond of attacking them " while the Scent of the Smoak remains upon their " Fleeces. We therefore from Time to Time, " for the Security of our Flocks, perform this "Andersmaken. And this is all I know of the Matter.

I can fay Nothing for the Strength of this Reafon. I am only pretty confident it was not Matter of Invention. Yet, allowing it to be fufficient to fupport the Cuftom we are fpeaking of, I muft needs be of Opinion there are others, and those of a religious Nature, for the Maintenance of this Cuftom, which the Hottentots I convers'd with, either knew not, or would not communicate to me.

Other Andersmakens will be defcrib'd hereafter under the Heads to which they respectively belong.

the CAPE of GOOD HOPE. 133 CHAP. X.

I. The Notions of the Hottentots concerning Witchcraft. II. An Argument to prove, that the Hottentots believe the Immortality of the Soul.

I. L L fudden inward Pain; All Sickneffes that baffle their Phyficians, and cut off before Old Age; All fudden crofs Accidents; and Every artificial Performance that is above their Comprehension, the Hottentots afcribe to Witchcraft; an Art which they believe is taught by their Touquoa, or Devil; and under the Imputation of which their Old Women, like ours, fuffer more than any others.

When a Hottentot is feiz'd with a Pain, which he believes is caus'd by Witchcraft, he fends for the Phyfician of his Kraal, who is believ'd to be Mafter of an Amulet that will fometimes diffolve the Charms of the Witches. On his Arrival, and before he utters a Syllable to the Patient, a found fat Sheep being kill'd at the Inftant, he takes and carefully views the Caul all over; and having powder'd it with Buchu, twifts it in the Manner of a Rope, and hangs it about the Patients Neck, to whom, while he is doing this, he generally fays, "You will foon be better. The Witchcraft is " not ftrong upon you" This Caul the Patient is oblig'd to wear while a Bit of it will hang about the Neck. If the Patient be a Man, the Men of the Kraal feast upon the Carcase of the Sheep : If a Woman, the Women : If a Child, the Carcafe of the Sheep is ferv'd up to the Children of the Kraal only; and none elfe tafte I 3 a Bit of it. If,

If, upon this, the Patient does not grow better, the Doctor thinks no more of an Amulet, but gives Phylick. And be the Diftemper, or the Courfe of it, what it may, the Doctor first call'd in, and no other, must be retain'd quite through, till the Patient recovers or dies. If the Event is Death, the Doctor affirms it was occasion'd by Witchcraft; and that the Charms of the Witch or Wizzard were too ftrong for him or any elfe to break. And for this he always finds Faith enough.

I know but one Inftance, and I am apt to think there never was another, of a Hottentot's departing from his Faith in the Affirmation of a Phylician, that a Difease was inflicted and render'd incurable by Witchcraft. The Inftance is This: A Hottentot Fisherman, being struck with a Sort of Leprofie all over his Body, applied to an eminent Hottentot Physician for Relief. The Physician having kept him in Hand a confiderable Time, and found he could do him no Good, abandon'd him as a Man bewitch'd and incurable. Soon after, the poor Fellow, in a most piteous Condition, and his Heart finking to Rights under the melancholy Notion he had of it, coming to the Houfe of a Dutchman, to whom he fometimes fold his Fifh, the Dutchman's Wife perfuaded him to fubmit his Diftemper to her Skill; and giving him fome Roman Vitriol, order'd him to lay it for about half a Quarter of an Hour in a fmall Quantity of Water, and with this Water, impregnated with the Vitriol, to wash his Sores from Time to Time. He follow'd her Orders, and they prov'd fortunate Ones; for in a Fortnight's Time, by thisWater only, he was perfectly cur'd. Whereupon he repair'd to the Hot-

Hottentot Physician who had had him in Hand, and with the highest Indignation, on the one Hand, for the Ignorance of the Quack, and the highest Efteem, on the other, for the Skill of the Dutcb-woman, he loaded Him with Reproaches, and Her with Encomiums, and run down the Reputation of the Hottentot Physicians with infinite Contempt and Ridicule.

Boeving fays, the Hottentots wear, hanging to their Necks, a little Piece of a Sort of Wood they call Suza, as an Amulet againft Witchcraft. They put this Piece of Wood, with other Things, in a Pouch they wear hanging to their Necks.

I have often been look'd upon by the Hottemots as a Wizzard my felf. My Magic Lanthern, Burning Glafs, and other Inftruments, producing Effects which aftonifh'd 'em, and which they could not account for, were Pieces of Witchcraft. Once, being furrounded by a good Number of 'em, I pour'd a little Brandy into a Cup and fir'd it, and ask'd 'em if they would drink of it: They were aftonifh'd at the Propofal; and when they faw me drink it my felf, betook themfelves to their Heels in a Fright, and ever after dreaded me as a great and dangerous Conjurer. They have vanifh'd out of my Sight in an Inftant upon my holding up a Stick and threatening to bewitch 'em with it.

II. It does not at all appear, however, and I believe it is not, that the Hottentots have any Notion of their Wizzards or Witches entering into any Compact with the Devil, whom they call Tou q^{20a} ; or that their Souls go to Him at Death, as have many among Our felves of fuch whether real or imaginary Wretches. They conceive, according to all the Intelligence I could get upon the Matter, that the Malice of Touquoa is confin'd to this World, and cannot act beyond it. Nor could I ever catch the least Hint among 'em to think, that any of 'em believe, that either the Good, at Death, go to any certain Place of Blifs, or the Bad to any Place of Torment. Yet do they certainly believe the Immortality of the Soul. And I wonder fome Authors could not fee This.

Father Tachart plainly afferts " the Hottentots " do not expect a Life after this; for which " Reafon," fays he, " they ftrive to make their " Lives as eafie as they possibly can." The Reafoning here I take to be just as found as the Affertion.

Boeving fays, "'Tis certain the Hottentots do not " believe the Refurrection of the Dead; but That " they and Brutes, at Death, perifh alike. Talk-" ing once to a Hottentot concerning the Refur-" rection, he faid: Only bere: Hereafter Nothing. " The Dead come to Life again! How can that be ?

As to the Refurrection, I do not fee how the *Hot*tentots, or any other People, fhould have any Notion of it but from Chriftians. That great Doctrine certainly was never difcover'd only by the Light of Nature. And the Ignorance or Denial of it argues Nothing against the Belief of the Soul's Immortality. If the Hottentots believe not, and I know not that any of them do, that any Thing in in Brutes furvives the Death of 'em, then has this Gentleman argued to fome Purpofe against their Belief of the Soul's Immortality. Otherwise his Argument does not affect it; the Words Hereafter Nothing, in the Mouth of the Hottentot, clashing with the pure and manifest Sense offeveral universal Cuftoins among the Hottentots, as will appear prefently.

Just as infufficient as the Denial of the Refurrection, against the Hottentots believing the Immortality of the Soul, is the Inftance he introduces here, by Way of Illustration. " A Hottentot, fays he. " who had murder'd a Chriftian, being deliver'd " to his own Nation to be cudgel'd to Death, ac-" cording to Hottentot Law, was exhorted " by a Chriftian Preacher to repent; and told of " the Eternal Felicity he would thereupon enjoy " in Heaven. The Criminal ask'd him, If there " were Cattle in Heaven? Which Oueftion put-" ting, it feems, the Preacher out of all Hope of " Converting him, he left him without a Reply." Now I can fee Nothing here, that fhews, the Criminal did not believe the Immortality of the Soul. All that appears is, that he had no Notion of fuch a Place of Blifs as the Preacher defcrib'd to him.

Now though the Immortality of the Soul is an Article that enters not into the Religion of the Hottentots, and which, for that Reafon, I mention'd not in my Account of their Religion; and though they fay Nothing at any Time concerning it, and perhaps never think of it with Regard to themfelves, yet does it appear very plainly; that they believe it, from the following Particulars.

1. They offer Prayers and Praises to the Good Hottentots departed, 2. They 2. They are apprehenfive the Dead fhould return to moleft them. They therefore upon the Death of any Man, Women or Child of 'em, remove with their Kraals, Bag and Baggage to a new Settlement; believing that the Dead never haunt any Places but those they died in; unless any Thing that belong'd to 'em is carried out of those Places; for then they apprehend they will follow a Kraal and be very troublesome. They therefore, for the Quiet of the Dead, and their Accommodation if they have a Mind to return, leave the Huts they died in, standing, and in them all the Apparel and Implements that belong'd to the Deceas'd, and never more lay Hands upon 'em.

3. They believe that it is in the Power of their Wizzards or Witches to lay a Spirit, and for ever prevent its Appearing or being troublefome.

Is it to be queffion'd then, Whether the Hottentots believe the Immortality of the Soul?

M. Ziegenbalg is clearly on my Side the Queffion. Yet if I wanted Evidence upon the Point, I could not with a good Confeience fet up Him. The credulous good Man, as 'tis pretty well known, was often impos'd on at the Cape, and most of all with Regard to the Religion and Opinions of the Hottentots. Befides, he proves too much by Half.

I'll give the Reader a Tafte of him upon those Matters. "Asking," fays he, "a Hottentot, "Where he thought he fhould go when he died, "whether to Heaven or Hell? the Hottentot re-"plied, I know not: God, who is merciful, only "knows." Again "Asking", fays he, "a Hottentot " tentot (the fame) Whether he believ'd there was " a God, he nimbly replied, Let bim, who believes " there is no God, look upwards and downwards and " round about him; and then let him continue in his " Opinion if he dares." Wonderful ! Could the Wifeft among Our felves have anfwer'd better! The Anfwers are very ingenious: Ay. But are they genuine? No. 'Tis pretty well known, as well in Europe as at the Cape, that this Hottentot was leffon'd and prompted into those Answers on Purpose to deceive Zeigenbalg; who, from this Cheat, has inferr'd a great many Things in Favour of the Hottentot Sense and Religion that reach as far beyond the Truth as the Inferences of other Authors come short of it.

As to the Hottentot Notions of the State of Departed Souls, it appears they conceive those Beings, Good and Bad, remain in or about the Places they inhabited in the Body. But to What End they conceive Souls exist out of the Body, or whether they trouble their Heads at all about it, I know not. I am only pretty certain they have no Notion of a Heaven for the Good, or of a Hell for the Wicked.

CHAP. XI.

Caftoms of the Hottentots on the Delivery of the Women.

N every Kraal there is a Midwife, who is chosen by the Women of the Kraal out of the ablest for Midwifry among themselves, and holds her Office for

for Life. A Prefent now and then, on the Delivery of a Child, is All she gets by it.

When a Hottentot Woman is near her Time, fhe is generally join'd by two or three Women of her Kindred or Acquaintance, * who attend her till fhe is deliver'd. When the Pains are upon her, the Midwife arrives, and lays her upon a Kroffe or Mantle on the Ground. Her Husband, if he is at Home, gets him out of Door, and puts not his Head into the Hut again till fhe is deliver'd, without being reckon'd Unclean, and Forfieting, as a cleanfing Anderfmaken, a Sheep, in fome Places the Forfiet is Two, to the Men of the Kraal; who devour the Meat, and fend the Broth to their Wives.

When the Birth is flow, they make a Decoction of Tobacco and Milk, whether of a Sheep or a Cow; and having ftrain'd off the Milk and let it cool, give it the Woman; who generally no fooner drinks it than the Birth comes on: Before Tobacco was brought to 'em, they made Ufe of Dacba on this Occafion. Tobacco, they find, has a fpeedier and kinder Effect. It must be left to the European Women to determine, whether fuch a Decoction would have the fame good Effect upon themfelves.

If a Child is ftill born, both Father and Mother weep and take on mightily, efpecially if 'tis a Boy. However, 'tis buried without Loss of Time, and the Kraal removes.

The Delivery of a Hottintot Wooman .

The Hotlentot Marriage .

If a Child is born alive, the First Thing they do is to rub it gently all over with fresh Cow-Dung. They fay, 'tis dangerous to wash it with warm Water. In this Pickle they lay it upon a Kroffe or Mantle, either before the Fire or in the Sunshine or the Wind, till the Dung becomes fo dry that it may easily be rubb'd quite off without hurting the Child.

While this is doing, fome Women go into the Fields to gather the Stalks of What they call Hottentot-Figs. With the Juice of thefe Stalks, which they get by bruifing them to Mash between two Stones, and which comes plentifully, they wash the Child all over, immediately after they have rubb'd off the Cow-Dung. This Juice, they fay, promotes the Strength and Activity of the Body.

This done, the Child is laid again on the Kroffe before the Fire, or in the Wind or Sun-Shine, till the Juice upon its Body is dried up; when they befmear it with Sheep's Fat, or with Butter, melted. And from this Time begins the Cuftom of befmearing the Body with Fat or Butter as the Sun or Wind dries it up, to divert from their Spirits, as has been formerly obferv'd, the devouring Heat of 'the Climate they live in.

The Child, befmear'd with Sheep's Fat, or Butter, melted, is laid again on the Kroffe; where it continues till fuch Time as they fuppofe the Fat or Butter has foak'd well into the Pores; when they take it up and powder it from Head to Foot with Buchu, which flicks upon the greafie Body, as the Reader will imagine, like a Cruft, all over it. 142

it. This they look upon at all Times as a very falutiferous Application.

On every Birth, excepting Still ones, the Parents obferve an Ander/maken or folemn Feaft by Way of Thanksgiving, in which all the Inhabitants of the Kraal they live in have a Share. Yet do they often give the Lie to those Thanksgivings by a cruel Custom, practis'd, indeed, by fome other Nations, but, to Bosoms replenish'd with Reason and Humanity, the most shocking One in the World. And this on the Birth of Twins.

If the Twins are Boys, the Parents obferve an Anderfmaken by killing Two fat Bullocks for the Entertainment of the whole Kraal, Men, Women and Children, who all, with the Parents, rejoice at the Birth as a mighty Bleffing. The Mother only is excluded this Entertainment, fo far, that fhe has only fome of the Fat of the Bullocks fent her, with which to anoint her felf and the Newborn.

But if the Twins are Girls, Things take quite another Face. There is little or no Rejoicing : And all the Sacrifice that goes to the Anderfmaken on fuch an Occafion is a Couple of Sheep at the Moft. But they cannot often refolve to rear both Twins. If the Parents are rich, and the Mother has, or pretends fhe has, not Supplies of Milk for their Nourifhment, the whole Kraal, which is confulted, forfooth, in Form on this Occafion, eafily admitting this Plea, the worft featur'd of the Two is buried alive, or expos'd on the Bough of a Tree, or among Bufhes. If the Parents of Twin Girls are poor, their Poverty is their Plea for Expofing or Making away with one of 'em. They make 'this Plea before the whole Kraal, which general'y allows it without taking much Pains to look into ir.

The Cafe is the fame, when the Twins are a Boy and a Girl, and the Parents have a Mind to be rid of one of them. Only here they are not govern'd by the Features, in Choice of the Child to be buried alive or expos'd. For the Girl is certainly condemn'd, if either Scarcity of the Mother's Milk, or Poverty, be alledg'd againft breeding up Both. But great Rejoicings are made for the Boy.

If the Twins are a Boy and a Girl, and the Girl is ftill born, before they break up in order to feek a new Settlement, they observe a solemn Feast for the Birth of the Boy; and after that, the Andersmaken usual on the Removal of a Kraal.

Upon the Birth of the first Child, if 'tis a Boy, the Rejoicings in a Kraal are far fuperiour to those attending any other Birth. The Prrents flay Cattle very liberally for the Entertairment of their Neighbours; and every one is particularly zealous on fuch an Occasion to congratulate them on the Obtaining of an Heir. The Eldest Son has, in a Manner, an absolute Authority over all his Brothers and Sisters.

The Boys are always preferv'd, be the Circumftances of the Father or the Cafe of the Mother never never fo bad; the barbarous Cuftom of Exposing or Burying alive being only fet up against the And when they refolve to rid themfelves of Girls. One, they carry the Babe a confiderable Diftance from the Kraal, and look for a Hole in the Earth, made by a Hedge Hog, Wolf, Tiger, or other wild Creature. In fuch a Hole, if they find one, they lay the Babe alive ; then ftopping up the Mouth of the Hole with Earth and Stones, forfake it for ever. It they find not fuch a Sepulchre prefently, they tie the Babe, ftretch'd on his Back, to a nether Bough of the next Tree, and leave it to starve or be devour'd by Birds or Beasts of Prev. Sometimes they leave the Caft-Away among Bufhes.

Whence this abominable Cuftom had its Rife among them, whether from their own Invention, or from Example, is a Matter in the Dark. They will tell you it has been the Practice of the Hottentots from the Beginning. But they are no Au-If they derive this Cuftom from any thority. other Nation, 'tis not improbable they owe it to the Chinefe, among whom, we are told, it has been always the Practice to thrust out of the World by Drowning and other Methods every Child that is born to 'em above the Number they can decently maintain. Embracing the Doctrine of Transmigration, they believe the Soul of a Child will have a better Chance for Happiness by being fent to animate another Body than by remaining in one that is exposed to Want. But the Japanefe, if we are truly inform'd, are crueller still. It feems, they flay every one that is born to 'em after the First Two. They look upon Two as sufficient for Pro

Propagation, and upon Death as vaftly preferable to a needy Life. They take the Overplus Children, as foon as they are born, and wreaching and fastening their Feet upon their Necks, keep 'em in that Posture till they expire. This is Barbarity ' with a Vengeance. But to return.

The Europeans at the Care fometimes find an expos'd Infant. If they find it dead, they generally ftay to inter it. If 'tis alive, they al vays take it Home; and if the Finder is not able or willing to breed it up, he foon meets with Others that are: And the Child has infallibly tender Treatment, and, if it lives, a good Education. Great Care is always taken to give the Minds of those Foundlings a ftrong Seafoning of Chr fuanity. And every Thing is done which , 'tis thought , may contribute to fecure them from Falling of to the Hottentot Naftinefs and Idolatries. But not once hitherto have t'lefe generous Labours produc'd any lafting Effect. Not once has it ap ear'd, that a Hottentot's Mind is to be depriv'd of its rative Those unhappy Females (and, as has been Bias. faid already, none but Females are expos'd) when they have come to Years of Maturity, have conftantly 'renounc'd their Education, the European Apparel, and the Christian Religion, all at once; and embracing the Religion and Cuftorns of their own People, fied to and remain'd among 'em ever after.

Sometimes the Europeans take an expos'd Infant they find dead, and diffect it This, when the Hot entots know it, gives 'em inf nite Terror. For, however they came by the Notion, they think, K I'ke like many weak People among Our felves, that Dead Bodies are of Use in Witchcraft; and think too, that the Europeans apply them to Nothing elfe. They would not part with one of their dead Bodies to be diffected, upon any Account in the World. They are as careful too to watch that their own Conjurers come not at the Corpse of one of their Relations or Friends.

The Kroffe, or Mantle, on which the Woman is laid, together with the After-Burthen, are forthwith, after the Delivery, interr'd together in fome feoret Place, for Fear the Hottentot Conjurers should lay hold of any Part of either, in order to work fome Enchantment on the Mother or the Child.

The Child's Navel String is tied with a Sheep's Sinew, fo long that it hangs down a confiderable Length below the Knot: And there it is to remain till it rots off. The Belly-Band for the Keeping down of the Navel is a narrow Piece of Sheep-Skin.

I. Of the Naming of the Hottentot Children. II. Times when the Men are oblig'd to withdraw from their Wives. III. Ceremonies previous to their Cohabiting again. IV. Correction of a Mistake of Boeving.

I. Refently after the Cleanfing of the Child with Cow-Dung, Anointing it with Sheep's Fat, or Butter, melted, and Powdering it with Buchu, chu, in the Manner that has been related, the Child is nam'd. The Name is given it by the Mother, unlefs the Diforder which fometimes follows the Drinking of the Decoction I have mention'd for Forwarding the Birth, renders her incapable of that Office; and then'tis done by the Father. And here, as I have already obferv'd in another Place, they imitate the old Troglodytes, by giving their Children the Names of Favourite Beafts. Some are call'd Hacqua, i. e. Horfe; others Gamman, i. e. Lion; others Ghoudie, i. e. Sheep; others Guacha, i. e. Afs; others t'kamma, i. e. Hart, &c,

II. The Men are not only oblig'd to retire out of the Sight of their Wives in Labour, but likewife to withdraw from 'em, and not partake with them in any one Thing, while the Menfes are upon them. He that comes near his Wife, or partakes with her in any Thing at those Times is look'd upon as unclean, and is oblig'd to purifie himfelf by offering a Fat Ox. This is not unlike the Law enjoin'd the Jews LEVIT. XII. Before this Purification he is diftinguish'd among his Neighbours by a Term, which I have often heard, but which I neither know how to render nor reduce to any fyllabical Form.

III. When a Woman, after Labour or the Menfes, is fit for the Company of her Husband, before they meet, the Woman rubs her Body all over with Cow-Dung by Way of Purification. The Dung being rubb'd off when't is dry, fhe befmears her felf all over with Fat; and then powdering herfelf all over with Buchu, waits within to receive her Husband. The Husband, having without back K_2 fmear'd fmear'd himfelf with Fat, and dufted himfelf all over with Buchu, enters the Houfe; and fitting down, puts many loving Queftions to his Spoufe, concerning her Welfare, and the Manner in which fhe has pafs'd her Time in his Abfence; makes frefh Profeffions of Conjugal Love, and entertains her with all the pleafing fprightly Things he is able to utter. While he is doing this, he fmoaks Dacha or Tobacco: And the Cuitom is for him to fmoak and talk till his Head turns round; he raves and drops afleep.

I have been often affur'd by both Sexes of the Hottentots, that they differ in their Veneral Embraces from Europeans.

IV. Boeving fays, the Inland Hottentots deftroy, as foon as it is born, every Child begot by an European on a Hottentot Woman. This, according to the beft Accounts I could get, is no where true throughout all the Hottentot Nations, but in the Cafe of Twins, when One of Them is a Girl; for then they deftroy the Girl. The Boys they cherifh with as much Fondnefs, if not more, than they do any of their own.

HE Cruel Cuftoms of the Hottentots, just de-fcrib'd, make but a closer. fcrib'd, make but a gloomy Entertainment. Without Doubt, they strike the Bosom of the Reader with Horrour; and he defires to be reliev'd with Somthing generous and chearful. The best Thing I can do for him then is to describe a Hottentot making Love; with the Ceremony and Feast of a Hottentot Wedding. Cruelty, indeed, has Nothing to do here; but Naftinefs will appear as much as ever; and with that the Reader, as often as he may have been difgusted by it, must be content to bear.

I. If a Batchelor or Widower has a Mind to marry, he does not forthwith break his Mind to the Maid or Widow that has won his Heart. His first Business is to discover the Matter to his Father, if his Father is living, and get him to approve his Love. If his Father confents, he goes along with him to the Houfe of the Father of the Woman with whom he is fmitten, in order to demand her for him in Marriage.

The Lover and his Father, waiting on the Friends of the Woman, the Lover employs himfelf in preparing and prefenting the Company with Dacha or Tobacco. They all fmoak; and the Conversation turns upon indifferent Things; the Vifiters feeming to have forgot the Bufinefs they come about, and none elfe feeming to appreherd it, till the Heads of the whole Company are giddy
