NETWORKED DIGITAL LIBRARY OF THESES AND DISSERTATIONS

Welcome to the Networked Digital Library of Theses and Dissertations (NDLTD), an international organization dedicated to promoting the adoption, creation, use, dissemination, and preservation of electronic theses and dissertations (ETDs). We support electronic publishing and open access to scholarship in order to enhance the sharing of knowledge worldwide. Our website includes resources for university administrators, librarians, faculty, students, and the general public. Topics include how to find, create, and preserve ETDs; how to set up an ETD program; legal and technical questions; and the latest news and research in the ETD community.

Why? Policy-based

3. Policy statement

3.1 Each student should submit paper and electronic copies of his/her thesis/dissertation to the Postgraduate Office of the relevant faculty (Yearbook General Regulation G57.4(i)). Alternatively students may self-submit their theses/dissertations to the UPeTD system (<http://upetd.up.ac.za>).

3.2 These copies should be accompanied by the submission form (available at <http://upetd.up.ac.za/authors/publish/Engels.pdf>), fully completed and signed by the student, the supervisor as well as the postgraduate officer of the faculty. Particular care should be taken by supervisors and students to indicate their preferences regarding access to documents.

3.3 When possible theses and dissertations should be opened worldwide. The following exceptions are permitted:

Why? Benefits for you

- Increased access to your research
  - Greater exposure to graduate research via Google
  - Local & global availability 24/7 – citations & invitations
- Cost savings
  - Digital copies are cheaper to produce
  - Storage space in libraries
- Other
  - Creative use of multimedia, hyperlinks, sound, motion
  - Long term preservation
  - Hyperlink to your CV, homepage - visibility

Why? NDLTD ETD competition

Abstract

The world economy is currently dominated by information- and communication technology, and has consequently become increasingly competitive and globalised. The changing economy also impacts on our living and working environment.

A qualitative approach to research was followed in examining the implications of the changing economy on the field of human resource management, with the objective of developing a model for describing the role of human resource management in the new economy. The qualitative analysis focused on the most recent publications in this regard and it is apparent that the changing economy has a direct and definite influence on the role of human resource management in organisations. All human resource management practices will have to change dramatically to answer to the demands of the new economy. Important concepts relating to the new economy and included in the model are intellectual capital, human capital, knowledge management, the internet, e-commerce and globalisation.

Whereas the competitive advantage for organisations in the old economy centred on financial capital and technology, the emerging economy necessitates an emphasis on investment in human capital, knowledge, and the commitment and enthusiasm of the employees. The focus in the business world has shifted from physical assets to knowledge and information, i.e. intellectual capital. The effective management of human and intellectual capital poses new challenges in the organisation for leadership and managerial capabilities.
